Sen. Barbour Dies at Home After Illness Of Few Days

New Jersey Senator Succumbs at 55; 3d Congressman To Pass On in 2 Days

Mark of Respect

THE HOUSE ADJOURNED yesterday out of respect for Representatives Steagall of Alabama, who died yesterday, and Ditter of Pennsylvania, who was killed Sunday. Details on Page 15.

Legislator Passes

Senator W. Warren Barbour (Republican) of New Jersey, 55, died at his home, 2801 31st st. nw., last night. Death was caused by coronary thrombosis, according to Dr. George W. Calver, congressional physician.

He is the third member of Congress to die in the past two days. Representative Steagall (Democrat) of Alabama also died yesterday of a heart ailment, and Representative J. William Ditter (Democrat) of Pennsylvania was killed Sunday night.

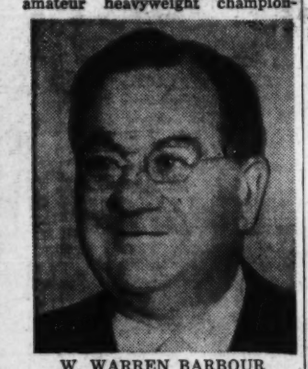
The physician said the New Jersey lawmaker had been ill for several days but he suddenly grew worse yesterday afternoon and died at 10:45 p. m.

He first served in the Senate in 1931 when he was appointed to succeed the late Dwight W. Morrow. Defeated for reelection in 1936, he returned two years later to fill the unexpired term of Senator Harry A. Moore, who had been elected Governor and resigned. He was reelected in 1940.

Born in Monmouth Beach, N. J., in 1888, he was married in 1921 to Miss Elysabeth C. Carrere.

He was a graduate of Browning School, New York, in 1906. He was a thread manufacturer before entering politics.

Well over six feet and taller and heavier than his colleagues, Senator Barbour won the natoinal amateur heavyweight championship when he was 22 years old. He was a member of the Commerce, Manufacturers, Naval Affairs, Public Buildings and Grounds and the Rules Committee.



W. WARREN BARBOUR

Besides his wife he is survived by three children, Elysabeth, Warren and Sharon.

Ex-Gov. Price Of Virginia Dies

Chas. Ray, Former Film Star, at Point of Death

Hollywood, Nov. 22 (INS).—Charles Ray, one of the biggest stars of the silent screen, was declared ill beyond hope of recovery tonight.

"It's a matter of just a day or two at the most," said his physician, Dr. John Sharpe.

Father Draft Bill Passed, Curbs WMC

By Robert C. Albright

Father draft legislation, slowing induction of dads and divorcing the War Manpower Commission from overall control of Selective Service, passed the Senate yesterday and sped to an uncertain fate at the White House.

Final action came over a last urgent protest from WMC Chairman Paul V. McNutt that separation of military and civilian manpower authority "is a sabotage of sound administration."

Friends of McNutt, who have strongly urged the President to veto the bill, believed there was a better than even chance the President would do so.

McNutt was represented by associates as acquiescent in every provision of the bill except mandatory removal of WMC from Selective Service supervision.

The President is understood to have been advised by McNutt's friends to veto the bill, but to carry out all of its provisions save the one disputed changed by issuance of an executive order worded almost identically with the legislation.

Deaths Delay Subsidy Vote Until Today

Passing of Steagall, Ditter Postpones Showdown on Issue

By Christine Sadler

Delayed 24 hours by two unexpected deaths among the House membership, a showdown vote on the Administration's subsidy program to hold down living costs is scheduled for today, with victory still assured for the powerful bipartisan coalition seeking to ban, after December 31, Government payments to keep retail food prices in line.

Both Representative Ditter (Republican), of Pennsylvania, killed in a Navy plane crash, and Representative Steagall (Democrat) of Alabama, who died after a brief weekend illness, were subsidy foes.

Last Speech Opposed Subsidies

Steagall, chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, which reported out the bill to prohibit subsidy payments, in his last speech to the House made an hour-long appeal to the membership to discard the payments which he said passed on the grocery bill of this generation to "our boys now fighting overseas" and are an "un-American" imposition on the farmer. For a half century, he declared, farmers have held an unfair position in the Nation's economy and will have to help pay for the subsidy that prevents their having free access to the market place at a time "when consumers have more money than ever before."

Automatically elevated to chairmanship of the committee was Representative Brent Spence (Democrat) of Kentucky, who signed the minority report in favor of food subsidies on grounds they are helping hold back inflation.

Spence in his leadership of the measure today is expected to offer compromise amendments placing specific limitations on the amount that can be expended for subsides, in an effort to salvage the payment program. These and other compromise amendments presented by Administration stalwarts, however, are conceded to have no chance—it being generally agreed friends of the subsidy idea cannot muster

Diocesan Day of Decision

Election of Bishop Narrows To 2 Principal Nominations

By Robert Tate Allan

Election of a successor to the late Bishop James E. Freeman at today's special diocesan convention, last night boiled down to a neck-and-neck race between the Very Rev. Angus Dun and Lieut. (Chaplain) Donald B. Aldrich, according to well-informed religious circles.

Dr. Dun is dean of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass. Lieutenant Aldrich, on leave from New York City's Church of the Ascension, will be released by the Navy if he is elected and accepts the bishopric.

The other two clergymen whose names were approved in the nominating committee's report were the Rev. Dudley Scott Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's Church, Chicago, and the Very Rev. Sidney Edward Sweet, dean of Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis.

Another service chaplain may figure in the election of a "dark horse" candidate. He is Father Albert J. DuBois, now on leave as Army chaplain from St. Agnes' Episcopal Church, 44 Q st. nw., and who might be nominated from the convention floor by a group of Anglo-Catholics, or high churchmen. While there is little likelihood that Chaplain DuBois will be elected, according to those "in the know" here, if he is, the Army undoubtedly will follow precedent by releasing him to carry on his larger sphere of activity.

The meeting, which is a recessed special convention postponed from last July, because of the intervening General Convention of the Episcopal Church in October, will open formal sessions today at 10

Ickes Would 'Junk' Army Oil Project

Truman Committee Hears 3 Agencies Hit 130 Million Deal With Canada

By the Associated Press

Spokesmen for three Government agencies criticized the Army sharply yesterday for its 130 million-dollar Canadian oil venture and broke into the open a smouldering argument dating back a year and a half. Interior Secretary Ickes said flatly that the whole project "ought to be junked."

The Senate's Truman Committee, self-chosen umpire in the dispute, heard from the Interior Department, the Budget Bureau and the War Production Board that:

1. The War Department ignored other interested departments when it negotiated with Canada to finance, entirely with United States funds, the drilling of 27 wells in the Norman field of the Canadian northwest, laying of a 500-mile pipe line and erection of a refinery, to provide the Army's Alaskan forces with fuel.

2. Protests of the Interior Department and the War Production Board that the plan was unsound were not heeded.

3. The entire United States investment might be lost after the war.

The charges were made by Ickes, as petroleum administrator, and supported by Leroy Whitney, technical consultant to WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson.

Must Defend Contracts

Harold D. Smith, director of the budget served notice at the same time that the War Department would be expected to defend the contracts with the Canadian government at hearings in January.

The Truman Committee, headed by Senator Truman of Missouri, said it would give the Army its innings today, summoning Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson and officials of the supply services.

Ickes explained that his criticisms were elicited as a witness, not volunteered. By this he apparently meant to show that he was abiding by the letter of President Roosevelt's order forbidding interdepartment disputes in the open unless the persons who air them are prepared to resign.

Ickes said the development never would have been started "if we had had anything to say about it."

Ickes Tells of Better Plan

He protested that it would be cheaper and better to transport fuel from California via inland passage to Skagway and thence by the existing pipeline to protected storage at White Horse.

The agreement gives Canada first option to purchase the U. S.-financed property after the war. The Canadian government as its share waived for the duration all import duties, taxes and license fees on equipment and supplies, and also agreed to remit all royalties on oil production and income

Eisenhower to Be Staff Chief

Marshall Will Lead Invasion of Europe

By Edward T. Folliard

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of Staff, is now expected to set up his GHQ in London before Christmas. He will be supreme commander of the Anglo-American forces that are to open the "second front" and bring the war in Europe to its grand climax.

Red army officers will serve on General Marshall's staff, thus emphasizing the new coalition strategy that is being worked out by America, Britain and Russia.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, now commander of the Allied forces in the Mediterranean theater and Italy, will come to Washington to take over General Marshall's duties as Army Chief of Staff. His coming here, however, will be delayed until the Italian campaign has reached a satisfactory stage.

In the interval between General Marshall's departure for London and General Eisenhower's return to Washington, the duties of chief of staff will fall to Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, who is now deputy chief of staff.

These arrangements, projected in advance of the climactic 1944 campaign with its "battles larger and more costly than Waterloo or Gettysburg," were agreed on before reports began circulating of a meeting between the big three—President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin.

This meeting of the three leaders, with their top-ranking military advisers, is expected to produce a master plan for the defeat of Germany under which Anglo-American and Russian blows against the Wehrmacht will be synchronized.

The decision to have Russian officers serve on General Marshall's staff overseas apparently was reached at the Moscow conference, which paved the way for a meeting of the Big Three.

This will be the first time that Russian, American and British officers have associated in a military undertaking. The Red army men, with their background of fighting the Germans on the war's No. 1 front, doubtless will have much of value to offer General Marshall. Their presence, however, will have a much deeper significance than that.

For the first time since Germany plunged the world into war, her foes will have a common strategy. The grand coalition will be a fact, the big squeeze will be on. And the Red army men at General Marshall's GHQ will be proof of it.

Relief Parley Adopts Policy Of Reparations

United Nations Conferees Insist Foe Must Share Costs

By Philip G. Reed

Alantic City, N. J., Nov. 22 (INS). The United Nations adopted, in effect today the principle of reparations after this war and took the first step toward making Germany, Italy and Japan stand at least part of the Allied cost in the conflict.

The program as yet concerns but one phase of the price that is being paid to defeat the Axis—that of relief and rehabilitation.

It was determined by a subcommittee of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration which includes representatives from most of the key nations and undoubtedly will be adopted by the full council without material change.

Under the plan, enemy or former enemy territories will be made to pay for every penny's worth of relief extended to the civilian populations. In addition they will have to disgorge any material surpluses needed by the Allies.

Other important steps by the council members today included:

1. Committee adoption of a plan for sharing administration costs of UNRRA, under which the United States would pay 40 per cent of an estimated 50 million dollar total; the British Empire, 24.80 per cent; China, 5 per cent; Russia, 15 per cent. All united and associate nations will join in footing the bill—even Greece, whose share will be .05 of one per cent.

2. Agreement on a program to assist upward of 107 million people in Europe and Asia to return to

Red Tanks Help Smash New Nazi Assaults

Counteroffensive Toward Kiev Halted, Soviet Says

London (Tuesday), Nov. 23 (AP).—Red troops buttressed by fleets of tanks smashed powerful new Nazi attacks near Korostyshev, halting a savage counteroffensive toward Kiev, wrecking 80 enemy tanks and carpeting the battlefield with German dead, Moscow announced early today.

Even as the Germans lunged desperately on this narrow sector 20 miles east of Zhitomir, other Soviet armies on the distant flanks slashed deeper into the Dnieper bend to the southeast, and in the Rechitsa area to the north, killed 2500 Nazis, said the communique.

These drives apparently were intended to relieve pressure on the Kiev sector as well as to advance the general offensive toward the borders of Rumania and prewar Poland.

Another 600 Germans fell in battle 10 miles north of Zhitomir, as Field Marshal Gen. Fritz von Mannstein struck out in a new direction in the Chernyakov area, possibly aiming at Korosten. Two attacks were repulsed near Chernyakhov.

Holding firmly in the ninth day of battle in the Korostsyhev sector, the Soviets were declared to have broken the tremendous new Nazi onslaughts yesterday, leaving the approaches to the Russian positions "covered with dead German officers and men."

The twin-pronged Red army cleanup of the Dnieper bend hammered closer to Krivoi Rog and Nikopol, the war bulletin said.

Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's heavy armor swept victoriously over at

Black Market Men Buy Up Turkeys En Route to District

By Linton Burkett

Moving frantically to halt black market diversions of turkeys destined for Washington, John L. Laskey, local OPA enforcement officer, yesterday pleaded with Maryland and Virginia OPA officials to speed investigators out on the roads leading to the city to block roadside sales of the Thanksgiving birds.

Laskey took the action after reports of wholesale diversions were brought to his attention.

One trucker headed for Washington reported that he had secured 2200 pounds of the birds on a Virginia farm yesterday morning and while on the road to the city he was stopped by a dealer who offered him 45 cents a pound, live weight, for the load, plus a bonus of 1000 pounds of sugar, without the use of ration points and without cost. The ceiling is 36 cents.

The trucker refused the offer and instead delivered his cargo to one of the largest poultry houses in the city and they were the only turkeys they had to offer for sale yesterday.

The trucker actually took a loss on the deal, as the 2200 pounds of turkeys lost 300 pounds in weight in transit, the dealer said.

Dealers who handle only turkeys which are dressed before they are shipped to Washington reported a better supply, although they also said they were short. These turkeys are bought at the processing plant and are the property of the local dealer after they leave the plant.

Truckers hauling live birds here pay for the turkeys out of their own pockets, on the farm, and then in turn they sell them to the local dealer. From the time the live turkeys leave the farm until they are sold they are the property of the trucker.

Laskey said he had very good reason to believe there were few if any black market operations in turkeys in Washington. He attributed this largely to the cooperation given the OPA by dealers.

However, while it could not be definitely established where any turkeys diverted from Washington were sent, there have been reports of large-scale black-market operations in Philadelphia and New York.

Laskey said that the local office was helpless to halt the black market traffic in Virginia and Maryland, for his office lacked jurisdiction there, but that he had made before and was making again, strong pleas for help from OPA officials in these States.

Local dealers asserted that if the racket is not broken, and broken quickly, there would be very few turkeys to be had in Washington for Thanksgiving.

Montgomery Perils Nazi Winter Line

Takes More Towns, Drives to 2 Miles Of Main Defenses On Sangro River

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 22 (AP).—Secretly and heavily reinforced by Canadians, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army has plunged ahead to capture two more towns near the center of the Italian front, and was fighting tonight within 2 miles of the enemy's main defense line along the upper Sangro River, 40 miles inland from the Adriatic.

(A Berlin broadcast last (Monday) night said the Eighth Army had begun a large scale offensive, "preceded by strong artillery fire and supported by strong air formations," but it described British gains as negligible. Heavy losses were declared to have been inflicted upon the attacking troops.)

San Pietro Avellana, 10 miles west of Agnone, and Vastogirardi, between those two towns, fell as Montgomery drove on toward an important junction of interior highways leading to Rome.

Capture of Agnone, along wtih Archi, Castel San Vincenzo and Rocchetta in the Eighth Army's renewed advance was announced only yesterday. Seizure of the six stoutly-defended strongpoints tore the enemy's grip from the last points on the lateral Vastoisernia highway, and delivered that valuable communications line to Montgomery's forces.

The Germans, rallying back stubbornly on their main "winter line" northwest of the Sangro, were reported burning both Castel di Sangro and Alfedena in the Eighth Army's path, as usual leaving nothing behind that could be of value to the Allies. The Eighth Army vanguard was reported within 3½ miles of Castel di Sangro, a city of 5000 population.

Allied Aircraft Active

Continued heavy downpours the length of the front limited the Fifth Army at the western end of the battle line to patrol action and arillery duels.

Aerial reconnaissance showed the Nazis were working to strengthen their defenses in depth, and it was estimated they now have 10 crack divisions (perhaps 150,000 men) dug in across the peninsula.

Allied aircraft bombed and strafed the enemy at many points in Italy and across the Adriatic in Yugoslavia and Albania. American Marauders devasted an 18-acre area in the port of Civitavecchia, 40 miles northwest of Rome, smashing two quays, sinking a 100-foot ship in the harbor and demolishing warehouses and ammunition dumps. A bombardier said one big storage area "blew up in a mass of flames, smoke and debris."

Today's communique said two British destroyers, the Loyal and the Quilliam, intercepted a German convoy between Pescara and Ancona on the Adriatic coast last Friday night and sank one enemy lighter and possibly a second, and damaged a tug.

London (Tuesday), Nov. 23 (AP).—A roundabout Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said today Benito Mussolini was reported to have committed suicide yesterday at his Lake Garda villa. The dispatch said the report came from travelers arriving in Switzerland.

Biggest U. S. Fleet In History Dares Japs to Fight It Out

By Joseph Driscoll

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 22.—The greatest fleet ever assembled in the history of the United States Navy is sweeping the central Pacific in quest of a Japanese fleet which thus far has refused the challenge to come out and fight.

The landings on the Gilbert Islands are expected to wake some semblance of interference from sizeable units of the Japanese grand fleet stationed for the last two years at Truk lagoons in the Caroline Islands—the largest Japanese fleet concentration south of the home waters. Occupation of the Gilberts was rated grave enough to draw the Truk fleet from its coral lair.

With the American fleet poised around Japan's eastern periphery, and the British fleet reported steaming east through the Indian Ocean, the Japanese navy is yet to be heard from. Doubtless it has steam up, but whether it intends to fight remains to be seen. That question should be settled within a few days. This week or next may see some of the most titanic naval engagements.

RAF Bombers Set Big Fires In Nazi Capital

Berlin Admits Heavy Damage; Raid Called A 'Terror Attack'

London (Tuesday), Nov. 23 (AP).—The German radio said early today that Berlin was bombed last night by Allied aircraft returning to the attack on the Nazi capital which was heavily pounded last Thursday night by the RAF.

"A great deal of damage" was admitted by the broadcast, which said the raid was made by British bombers.

The attack was said to have been carried out despite dense clouds and complete lack of visibility.

The raid was described as a "big terror attack" by the German propaganda agency international information bureau, this being the usual Nazi description for heavy, destructive assaults.

The agency said fires were left burning in the capital.

"This heavy terror raid," the agency said, "caused serious damage in many districts of the capital, especially in the workers' section. Losses were caused among the civilian population."

The broadcast said the capital's fire-fighting squads began battling the flames started by the block busters while the attack still was going on.

Indications are that there was more than one alarm in Berlin, with the first as early as 7:30 p. m., when telephone operators in Stockholm reported communications to Berlin cut.

The raid followed that of Thursday night when nearly 1000 RAF heavy bombers struck Berlin and Ludwigshaven, dropping 2500 long tons of bombs on the two cities in devastating raids. In that assault 32 British and Canadian bombers were lost—regarded as a small percentage for the operation.

Abemama Is Latest To Be Invaded; Progress Reported On Makin, Tarawa

Moving Ahead

AUSTRALIANS BEAT way to within half a mile of Jap trenches at Sattelberg, New Guinea, and MacArthur's airmen blast 19,000 tons of enemy shipping. Page 2.

Plan Unfolds

Pearl Harbor, T. H., Nov. 22 (AP). The 3-day-old wedge being driven by American Marines and soldiers into the Gilberts has been expanded over more than 100 miles of atoll and sea by a Marine landing on Abemama while progress was made in grim fighting on Tarawa and Makin, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Tersely, without mentioning the time or opposition, the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet reported the new landing on an atoll 80 miles southeast of Tarawa, which in turn is 25 miles south of Makin.

Utilizing artillery, machineguns and pillbox defenses, the Japanese were yielding slowly in the death struggle on the other two atolls, invaded Saturday.

A communique from the commander in chief of the Pacific theater was encouraging but brief. It stated only that "our troops have improved their position on Tarawa and Makin Atolls, but are still encountering considerable ground resistance."

The Abemama (Apamama) assault was confined to one sentence: "We have landed Apamama Atoll."

This atoll was believed to be lightly defended and the fact no mention was made of opposition was seen as encouraging.

Simultaneously Admiral Nimitz disclosed that Vice Admiral Raymond A. Spruance of Indianapolis is directing central Pacific operations and Rear Admiral Richmond K. Turner is in command of amphibious forces.

2d Marines Make Landing

It further disclosed that the Tarawa landings were made by the Second Marines in command of Maj. Gen. Julian C. Smith of Elkton, Md., the Makin assault by troops of the Twenty-seventh Division commanded by Maj. Gen. Ralph Smith of Tucson, Ariz., and that Maj. Gen. Holland McF. Smith of Montgomery, Ala., of the Marines is in command of landing forces.

Additionally, it was learned that Vice Admiral John H. Hoover of Great Falls, Mont., has been directing all combined Army and Navy ground-based aerial operations as commander of aircraft of the central Pacific and that Marine Lieut. Col. James Roosevelt had landed with the infantry on Makin.

Roosevelt's landing, presumed to be primarily as an observer, since he is with the Army instead of his own Leathernecks, marked his return to the atoll he assaulted with Lieut. Col. Evans Carlson's Marine raiders August 17 and 18, 1942. The Marines at that time wiped out every one of the Japanese on Makin.

Campaign in Full Swing

The landings of Tarawa and Makin had thrown wide open the long-heralded campaign to dislodge the Japanese from their mid-Pacific strongholds.

Abemama, also known as Hooper's Island, is an atoll like Tarawa and Makin. It is comprised of a number of small islands.

Although there was no elaboration, it seemed quite possible that the Marines already have secured good positions there. Its inclosed coral reef has two openings into a lagoon.

Lacking any official comment, it appeared the chief value of Abemama conceivably could be for the construction of an emergency airfield for fighters.

Strong Naval units undoubtedly still are covering the Gilbert operations, both aircraft carriers and warships.

War Sidelights

Canadians In Italy Are Reinforced

With Canadian Forces in Italy, Nov. 13 (Delayed) (AP).—Canadian troops in Italy have been reinforced by the arrival of new infantry and armored formations, thoroughly trained in England, and they will now operate as a Canadian corps under Canadian command.

The fit-looking newcomers, lacking only battle experience, streamed off troop ships in an Italian port to join the veterans of the Canadian First Division, which fought in Sicily and is fighting in Italy. Not since 1918 has there been a Canadian corps actually in action against an enemy. The newcomers represented all parts of the Dominion.

When they broke camp in England they were told they were setting out on an elaborate exercise. Not until they had passed Gibraltar was it announced that their destination was Italy, and then, said Maj. H. O. Moran of Toronto, they "almost tore the decks off."

Premier's Wife Held

London, Nov. 22 (AP).—The Polish Telegraph Agency said today that the 43-year-old wife of Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk is held by the Germans as a hostage in Oswiecim concentration camp in Poland and may be facing execution. She was imprisoned on the personal order of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler for "political activities against the Reich," the agency said.

All Germans Mobilize

Stockholm, Nov. 22 (AP).—Germany is preparing for her fifth winter of war by mobilizing all possible manpower for military service, in some cases using 50-year-old men on the battlefronts, dispatches from Berlin said today.

New labor mobilization checks are being prepared in order to eliminate all nonessential work.

An editorial in the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung warned Germans the winter will be hard, but "no one can take our courage from us."

This newspaper expressed belief that the Germans did not have to fear another front in Western Europ and that apparently because of weather the Allied bombings already had reached a climax for this year.

The Rome correspondent of the Goeteborg Handel-Ochs Sjoefartstidning reported Italians in the classes of 1924 and 1925 in Northern Italy had been ordered mobilized for military service with the Germans.

Samos Loss Only Dents Mounting Offensive Power

London, Nov. 22 (AP).—Reconquest of Samos—last Aegean island of consequence held by the Allies off Turkey—was claimed tonight by the Germans, but this success made only a rent in the storm cloud of Allied power gathering over the Balkans.

Samos, a Greek island, had in effect been lost ever since the Nazis recovered Leros and Cos to the south in the Dodecanese, and its fall had been anticipated.

Samos, Leros, and Cos formed small outposts of an Allied offensive arc drawn up against the flank of Crete.

Yugoslavian Battles

Meanwhile, vastly superior German forces were being bitterly engaged over Yugoslavia, and the Nazi position in Bulgaria and Rumania was weakening.

The Partisan army of Gen. Josip Broz (Tito) in Yugoslavia opened a counteroffensive in Slovenia and has regained two villages in Bosnia. The communique said a German-Bulgarian thrust against the Serbian town of Krenje had been broken.

Allied air forces struck into Albania in operations having the effect of supporting patriot forces, and heavy RAF bombers of the Middle Eastern Command beat directly at the main source of German strategic strength in the Balkans—Crete. Without loss themselves, they bombed the enemy's big Herakleion airdrome on Crete, laying bursts in the landing area.

Dispatches to the Turkish press said Rumanians were scrambling to escape from the Crimea where they had been helping Hitler against the Russians, and already had brought home one complete division of seven that they hoped to extricate. The Hungarians also were reported pulling out of Russia, and looking homeward to their own defense.

There also were reports that Bulgaria's Parliament had been called into session tomorrow, presumably for action supporting the government's threat to take "the harshest measures" against Bulgarians agitating for an end of the government's policy as an accomplice to Hitler.

Judge's Robe Is War Casualty

Surbiton, England (AP).—It appears that owing to the ravages of moths and the taxes of war, the deputy mayor of Surbiton will have to do without his ceremonial robe of office for a while.

Moths ate so many holes in the official garment that it couldn't be repaired. When told a new one would cost 40 guineas plus 80 guineas tax (a total of about $297), the town council decided not to buy one "for the time being."

Red Tanks Help Smash New Nazi Blows

least six strongly-fortified German defense centers in a broadening Dnieper bridgehead south of Kremenchug, and fought off counterblows against the Russian bridgehead at Cherkasi, midway between Kremenchug and the Kiev sector.

Flanking Von Mannstein's attack from the north, Gen. Constantin Rokossovsky drove westward along a 100-mile front—capturing 12 villages and one railway station along the lower Pripet River, taking 16 more towns west of Rechitsa, and storming eight centers of resistance north of Gomel.

Heavy German tank and infantry attacks in the Korostyshev area 20 miles east of Zhitomir were smashed, a communique broadcast from Moscow declared, and the Red army hurled full tank forces into the struggle there, declared by front dispatches to be as fierce and desperate as that for Stalingrad.

The German counterattacks, mounted in the Chernyakhov area, 10 miles north of Zhitomir as well as to the east, collapsed with heavy losses.

Battlefront dispatches to the newspaper Pravda in Moscow reported the Russians were regaining the initiative at some points west of Kiev.

The Russian reference to fighting in the Chernyakhov sector suggested that Von Mannstein, blunted in the direction of Kiev, has turned north toward Korosten, but even there is finding the going hard.

The second day of Russian successes in the push beyond Kremenchug reflected a broadening of the whole offensive front down the Dnieper bend, where the Nazis' escape corridor in the Krivoi Rognikopol sack already has been pinched to some 40 miles.

Reuters dispatches said the Kremenchug drive had pushed 20 miles west toward the Znamenka railway junction on a 30-mile front.

Rokossovsky's forces were reported finding similar success at the northern end of the offensive front, striking through the Nazi lines to the junction of the Berezina River with the Dnieper 15 miles north of Rechitsa. This tightened the noose around Gomel, whose fall seemed imminent.

The German high command claimed recapture of "important ground" west of Kiev, and reported a new Soviet landing south of Kerch in the Crimea.

Summing up Sunday's fighting, the Soviet communique said the Germans had lost 109 tanks disabled or destroyed, and 18 planes.

Reported Capture Of President's Son Is Unconfirmed

By the Associated Press

No substantiation could be found in Washington or London yesterday for a report published by Provincia de Como, an obscure newspaper of Como, northern Italy, that one of President Roosevelt's sons had been made a prisoner after parachuting from a plane over Germany. The paper attributed the report to its Berlin correspondent.

The War Department in Washington said it had no reports of anyone named Roosevelt being missing in action.

Eighth Air Force headquarters in Britain also said no Roosevelt had been reported missing.

Meanwhile, however, it appears likely that the Berlin writer has written a garbled version of the recent adventure of Lieut. John G. Winant, jr., son of the American Ambassador in London, who has been reported a prisoner in Germany after having been missing in a Fortress raid over Germany.

Nazi Airdrome Badly Damaged

London, Nov. 22 (AP).—Reconnaissance photographs show that the Kjeller Airdrome, principal repair and maintenance center for the German air force in Norway, was damaged heavily by American Liberators in their November 18 attack, the Eighth U. S. Air Force Bomber headquarters announced tonight.

Direct hits wholly or partially destroyed numerous buildings and left more than 19 holes in the wooden runway and more than 80 craters on the landing field.

their homes from which they have been driven by the enemy. Special emphasis will be placed on caring for war orphans and disabled persons.

3. A decision that UNRRA's adminstration personnel will be chosen on "a truly international basis without discrimination on grounds of sex, race, nationality or creed." Salary standards will be high to recruit the finest experts in every field. An effort will be made after the firing ceases to obtain the services of men and women in the armed forces of the United Nations.

The range of UNRRA's activity was limited formally to:

"1. Relief supplies: Essential consumer goods to meet immediate needs, such as food, fuel, clothing, shelter medical supplies.

"2. Relief services: Health and welfare, assisting in caring for and maintaining records of persons found in any areas who have been displaced because of the war and in agreement with appropriate governments, military authorities or other agencies, in securing their repatriation or return to their homes.

"3. Rehabilitation supplies and service: Materials (such as seeds, fertilizers, raw materials, fishing equipment, machinery and spare parts) needed to enable a recipient country to produce and transport relief supplies for its own and other liberated territories and such technical services as may be necessary for these purposes.

"4. Rehabilitation of public utilities and services: So far as they can be repaired or restored to meet immediate needs, such as light, water, sanitation, power, transport, temporary storage, communications and assistance in procuring material equipment for the rehabilitation of educational institutions."

The policy does away for all time with any fears that UNRRA will turn into a permanent organization dedicated to reconstruct the world, principally with American money.

19 Men Believed Dead in Collision Of 2 Tankers

Lewes, Del., Nov. 22 (AP).—Nineteen men were lost and presumably died in a blazing sea after the tanker Bostonian crashed into the tanker Altair in a thick fog 58 miles off the Atlantic coast at midnight Saturday, a Fourth Naval District spokesman disclosed tonight.

Thirty-nine were rescued, two of them badly injured. Unofficial reports said still other survivors were landed in another Delaware port.

Captain Rein Schenore, Latvia-born master of the Altair, 7,000-ton Socony Vacuum Oil Co. vessel, said most of the missing were members of his crew who jumped overboard "when the water was already ablaze."

Seizure Order Is Expected in Tannery Strike

Presidential action ordering the Army to seize and operate 16 strike-bound Salem-Peabody, Mass., tanneries where 2000 workers have been idle for two weeks was expected momentarily late yesterday.

Troops would be used, if necessary, to provide protection for employes desiring to return to work, under a plan worked out by Government officials.

The strike grew out of the discharge of two workers who belonged to the National Leather Workers Association, an independent union, but actually was a reflection of a jurisdictional dispute between the unaffiliated organization and the CIO Fur and Leather Workers which holds a contract covering the plants.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Review SPARS On Ellipse Today

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will review a parade of 600 SPARS at 12:30 p. m. today on the organization's first anniversary.

On the reviewing stand on the Ellipse directly south of the White House will be Vice Admiral Russell R. Waesche, commandant of the U. S. Coast Guard; Lieut.-Comdr. Dorothy Stratton, director of the Women's Reserves of the Coast Guard and heads of the Women's Reserves of the Army, Navy and Marines.

The SPARS will form on the western side of the Ellipse and march across to the reviewing stand and thence to their headquarters at 13th and Pennsylania ave. n.

A birthday dance for the SPARS, their escorts and invited servicemen is scheduled at 8:30 p. m. tonight at the Statler.

Aiding Soldiers to Get Farms Is Advocated

By the Associated Press

Frank Hancock, Farm Security's new administrator, said yesterday he favors Government aid in obtaining farms for returning soldiers.

"I see no reason why we can't aid returning soldiers in obtaining farms. We already are getting applications for FSA loans from returning disabled veterans. I should like to see preference legislation for disabled veterans in the resettlement and relocation program and to see the tenant-purchase program carried out for the benefit of the soldiers."

Sen. Reynolds Says He's Not Isolationist

Asserting "there is no such thing as an isolationist in this country," Senator Reynolds (Democrat) of North Carolina called yesterday for "a revival of nationalism."

"We are not isolationists," he declared. "There is no such thing in this country. An isolationist would have to favor abandonment of the Monroe Doctrine and of commercial relations among nations.

"We do favor considering America first, instead of giving so much time to problems of other parts of the world."

New, Faster Payroll Handling

—Literally "Manufactures" Precious Time

WHAT IS the most critical of all war materials today? Is it oil? Steel? Aluminum? It is none of these—it is time. For time is the essence of manpower.

Discovering a faster method of welding, a quicker way of harvesting a crop, a simpler system of payroll accounting—any of these pays a bonus in time—helps build up our stockpile of that priceless material.

▲ FOR INSTANCE—this week many offices will produce today's complex payroll records in one-half the time formerly consumed. This despite the new "load" added by the Withholding Tax.

▲ THE REASON—a new payroll plan by Shaw-Walker automatically transfers each figure to the several essential records.

After writing payroll figures just once, every record needed is completed, correct and up-to-date—ready for quarterly reports and government inspection. Rewriting of figures is entirely eliminated.

Entirely eliminated, too, are separate records for War Bonds, Social Security, Withholding Tax, employee insurance, employee hospitalization, union dues and all other ledger records of a similar nature.

Every pay day the statement you give to each employee includes:

(1) A complete record of earnings.

(2) A detailed list of deductions.

(3) A notice telling the worker the exact amount he has on deposit with you toward his next War Bond.

▲ SO SIMPLE is the "KOPI-SPOT" payroll system that any clerk can handle it. It can be adapted to any type of payroll whether you pay by check or in cash—whether you make your entries by typewriter or by hand.

▲ A COMPLETE FOLDER has been prepared, illustrating the "KOPI-SPOT" and explaining its application to various payroll methods. May we send you a copy of it?

ALL MADE AT ONE WRITING: pay checks, employees pay statement, social security and withholding tax record, War Bond Record, ledger record of other deductions, check register and payroll summary.

FOR THE DURATION any old file will do—it's the system itself that counts!

AFTER THE WAR transfer the system intact to any of the following:

A SHAW-WALKER FIRE FILE—the steel file with built-in fire protection. It gives safe-like security, even in severe fires.

OR THE DRAWERS of the Shaw-Walker steel desk. This is the famous new low desk for comfort and hard work.

Murphy Gets Allied Council Post in Italy

By the Associated Press

The State Department announced yesterday that Robert D. Murphy, who has represented the United States in North Africa since the fall of 1942, has been appointed to the Allied Council on Italy—a testing ground for Allied postwar policy.

At the same time Britain named Harold MacMillan, an expert on Mediterranean affairs, as her representative, and appointed Alfred Duff Cooper as her representative with the French Committee of National Liberation.

Murphy, who went to North Africa to prepare the way for Allied troops and who has been United States representative to the French committee at Algiers, will have the rank of ambsassador. He will continue as an adviser on general Eisenhower's staff for Italian affairs.

The department also announced that Edwin C. Wilson, former Ambassador to Panama, will take over as representative to the French committee, also with the rank of ambassador.

Wilson was previously appointed to the Allied Mediterranean Council, shelved at Moscow with creation of the Council on Italy.

The department announced two appointments to the Allied Control Commission for Italy under General Eisenhower—Henry F. Grady, former Assistant Secretary of State, to be deputy vice president of the economic and administrative section of the commission, and Samuel Reber, former assistant chief of the State Department's European division, to be deputy vice president of the political section.

The British appointment of MacMillan was well received in London, where his work as minister of state in North Africa and his assistance in the Lebanese difficulties earned him high praise. He will retain his post as resident minister at Allied headquarters in North Africa.

MacMillan's title will be United Kingdom commissioner.

Harold Caccia was made new acting vice president of the political section of the Control Commission for Italy. He was formerly Foreign Minister Anthony Eden's private secretary, and is considered one of the foreign office's most promising younger members.

Britain also gave Duff Cooper the rank of ambassador. He is an expert in French affairs.

Aussies Drive Close to Core of Jap Defense

Southwest Pacific Allied Headquarters (Tuesday), Nov. 23 (AP).—Australian soldiers, supported by 26-ton Matilda (British type) tanks, have punched their way through the northeastern New Guinea jungles to within half a mile of the core of Jap defenses on high ground around Sattelberg.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters coupled this report today with others showing that during the last 48 hours aircraft flown by members of three Allied nations—the United States, Australia and the Netherlands—have sunk or damaged 19,000 tons of Japanese shipping.

The drive on Sattelberg is one directed inland eight miles northwest of Allied held Finschhafen on the Huon Peninsula coast against forces whose jungle plateau positions overlook those of MacArthur's men.

These were among the outstanding shipping blows:

American Liberators in daylight Sunday sank a 4000-ton vessel off Manokwari, Dutch New Guinea, and shot down two and damaged one of six intercepting float planes. Enemy antiaircraft fire downed one of the Liberators.

Near the Aroe Islands in the same area, Dutch-flown Mitchells with Australian manned Beaufighters for cover, sank a 2000-ton ship and two small coastal vessels and damaged a 4000-ton freighter transport the same morning. That afternoon, Liberators in the Aroe area sank a 1000-ton ship and shot down four Japanese planes.

In midafternoon Sunday, a Liberator located three Japanese merchantmen in the vicinity of Kavieng, New Ireland, and set fire to the largest ship of 8000 tons. It was listed as probably sunk.

Before dawn that day, a Navy Catalina spotted a six-ship convoy heading for Rabaul and bombed it, but was not able to observe the results.

In addition to the inland advance on Sattleberg, General MacArthur also reported patrol clashes in the coastal sector north of Finschhafen in which 50 Japs were killed.

On the west central cost of Bougainville, where the Japanese are opposing extension of the American beachhead at Empress Augusta Bay, American dive-bombers have torn into this resistance with 62 tons of explosives.

The Jap airforce also got in some more blows there, inflicting minor damage on shipping and some casualties.

On the south central coast of New Britain, Liberators for the second straight day have delivered a heavy attack on the Gasmata air base area, hitting supply dumps with 49 tons. More than 130 tons were dropped in the previous attack.

In support of the Solomons beachhead operation on Bougainville, nearly 100 Avengers, Corsairs and Dauntlesses struck along the coast southward Saturday, Admiral William F. Halsey's headquarters advised. It was that same day an unspecified number of Japanese planes attacked the American troops.

Cost of Living Rises 3.9% Since Oct., 1942

New York, Nov. 22 (AP).—The cost of living in the United States as a whole has risen 3.9 per cent since October, 1942, and 20.6 per cent since January, 1941, the National Industrial Conference Board reported today.

In a survey of 70 industrial cities, the board reported that living costs for wage earners and lower-salaried clerical workers had risen from September to October.

Ensign St. John Died a Hero After Helping Sink Subs

Ensign Richard Earl St. John, who has been reported missing in action, actually went to his death under the stern of a rescue destroyer in the Atlantic after playing "a major role" in the sinking of two U-boats and the saving of the crew of the ship on which he was serving, the Navy announced yesterday.

St. John of Royse City, Tex., was an officier of the destroyer Borie, which sank one of the enemy submarines in action so close that small arms were brought into play and even knives were thrown.

When Lieut.-Comdr. Charles H. Hutchins ordered the Borie abandoned, St. John, with 25 men, climbed into a life raft and set out through rough waters for the destroyer Goff, a few hundred yards away.

"The Goff was rolling sharply and the tired men on the raft were unable to climb the rope nets without help," a Nay account said. "After helping to lift all but four or five of his men to safety, Ensign St. John and the men on the raft were swept under the stern of the ship and to their deaths."

Proposal for Soldier Voting Takes Beating From 2 Sides

Soldier vote legislation, extending a 1944 Federal ballot to every eligible member of the armed forces wherever stationed, yesterday ran into a cross-fire of coalition opposition from Republican Constitutionalists and Democratic adherents of States' rights.

The Senate started whittling down the Green-Lucas bill shortly after Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone wrote Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican) of Michigan, that it would be incompatible with his office to take part in the proceedings of the proposed war ballots commission as the bill provided.

The measure had authorized the President to call on the Chief Justice to name an associate justice or circuit court judge to sit with the commission when necessary to break a tie vote.

Flank Attack From South

The Senate, led by Vandenberg, promptly started curtailing the already limited powers of the commission, while from the South came a flank attack that threatened to take the Federal Government out of the soldier vote picture and leave the matter to the States.

A complete substitute for the bill for this purpose was offered by Senators McKellar of Tennessee, McClellan of Arkansas and Eastland of Mississippi (Democrats), similar to a companion move in the House Elections Committee.

Constitutionality of the legislation, meanwhile, was challenged by Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican) of Ohio, among others, and as warmly defended by Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican) of Vermont. Austin took the position that in wartime the duty of assuring suffrage to the men on the fighting fronts might transcend the Constitution.

On motion of Vandenberg, the Senate struck from the bill one of its few controversial functions—the right to challenge the validity of the soldier vote of any State not substantially complying with the provisions of the law.

Under the original bill, the Senate and House were given final say as to validity, but only if the Governor of a State failed to certify State compliance or if the commission certified a State had not substantially complied with the law.

Teeth Extracted

This entire provision was eliminated on Vandenberg's motion, leaving no means of requiring State officials to comply with the law.

It was Vandenberg also who moved to strike out the call on the Chief Justice to name a judge to break a tie. With the assent of the bill's authors, the Michigan Republican proposed instead that a three-man majority of the bi-partisan commission (two Republicans and two Democrats) be required to break a tie.

This was adopted by a voice vote after Vandenberg read Chief Justice Stone's letter, making clear his position. The Michigan Senator had written Stone, asking if he would honor such a request.

Might Come Before Court

"In response," said the Chief Justice, "I feel free to say, for myself only, that I regard the performance of such a function as incompatible with obligations which I assumed with the office of Chief Justice, and as likely to impair my usefulness in that office. It is enough to say, without more, which might be said, that action taken by the Chief Justice in connection with the administration of the proposed legislation might become subject to review in the court over which he presides and that it might have political implications and political consequences which should be wholly dissociated from the duties of the judicial office. For that reason and for that only, as at present advised, I should feel obliged to decline such a request if made."

In an effort to divert further fire from the commission, Senator Scott Lucas (Democrat) of Illinois, one of the authors of the bill, took the floor to point out that the commission would render no major decisions.

While the bi-partisan group would print the simplified Federal ballot and clear them, the Army and Navy would actually take the ballots to the soldiers, arrange for voting and see they were back in time to be counted.

"This is getting on dangerous ground," said Senator Taft. "It may be said that Congress could use the same power to postpone or do away with the election altogether."

Senator Holman (Republican) of Oregon offered an amendment to make the President's action in appointing a bi-partisan War Ballots Commission disqualify him from seeking a fourth term.

Minn. Committee Indorses Stassen For President

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 22 (AP).—Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, now a lieutenant commander in the Navy, today was unanimously indorsed by the Republican State Central Committee for the 1944 Republican nomination for President.

Mrs. Helen Boppel of Shakopee, Scott County chairwoman, presented the motion of indorsement after several Republican leaders had declared that Stassen was "definitely a serious contender for the presidential nomination.

In seconding the motion, State Representative Leonard Dickinson of Bemidji declared that "Harold E. Stassen is the one man the New Dealers are afraid of more than any other in the United States."

Sen. Ball Warns Of Pitfalls That Will Follow War

Indicting religion and politics for our failure to win the peace after World War I, Senator Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota yesterday warned of pitfalls to be avoided in preventing a repetition after this war.

These pitfalls, he said in a speech at the Washington Hotel, are the economic aspects, the split politics of the American Government regarding its foreign policy, and "the danger of an unjust peace."

The legislator, a Congregationalist by faith, addressed a Thanksgiving Week luncheon-seminar sponsored by the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital. That committee, of which Dr. Seth R. Brooks is general chairman, presented him with a Bible bearing signatures of the 200 guests. The Senator is coauthor of the Ball-Hatch-Burton-Hill postwar resolution.

Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, professor of Christian ethics at Union Theological Seminary, New York City, also spoke. Addressing the seminar sessions earlier were Rabbi Samuel Goldenson, former president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, and Dr. Jacques Maritain, Neo-Thomist philosopher and Catholic layman. Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld was seminar chairman.

Mine Owners, Labor Maps Pact on Lewis-Ickes Formula

By Ben W. Gilbert

Soft coal mine industry and labor representatives went to work in earnest yesterday to negotiate a new wage agreement patterned after the pact which Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes signed with President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, but there were indications that the same pact would face tough sledding before the War Labor Board if submitted jointly by operators and miners.

The negotiations started last week under the auspices of Ickes, but the negotiators marked time until yesterday because of the absence of War Labor Board approval of an interpretation of the Ickes-Lewis agreement submitted by Ickes.

WLB issued its decision Saturday, substituting a wage formula of its own for the one proposed by Ickes, thereby trimming Ickes proposal by 31 cents a week.

Representatives of the Southern Appalachian group of coal operators made a first appearance at the wage conference, making it representative of producers of more than two-thirds the Nation's coal tonnage. The "captive" mines, owned by the steel companies, were not represented.

WLB originally accepted the Ickes-Lewis pact subject to clarification with the reservation that adequate data on the amount of underground travel time must be presented before the same pact could be placed into effect to govern a return of the mines to their owners within the 60-day period provided by the Connally-Smith Act.

New Pay Scale Seen Reducing Absenteeism

Government officials hope the new Govrenment-miner coal wage contract will reduce absenteeism in the mines.

A new schedule of pay rates promulgated by Deputy Coal Mines Administrator Charles J. Potter makes it pay to stay on the job through the entire six-day week.

Miners will receive $8.50 a day for the first four days work each week, with the rate jumping to $10.31¼ for the fifth day and $12.75 for the sixth day, for a total of $57.06¼, compared to the old rate of $7 a day for five seven-hour days, excluding travel time and $10.50 for the sixth day of the week.

Since then, coal operators and some Government officials have cast doubts on the validity of Ickes' assumption that the miners actually spend an average of 45 minutes a day traveling underground. If the 45-minute figure is valid, the Government stands to receive an hour more work for the additional $1.50 a day which Lewis received.

However, if the figure is greater than 45 minutes, the same $1.50 would pay for proportionately less work under the Ickes-Lewis pact.

Some members of WLB—possibly a majority—are expected to insist that miners' earnings be adjusted downward if travel time is found to be substantially under the 45 minutes a day assumed by Ickes.

Board of Inquiry Named

A three-man committee, headed by Morris L. Cooke, former head of the Rural Electric Administration, has been appointed by President Roosevelt to determine the precise facts.

Cook, who headed the original WLB coal panel, stated yesterday that he hoped to get the necessary information collected within two weeks.

Requests are being made to each of the country's coal operators to submit the basic travel time facts of their mines, after securing an agreement on the facts with the local UMW union involved.

Cooke said the data would be gathered so that it could be analyzed in any way desired by the War Labor Board, by price areas, coal districts, or other geographical divisions.

WLB Chairman William H. Davis told reporters that approval of the figures in the Ickes-Lewis agreement was for the period of Government operation only.

"The commission (headed by Cooke) was set up to get the facts," Davis said, 'and certainly when the board comes to pass on any contract between the mine workers and the operators, they will make use of those facts."

Asked by a reporter if "the operators and miners are wasting their time by negotiating without having the facts," Davis replied.

"I have every reason to believe they have the facts."

In presenting his original demand for a $2-a-day wage increase, Lewis contended that underground travel time averaged 90 minutes a day. Coal operators later said that a survey of 75 per cent of the coal mines indicated that 82 minutes a day were spent traveling. The Bureau of Labor Statistics said in 1933 that travel time was 54 minutes and in 1936 that it was 48 minutes, but has gathered no data since that time.

Marines Storm New Pacific Isles

be the difficulty of landing guns and supplies through the heavy surf and the rough coral reef which completely surrounds the atoll except for one narrow passage into a lagoon. It is presumed the Marines were able to cross the reef only at high tide.

Beachheads were established Saturday, it was announced yesterday, and fighting continued, presumably at its heaviest on Tarawa, major enemy base in the Gilberts, where the landing parties met their stiffest resistance.

Only moderate opposition was encountered on Makin, said Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, supreme commander in the Central Pacific.

The invasion followed a sustained aerial offensive last week in which the landing points as well as other atolls were pounded by Army and Navy bombers. As far back as August and September there were dress rehearsals in the air or naval attacks on enemy positions in these chains as well as on Marcus, Wake and Nauru.

While Army Liberator bombers, from a still undisclosed base, took a diversionary slap at the Marshall Islands to the north, the American forces hit the coral sands of Makin and Tarawa. It was natural that heaviest resistance would come from Tarawa, for the enemy has a key air base there, and doubtless the stronger force made the assault there. The airfield is on Betio, westernmost islet of the southeastern tail of the atoll.

"Powerful units of all types of the Pacific fleet," said Admiral Nimitz, supported the twin thrusts. That would indicate a heavy bombardment of the enemy's positions and support of carrier planes when the amphibious forces took to their boats.

(Radio Tokyo broadcast a Japanese communique acknowledging the invasions which said heavy fighting was in progress.)

The scene of this action is some 2400 statute miles southwest of the Hawaiian Islands and 1600 miles southeast of the enemy's principal mid-Pacific base of Truk, and 1100 miles northeast of the Solomon Islands.

"more than 50 votes on a roll call."

The United Automobile Workers of America and the Washington League of Women Shoppers yesterday issued statements asking continuance of subsidies. Richard T. Frankensteen, vice president and director of aircraft for the former group, declared an increase in food prices at this time would have serious effects on the aircraft production program.

Women working in aircraft factories of the West Coast, he declared, make on the average of $30 a week and one out of every three hired quit their jobs "due to inflated food costs." With additional increases which the subsidy ban would bring, he said, many more would have to stay home to devote all their time to minute economies in the kitchen. "A vote against subsidies is a vote for runaway food prices," he said.

The shoppers' league, in a letter to House Majority Leader McCormack, declared a large proportion of consumers has not had a rise in income commensurate with "increased living costs and increasing taxation," and asked that food prices be "held at their present levels."

SEE THE UNITED STATES FIRST

"Thanks for making us the best-fed fighters on earth!"

OUR ARMED FORCES are getting 13 out of every 100 plates of food produced in the United States.

An American fighter needs 5-¼ pounds of the right food a day. That's 1-½ times the civilian ration. And he's getting it!

A three-months supply is held in reserve for men quartered in this country — and a nine-months supply for men overseas.

American housewives are making this possible, as they do their meal-planning and marketing with a cook-book in one hand and a ration-book in the other.

The skill and resourcefulness of American wives and mothers in solving their food problems is not new to Crosley.

For years, American women have been quick to appreciate the exclusive, added convenience of the patented Shelvador in Crosley Refrigerators. They like having shelves in the door — where eggs, fruit, bottled beverages, small vegetables and packaged foods can be kept within easy reach, at their fingertips.

The varying types of cold in Crosley Refrigerators, with separate compartments for different degrees of moisture, were appreciated by millions of American women to protect perishable foods.

So great was the demand for Crosley Refrigerators prior to Government restrictions of production, that they had the fastest growth in the industry. Sales had increased twice the industry average.

Whenever critical materials, facilities and man-power can be released for making refrigerators again, more millions of homes will have Crosley Refrigerators with the Shelvador.

Today, food is fighting for freedom, and the responsibility of every American is to see that we send adequate quantities of FOOD TO THE FRONT, for our Armed Forces and our Allies.

But tomorrow, when civilian production of Crosley Refrigerators is resumed, you will be able to get TWICE-AS-MUCH FOOD TO THE FRONT of your refrigerator . . . within easy reach . . . only in the Shelvador!

Investigation Of Gen. Patton Charge Sought

Representative Calvin D. Johnson (Republican) of Illinois, announced last night he will ask Chairman May (Democrat) of Kentucky, of the House Military Affairs Committee, to investigate charges of cruelty to an enlisted man by Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr.

Johnson said the investigation will be asked "in fairness to General Patton and the American public."

Johnson's statement came after Chairman Truman (Democrat) of Missouri indicated that his Senate War Investigating Committee would not inquire into why disciplinary action has not been taken against Patton.

The "suggestion" for a Truman investigation came from Drew Pearson, Washington columnist, after General Eisenhower's North African headquarters issued a flat denial of the charges. Pearson, who made the charge in a radio broadcast, said "I suggest that if General Eisenhower has not acted, as I was informed by high officials at the War Department, then the Truman Committee should investigate immediately."

Truman's Attitude

Truman said inquiries . . . o either military strategy or discipline are "within the jurisdiction of our committee." Any inquiry by the Senate Military Affairs Committee also is improbable, it was said.

The headquarters denial stated: "General Patton is commanding the United States Seventh Army, has commanded it since it was activated, and is continuing to command it.

"No reports have ever reached this headquarters of any soldier refusing to obey an order by General Patton.

"General Patton has never been reprimanded at any time by General Eisenhower or by anybody else in this theater."

Pearson, in his broadcast accused Patton of striking a soldier who was in a hospital bed, and of drawing a revolver on a medical officer who intervened.

Pearson said Patton had been relieved of his command.

Representative Coffee (Democrat) of Washington said an inquiry should be conducted immediately "because the American people are entitled to know whether Patton is or is not to be used in combat."

"The general has disappeared from sight since midsummer," he added, "and my folks, at least, would like to know what he's doing."

Senator Kilgore (Democrat) of West Virginia commented:

"When officers make mistakes they should not be shielded. It is important to note that the War Department has at yet not denied Pearson's story of General Patton's conduct in a Sicilian hospital."

Report From Algiers

The Associated Press reported from Algiers that correspondents were told they would not be permitted to send any information other than the headquarters statement they might have on the subject.

The Seventh Army has not been mentioned as participating in any fighting since the end of the Sicilian campaign.

Patton recently appeared before troops in North Africa in company with Eisenhower.

Patton is one of the most dynamic and colorful officers in the American Army. He has been called "the general who never lost a battle." He also has been given various nicknames denoting violence, such as "Old Blood and Guts."

In battle, Patton has driven the soldiers under him as hard as he has driven himself. Many times in the Sicilian campaign he sent exhausted and almost collapsing troops into battle for the final blow which took enemy positions.

Many officers believe that no other general in the American Army could have pushed soldiers so hard, and could have reached Messina over the most difficult terrain and against fierce enemy resistance in 38 days.

In the heat of battle, the general is contemptuous of his personal safety, and has exhibited highly emotional characteristics. He has been known to brea': into tears on occasion.

Britain Reveals Secret Arsenal

London, Nov. 22 (AP).—From an underground city carved out of solid rock and rivaling sections of the famous Maginot and Siegfried Lines will flow much of the ammunition to be used in the Allied invasion of Europe.

The existence of this huge bombproof arsenal, along with the fact tha the British started building it seven years ago, was made public toda, for the first time.

It has been one of this country's best kept war secrets and newsmen looked on in amazement as a war office official explained how some old, abandoned quarries were converted into a giant subterranean v arehouse for explosives.

Starting with a smal crew of experts in 1936, the number of workers was drawn from all ove England and grew into thousand- Hundreds of thousand- of tons of rock had to be moved and new tunnels c t linking old caves. All the workmen were sworn to secrecy.

All that was known about their molelike jobs was that they were working at "the dump." Hundreds of rumors spread about the place, but the public never knew exactly what was going on. The most persistent rumor was that it was an emergency food store. It was—food for guns.

One enters the underground city through what looks like an ordinary railway tunnel. The interior is a maze of tunnels, rail lines, conveyor belts, elevators, storage rooms, offices and barracks for workmen and guards.

"I was here three months before I could say I knew the place properly," said the commanding officer. A stranger gets hopelessly lost in five minutes.

There are a telephone exchange operated by girls, modern workshops, an air-conditioning system and an emergency generating plant powerful enough to provide power and light for a whole township.

Yet on emerging from the depths of the earth into daylight, one sees only peaceful pasture land and grazing cows.

G. M. Morris Will Talk

Beirut Mobs Occupy Hall Of Deputies

CAIRO, Nov. 22 (AP).—The Chamber of Deputies and police headquarters in Beirut were reported occupied today by crowds of demonstrators who were joined by police in the Lebanese capital.

Elsewhere in the small republic, which has been torn by disturbances as the result of its efforts to attain full sovereignity in the French mandate, the Lebanese flag flew.

A British official here said the crisis was by "no means over."

(An Algiers dispatch earlier in the day said a framework aimed toward the quick return of orderly government in Lebanon had been set up through action of the French Committee of National Liberation in reinstating President Bechara Khoury and promising to negotiate the question of full independence.)

Serious misgivings were caused among the Lebanese, according to an official British source, regarding an Algiers report that President Khoury must appoint new ministers. The President and Premier Riad Sohl arrived in Beirut this afternoon.

Strikes still progressed and partisan forces were reported concentrated in the hills behind Beirut, awaiting orders.

2 Dog Owners Fined $50 Each On Ban Violations

Two Prince Georges County dog owners paid $50 fines and costs each yesterday after their conviction on charges of having violated the quarantine on dogs in the county.

They are Mrs. Mary Carr of 4109 Tennyson rd., University Park, and Mary Hohense of Cool Spring rd., Takhoma Park.

During the past several weeks, police have been issuing personal summonses to persons who have allowed their dogs to run at large in violation of the quarantine. Heretofore all dog owners have been fined $50 each, but their sentences have been suspended by the court upon payment of $3.50 court costs.

Japs Hammer at Approaches Of City En Route to Changsha

Chungking, Nov. 22 (AP).—Japanese infantry, cavalry, artillery and aviation hammered at the approaches to Changteh today in an effort to blast open the way to the Hunan Province capital of Changsha where they previously have met three great defeats.

They also were reported bringing 10,000 troops to their base at Yochow, evidently in readiness to spring a two-way offensive from both the western and eastern shores of Tungting Lake toward Changsha, 50 miles south in central China.

The Chinese high command charged that the Japanese used poison gas on a large scale to balk Chinese counteroffensives.

Having fought their way across much of China's "rice bowl" west of Lake Tungting, the Japanese were throwing a large part of their force of 80,000 into a drive southeast of Tzeli, 30 miles northwest of Changteh.

Twenty miles southeast of Changteh they were laying siege to Hanshow in a threat to the road linking Changteh with Changsha.

With communications in the Changteh area in their hands, the Japanese would be in a position to prevent Chinese flank attacks such as trapped large Japanese forces in the previous campaigns for Changsha.

The Chungking communique said Chinese forces were attacking the invading columns from the side and rear and were hammering fiercely at Japanese bases.

American airmen, in support of the Chinese, bombed Japanese installations at Tzeli Saturday, starting many fires. In other forays the Americans bombed barracks and warehouses on Nampang Island off the China coast, and at the port of Swatow, and sank a gunboat and freighter and damaged five cargo ships in the China Sea.

2 Names Stand Out in Election

a. m. at the Episcopal Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, 16th and Newton sts. nw. The Rev. Flint Kellog is rector. Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 a. m.

Canon Theodore O. Wedel, warden of the Washington Cathedral's College of Preachers, last night voiced the opinion that, while "some local candidates undoubtedly will be nominated from the floor of the convention, there is little doubt but that the real race is between Dr. Dun and Chaplain Aldrich."

Dr. Wedel, whose own name is being mentioned as a possible nominee, went on to say that "from the point of view of many of us in the diocese, the spirit of the election has been very happy." He added that, as far as he knew, "there has been very little quarreling" over the report of the nominating committee that was headed by Justice Owen J. Roberts of the Supreme Court and senior warden at St. John's Church, Lafayette Square.

Among the local clergymen whose names may be presented for nomination from the floor today are the Rev. F. Bland Tucker, rector of St. John's Church, Georgetown, and brother of the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church; Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, rector of Epiphany Church; the Rev. Clyde Brown, diocesan missioner, and Dr. Charles T. Warner, rector of St. Alban's.

Election of a new bishop requires a majority of each of the two groups of approximately 100 lay and clerical deputies of the Washington Diocese. Dr. Franklin J. Bohanan, president of the convention and chairman of the diocesan standing committee, will preside at the sessions. His committee has been diocesan ecclesiastical authority since Bishop Freeman's death last May.

Meanwhile, expansion of the social service program of the diocese to serve the Capital's expanding wartime population also will be considered at today's meeting, although the bishopric election will be the main item of business.

taxes on U. S. citizens and corporations employed on the project.

Ickes wound up with the flat declaration that the property might not be worth "a nickel" after the war.

"It never would have been undertaken if we had had anything to say about it.

"We might as well save the 30 million dollars it is estimated it wil cost to complete it."

"It's not sound business judgment to buy something that is worth nothing and will have no value after the war, in order to benefit the Imperial Oil Co. and the Canadian government."

Calling for a reexamination of the contract, Ickes said:

"I don't think that it was in the interest of the Government. If we had been consulted, we never would have approved such a contract."

He made this statement after Truman told him that postwar disposition of the project would rest with a Canadian and an American representative, subject to certain conditions.

The American Government is to pay $1.25 a barrel for the first 1,500,000 barrels, Truman said, with future withdrawals to be paid for at 50 cents less.

"That is the closest any of us have come to the contract," Ickes declared.

Ickes' sentiments were concurred in by Representative Gavin (Republican), Pennsylvania, who said "there are a billion barrels of oil in the earth waiting to be coaxed out" in his home district and called for immediate "scrapping" of the Canol project.

Father Draft Bill Passed by Senate

draft pool, and nullifying the WMC "work or fight" order, the bill which finally cleared Congress yesterday authorized the President to delegate Selective Service authority to the director of Selective Service only.

"The principle that there should be one responsible administrative authority allocating manpower between military and civilian needs is basic in all well-operated programs," McNutt wrote Senator Edwin C. Johnson, (Democrat) of Colorado, shortly before the Senate acted.

"Make It Impossible"

"The proposed amendment would make it impossible for the President to provide for the integration of Selective Service policy with the manpower program as a whole. . . . Let us hope that if it is passed, the President's critics will not then attack him on the ground that "administrative responsibility is divided."

Johnson read McNutt's three-page letter to the Senate, but it hardly caused a ripple. Vainly, Senate Majority Leader Barkley suggested that Congress was exceeding its power in forbidding the President to vest draft authority in any other official than the Selective Service director.

Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican) of Connecticut ridiculed this argument. "Of course we have the authority," said Austin. "We created this (Selective Service) law. . . . We meant to restore the authority where we originally put it. Have no doubt about that."

Senator Bennett Champ Clark (Democrat) of Missouri said Congress wasn't slapping at McNutt, but was "getting tired of this ring around the rosy" between McNutt and Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey. The disputed provision, Clark said, was intended solely to end confusion and fix responsibility.

Eleventh hour differences over administration of the law almost overshadowed the initial objective of the bill—easing up of draft pressure on fathers. This the bill proposed to accomplish by placing all undeferred childless me nahead of fathers on the draft call, on a statewide as well as national basis.

Whether the bill actually would slow down the father draft was problematical, since the legislation carries an "escape clause" prohibiting any interference with the usual regular and orderly flow of manpower into the armed forces.

WPB Prepares to Act on Lag Of Steel Plate Production

Cleveland, Nov. 22 (AP).—The War Production Board "is deeply concerned with a serious lag in production of steel plates produced by the Cleveland plants of the Republic Steel Corp.," Regional WPB Chairman John C. Virden said today, "and will take such action as the situation warrants."

Virden's statement came after Republic declared a slowdown at the concern's continuous strip mill—converted to production of ship plate for the duration—resulted in loss of 30,000 tons since October 10. William F. Donovan, district of the CIO United Steelworkers Union, said the main cause of the difficulty was appointment as supervisors of "people who don't know anything about the job." Republic said "experts in their field were hired."

Most Critical Item

"The reported figures show a lag in production over the past month of 30 per cent, with the condition growing steadily worse," the WPB official said in a statement. "Ship plates, at the present moment, are the most critical item of steel production and the armed services are asking that all effort be put forth to increase production. There is an unquestionable and inexcusable slowdown in production of plates at this mill, which can easily prove to be very costly to the war effort."

Dye Workers Walk Out

New York, Nov. 22 (AP).—Sam Baron, general manager of the New York joint board, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), announced today that 500 employes of nine yarn dye plants in the city failed to report for work.

He said the work stoppage was against the advice of union leaders, and was in accordance with a vote last Saturday not to report for work, as a protest against a War Labor Board decision denying pay rises negotiated with employers.

470 Workers Idle

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 22 (AP).—W. S. Pierce, commissioner for the Department of Labor's conciliation service, said today his office was attempting to work out a company-union agreement aimed at ending a work stoppage at the Spaulding operation of Republic Steel Corp.

The regional War Labor Board office in Atlanta said the dispute, involving approximately 470 men employed at the Spaulding concentration plant and red ore mine, began last Wednesday as a result of the discharge of four workmen.

Last night the regional WLB canceled a hearing scheduled for today on wage demands of the concentration plant employes because the men had not returned to work.

Strike Notice Filed

By the Associated Press

The CIO Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, Local 629, at the basic magnesium plant, Las Vegas, Nev., filed a 30-day strike notice with the Government yesterday, contending the management refuses to bargain although the union won a representation election.

NOTICE:
To Waste Paper Dealers, Schools, Boy Scouts, Charities, Local Salvage Committees, and Other Groups active in Waste Paper Collection.

Mills Have Pledged to Purchase all the WASTE PAPER that is Collected until Feb. 15, 1944

Due to the alarming shortage of waste paper, leading paperboard mills throughout the country have made an unprecedented pledge to the Salvage Division of the War Production Board. These mills, engaged in essential war production of containers and war weapons made from waste paper, have agreed to purchase all the waste paper that can be collected in the United States at least until February 15, 1944. This means that waste paper dealers, in turn, can assure schools, Boy Scouts, charities, salvage committees and other groups active in collection, that all waste paper collected from the public will find an immediate market.

The public is urged not only to save every scrap of waste paper, but to help solve the collection problem which exists because of manpower, gasoline and truck shortages. Save as large an accumulation as possible. Stack and pack your waste paper in neat bundles, separating newspapers, magazines, boxes and wrapping papers. Start saving today . . . to send your waste paper to war.

Approved by War Production Board. Paid for by Industry.

J. R. Parten Quits As Transportation Head of PAW

J. R. Parten, head of the transportation division of the Petroleum Administration for War since April, 1942, resigned yesterday to return to his private oil business in Texas.

In a statement praising those with whom he had served here, Parten said that his resignation was necessitated by the participation of his companies in the 100-octane aviation gasoline refining and crude oil production program.

He is president of the Woodly Petroleum Co. of Houston, and chairman of the board of directors of the Premier Oil Refining Co. at Longview.

Petroleum Administrator Harold Ickes, in announcing the resignation, expressed appreciation of Parten's share in the "complete rebuilding of the oil transportation system."

Combined Operations

BEGIN 6,000 MILES BEHIND THE LINES

While land, sea and air forces combine striking power to blast out new gains . . . 6,000 miles behind the lines another "combined operation", gigantic in scope, is being carried out hourly by the united efforts of American railroads. Tasks, impossible for a single railroad, are being well handled through the combined efforts of all.

Today, over the nation's vast network of track, trains move swiftly, freely . . . as though over one mammoth rail line. Cars, engines, all facilities are transferred from one railroad to another to meet emergency demands.

Individual operators have pooled valuable knowledge of time-saving methods and efficiencies. Now, each railroad can draw on the combined knowledge and experience of all to fully utilize its facilities.

The armed services, governmental officials, shippers and the traveling public are cooperating wholeheartedly to prevent costly "bottle-necks" and assure swift handling of troops and vital goods.

Linking thirteen great states with the Nation, the Baltimore & Ohio, with 11,000 miles of track, is an important part of America's united transportation system. With these vast facilities, 70,000 B & O men and women work with one aim. They are keeping the channels of rail supply open . . . speeding the goods and the men necessary to assure a quicker, final Victory.

. . . Before Post-War Farm Equipment "Rusts Out"

DOWN on the farm, where your food comes from, rust eats away the life of farm equipment before its time. As a result, too-frequent and expensive replacement adds to the cost of all food production.

But now a miracle of protection has been developed which helps metal resist rust up to four times as long and thus promises farm equipment a new lease on life.

This miracle is "Corronizing," a simple, inexpensive process that armors metal against ruinous rust. It has been developed, tested and proved through years of research in the laboratories of the Standard Steel Spring Company. When Victory is won, a great variety of "Corronized" products will begin to affect your daily life in hundreds of money-saving ways.

On the farm you'll find "Corronized" metals in water tanks, pails, dairy and poultry equipment, fences, ventilators and sheet metal buildings. "Corronizing" will also make window screens last years longer—give up to four times the service for your money in garbage cans, measuring cups, roof gutters and automobile parts.

Right now "Corronized" products are not available . . . cannot be until Victory is won. Today, Standard Steel is making armor plate, bombs and other war material. But after Victory, it will pay you to look for the "Corronized" label on metal products you buy. This label will be your assurance of more service for your money . . . of products that last up to four times as long.

Labor Storm Over Mosley Release Rises

London, Nov. 22 (AP).—British war workers' resentment over the release from prison of Sir Oswald Mosley, prewar Fascist leader, reached a new pitch today and it was agreed generally that Home Secretary Herbert Morrison will face a barrage of sharp questions from Laborites when Commons next reconvenes.

More and more protests poured in, notably from the industrial Midlands and Scotland.

Signatures on street corner petitions headed "Back to jail with Mosley," were said to have passed the quarter of a million mark in a west district of London alone.

Deputations to Commons

Mass deputations to Commons, factory lunch hour meetings and a call for demonstrations in Trafalgar Square also were reported.

A statement by shop stewards of London war factories said the workers were "not prepared yet" to lay down their tools "because we don't intend to play Hitler's game." The stewards adopted a resolution requesting the National Council of Labor to summon an emergency conference of the whole working class movement.

Representatives of four labor parties today demanded the rearrest of Mosley and his immediate trial as a war criminal.

The tenor of criticism likely to confront Morrison was shown in a speech by G. L. Reakes, Independent M. P., who said:

"Sentimental solicitude with a class distinction background emanating from the Home Office contrasts with the vigorous interpretation of the defense of the realm act when and where common people are involved. Many a better man than Mosley has died in prison."

Others Not Released

Reakes recalled that M. K. Gandhi and other political prisoners were not released "even at death's door."

An Evening Standard cartoon depicted war prisoner Rudolf Hess shouting, "But you must let me out. I'm a sick man."

The Evening News, commenting on Morrison's promise that "a full explanation" would be given Parliament, said "the Mosley affair is likely to raise more of a storm than all other matters put together, serious though they are. Morrison is expected to win, but at the expense of his steadily-falling reputation."

The government has explained Mosley and his wife, imprisoned since 1940, were released because of Sir Oswald's failing health.

Education in Services Will Be Discussed

Education in the armed forces and its relation to postwar educational goals will be the subject of a panel discussion to be held under auspices of the Guidance and Personnel Association of the District of Columbia at 8 o'clock tonight in the National Education Association Building, 1201 16th st. nw.

Participating in the discussion will be Dr. Francis J. Brown, consultant for the American Council on Education; Lieut. George T. Donahue, officer in charge of the counseling and advisory services of the Navy's educational services program, and Fred M. Fowler, specialist on occupational information and guidance for the United States Office of Education.

Gas Shortage Seen Growing More Acute

While temporary relief from the current severe gasoline shortage may be forthcoming, if additional supplies are moved in immediately, industry experts warned yesterday that the driving public could expect a still more severe famine within a few weeks.

A large number of stations here were out of gasoline, they reported, and a spokesman for the PAW said the same tight situation prevailed over what he called the Middle Eastern States.

In an effort to relieve the shortage here, officials of the PAW announced they were making efforts to obtain an additional allocation for the city, but up to late last night were unable to say if this was successful.

Several Factors

Both industry and governmental officials were unable to give any explanation of the shortage. They all agreed it was a combination of several factors.

One of these, of course, has been the issuance of more rationing coupons than there has been gasoline to meet.

Another factor has been just plain black market use of stolen or counterfeit coupons.

Another has been the comparative slowness of gasoline movement in tank cars.

Sidetracked for Fuel Oil

Another has been the reduction in gasoline shipments in order to move fuel oil for heating.

Another has been the failure of production to keep up with the demand.

Without being able to give any one reason which could be said to be mainly responsible, all industry and Government spokesman could say was that there is a real shortage now and a likelihood of it being worse after temporary relief is obtained, if it is obtained.

Furman D. Ellenburg

Furman D. Ellenburg, 44, father of 12-year-old James W. Ellenburg who was crushed to death last August under the wheels of a Treasury Department truck, died Sunday at Mount Alto Hospital. A former auto mechanic, he is survived by his wife and nine children.

Although a veteran of World War I, Mr. Ellenburg had requested that he be buried in George Washington Memorial Cemetery beside his son rather than in Arlington. He had been ill for many months before his son was killed, but had continued to work until he collapsed and was taken to Emergency Hospital. He was released from the hospital only a few days before the fatal accident. At that time the Salvation Army hearing of the plight of the family, sent Mr. Ellenburg to Mount Alto and took care of the family's needs.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Chambers funeral home.

Court records show Posey was charged more than 10 times with rum running and dope peddling, but had served only six months in jail. In the other cases the charges were nolle prossed or Posey received suspended sentences.

Possession and Sale

In the three-day trial which resulted in his latest conviction, Posey was charged with the illegal possession and sale of more than 3000 grains of heroin diluted from 12 to 50 times with milk sugar.

Prosecution was by Assistant United States Attorney John L. Ingoldsby. The case was investigated by Federal Bureau of Narcotics agents headed by LeRoy Morrison, agent in charge of the Washington field office.

George B. Galliand, 42, former assistant secretary-treasurer of the Manhattan Laundry Co., received a two- to six-year prison term for embezzling more than $25,000 of his company's funds. He pleaded guilty to the charge, stating he spent the money at the race tracks.

Subnormal Thanksgiving Meal In View With Food Prices Up

Many tradition-minded Washingtonians, who can't envision Thanksgiving without turkey, yesterday resigned themselves to holiday dinner in restaurants as beginning-of-the-week shopping tours indicated shortage in birds, onions, cranberries and butter.

But to Washington's predominantly Government worker population, it will make little difference, anyway, since Federal offices will treat Thursday as a workday, making the usual family reunion treks impossible. Transportation officials anticipated holiday travel would merely equal the proportions of weekend traffic, with servicemen on leave buying most of the tickets.

Even those with families in the vicinity of Washington won't find Thanksgiving get-togethers feasible for gas dealers' supplies have hit a new low. Many of the stations will remain open on Thursday, however.

Federal Employes to Work

America's second wartime Thanksgiving will be a holiday for school children, District government employes and workers in retail stores and banks, although Federal employes will stay at their desks.

Of the major grocery stores, only Safeway outlets will keep regular hours this week, with the exception of holiday closing, while A. & P. stores will remain open till 8 p. m. both Tuesday and Wednesday and other stores will close later on the holiday eve for last-minute shoppers. Last night District department stores kept late shopping night hours usually restricted to Thursdays.

Libraries to Be Closed

All agencies of the Washington Public Library will also be closed.

Many District housewives will not be roasting turkey this Thanksgiving, since the shortage of traditional birds indicated a few weeks ago is even more critical. Dealers had anywhere from 2 per cent to 15 per cent fewer turkeys for sale this season, but promised disappointed shoppers that the picture will be different come Christmas.

But those whose early shopping has provided them with the proper holiday fixin's have found the cost approximately double that of the peace years. Turkey prices, for instance, are averaging 55 to 60 cents, so that even those who found birds for sale weren't pleased with the situation. Rationing also complicated dinner arrangements this year.

Servicemen to Celebrate

Unable to join their families, servicemen and women on leave here will celebrate instead at USO clubs throughout the city where menus will include dancing and games as well as turkey dinners.

A barbecued pig and a roast turkey will be on the table at the USO Penthouse Club, YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw., and carving time is set at 6 p. m. Open house there will be 2 to 11 p. m., with an informal dance, 8:30 to 11 p. m. The party will be resumed at 11:30 p. m. with a 3-hour celebration for night workers.

Two turkeys will be cooked and carved by other USO hostesses, with servicemen's assistance, at the NCCS-USO Club at 1912 North Capitol st., 8 p. m. Another buffet supper, with dancing and games, will be in the club operated by the NCCS at 1814 N st. nw.

Dance and Party

A Thanksgiving dance will be held at the servicewomen's USO, 1911 H st. nw., 8:30 to 11 p. m. while a wishbone party is scheduled at the lounge at 6th st. and Maryland ave. ne., 8 to 11 p. m.

At the Salvation Army-USO, 8th st. and Market space n.w., the monthly birthday party, honoring all guests born in November, will be celebrated along with Thanksgiving, 8:30 to 11 p. m. An astrologer will tell fortunes, and a guitar singer is also on the entertainment list.

Other clubs have scheduled programs for later in the week, as the whole District plans at least minor celebrations in keeping with a wartime Thanksgiving.

Europe, If Given Start, Will Try To Repay Debts, Masaryk Says

The occupied countries want to work and pay to the limit of their ability after relief "pushes them in the right direction" instead of regarding the giver nations as a "permanent Santa Claus," Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovakian member of the Council of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said last night at Constitution Hall.

He was one of four members of UNRRA who came here from Atlantic City to report on the conference at the first meeting of this winter's series of the United Nations Forum. Other speakers included: Carlos Davila, Chilean member of the Council; P. A. Kerstens, the Netherlands representative, and Tingfu F. Tsiang, the Chinese member.

Secretary of State Hull called on all peace-loving nations to resolve now "to construct an international organization so strong and effective that never again can ruthless tyrants make a serious bid to conquer and enslave the world." In his written message, read by Carlton Savage, general consultant for the State Department, Secretary Hull urged "a rededication of ourselves with increased vigor to carrying on the war."

Explaining that he had heard expressions of fear that Europe is going to depend permanently on outside help, Masaryk assured the audience of 3300 persons:

"Europe is not going to play the role of a sick and poor relative who cannot look after herself. I am convinced that if UNRRA, after the first necessary relief administration to the occupied countries, will give up a concerted push in the right direction, the results will justify or undertakings."

Davila said that while the UNRRA plans to deliver 45 billion tons of supplies and spend two billion dollars in repatriating and resettling 25 billion people seem frightening, the amount calculated at this time for an immensely larger task is less than the money actually spent in relief after the first World War.

Kerstens said that the people of occupied Europe who have gone through the "purgatory of purifying suffering" have reached such moral and spiritual greatness that they will remoralize the rest of the world.

Dr. Tsiang evaluated China's relief needs, listing transportation facilities, medical and health articles, cotton cloth, food and agricultural rehabilitation, and restoration of city power plants and water works. Senator Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island, presided.

Gold Brick

So that our readers may have access to a view at variance with our own, we print on this page today a lusty denunciation of our editorial of November 20 entitled "H.R. 7." We cannot refrain from pointing out, however, that the arguments used by Katherine Shryver, executive secretary of the National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax, are shot through with false assumptions. The issue cries out for candid deliberation. It is made the subject of impassioned and reckless crusading.

Our critic makes the flat statement that "there is no denying that the poll tax discriminates against the Negroes, more than against the whites," since Negroes are at the bottom of the income scale in the South. Here is a basic falsity. To say that a tax which applies to everyone discriminates against one race is to play fast and loose with the intrinsic meaning of that word. Presumably our critic means that if all the nonvoters of the poll-tax States were allowed to vote, more Negroes than whites would be enfranchised. But everyone with any understanding of the issue knows that repeal of the poll tax would not enfranchise the Negroes of the South, except possibly in Tennessee. The greatest obstacles to Negro voting in the South are the education tests and the primary systems which deny colored voters the opportunity of joining the only party which ever has a chance of electing a candidate. These obstacles would remain—much as we deplore them—and their operation would probably be tightened with repeal of the poll tax.

Let us give an example. When Louisiana abolished its poll tax the Negroes were not enfranchised. Their political rights there are as flagrantly withheld as they are in Mississippi where the poll tax still prevails. The effect of poll-tax repeal would be to enfranchise only the poor whites of the South and thus to sharpen the discrimination against colored citizens. Considering the extravagance of its claims, we are rather surprised that the Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax does not also contend that its bill would enfranchise the Negroes of the District of Columbia.

We have fought consistently for abolition of the poll tax by constitutional means. We shall continue to do so. In the meantime, however, we do not intend to be swept off our feet, as some members of Congress have been swept off theirs, by fantastic arguments in favor of an unconstitutional bill. Certainly minority groups should be the first to see that their interest will not be served by breaching the Constitution, which is the greatest safeguard of their rights, to obtain what would unquestionably prove to be a gold brick.

Demobilization

Congress appears to be deeply impressed with its responsibility for formulating policies in respect to cancellation of war contracts, industrial demobilization and reconversion, disposal of war surpluses and related issues. It is to be complimented upon its forehandedness. A report released a few days ago by the Truman Committee offering tentative suggestions for the solution of such problems has been followed by a preliminary report of a special committee on postwar economic planning headed by Senator George. Like the Truman report, it emphasizes the need for legislative action in determination of broad general policies. It also calls for the creation of administrative machinery to coordinate the postwar activities of the various agencies "handling the mechanics" of the problems of postwar adjustment.

Mr. Baruch's appointment as demobilization adviser to Director Byrnes of the OWM has raised a question as to the part to be played by other Government agencies in assisting postwar industrial reconversion. Mr. Baruch's own testimony, as well as the conclusions set forth by the preliminary report of the George Committee, indicate that there need be no conflict of authority or overlapping of functions. Mr. Baruch, acting in accordance with certain broad principles laid down by Congress, could serve as an over-all policy-maker, while the various contracting and procurement agencies of Government could, as the George report states, be the "operating agencies to accomplish termination of their respective contracts and to dispose of their respective surpluses" in conformity with these over-all policies.

There is danger that too much time may be spent in preliminary surveys by congressional committees when the need for action is imperative. Already the Truman and George Committees seem to be going over much the same ground, while a number of House committees are covering segments of the same field. A joint committee composed of members of the House and Senate would stand a much better chance of working out a program that would be accepted by Congress with a minimum amount of delay. Haste is essential because we must anticipate and find solutions for the problems that will confront us when peace comes. To rely upon makeshift opportunistic methods of dealing with postwar industrial problems would be disastrous. Moreover, Government agencies are daily confronted by problems comparable to those that will have to be dealt with in the postwar period. They are already greatly in need of the guidance of an over-all coordinating agency.

Invitation To Tax

Plainly the statement of the Ways and Means Committee in reporting to the House a tax bill which would provide just about a fifth of the amount requested by the Treasury is defensive. The committee maintains that it has tried to raise as much revenue "as it is believed can reasonably be borne by the taxpayer at this time without unduly disturbing our economy." Yet the committee report concedes that there are more than 100 billion dollars of accumulated individual savings held in the form of war savings bonds, cash surrender value of life insurance, savings deposits, idle currency and demand deposits. From 50 to 60 billion dollars of that huge reserve, it acknowledges, "represents potential excess buying power, because this amount is clearly in excess of normal savings." It further admits that current estimates of the net inflationary gap—that is, the difference between total income payments to individuals, less personal taxes and regular forms of saving, and the value of consumable goods—vary between 10 and 25 billion dollars. Isn't that an invitation to tax?

The committee by the mere act of citing these figures has refuted its own assertion that the limit of taxable capacity has almost been reached. The existence of such a vast volume of savings—a volume that is constantly being augmented—emphasizes the necessity of greatly increased taxes to put a stop to the abnormally rapid growth of "potential excess buying power." To be sure, a brake can be imposed by economy in governmental expenditures. That is tremendously important, though only if the committee insists on immediate cuts on our inflated war contracts. But, no matter how drastic, economy is not to be regarded as a substitute for adequate taxation. The two should go hand in hand. Effective price control, rationing and wage control are likewise essential to keep excess purchasing power from boosting prices. But taxes alone can prevent cash reserves from accumulating and making it increasingly difficult to hold prices down.

Let us now look at the bill in detail. The committee has contented itself with minor adjustments in individual income taxes that will produce negligible amounts of new revenue. The Victory tax has been made an integral part of the income tax system, and this will result in some formal changes in rate schedules and reduction of taxes in the lowest income groups. However, by providing for the payment of certain minimum taxes above exemption levels, the committee has tried to keep on the tax rolls a considerable number of persons now subject only to the Victory tax, instead of dropping them as the Treasury had foolishly proposed. Corporate excess profits taxes have been increased 5 per cent, invested capital credits have been reduced, while specific exemptions allowed in computing excess profits have been raised. However, the committee refused, quite rightly, to raise corporate normal and surtax rates on the ground that it might seriously affect the war production of smaller companies.

The remainder of the revenue to be provided under the new tax bill is to be derived from increasing excise taxes on a limited number of luxuries and semiluxuries. Nearly a third of the returns are expected to come from a 50 per cent increase in the tax on distilled spirits. The committee takes comfort in the belief that the high rate will not encourage moonshining because of wartime shortages of sugar and copper. We trust this optimism is justified, but evidence of growing lawlessness in the industry is conducive to skepticism. Other increases in existing excises on such items as jewelry, furs, luggage, toilet preparations, telegraph and telephone messages produce few surprises, though one may question the wisdom of singling out a few categories of goods for extra heavy taxation while other classes, no less essential, are ignored.

In our opinion the committee presents a strong case against attempting to obtain any large amount of new revenue from direct taxes on individuals and corporations. In the highest income brackets taxes are already eating into capital. And it is pointed out that under existing laws, with the carryover of the 1942 tax to be paid, no individual will have more than $25,000 left, assuming his income has remained constant and his uncanceled tax has been paid out of current income. The logical conclusion to be drawn from all the negative arguments advanced in support of a wretchedly inadequate tax bill is that we should turn to indirect general sales taxes as the one feasible means of mopping up the excess purchasing power created by past failure of tax inadequately. The demonstration of that failure is the spending spree on which the entire country has been launched out of war-created incomes.

United Command

There is a determined movement afoot in Congress to dismantle the Office of Price Administration. Legislators who appear to be indifferent or oblivious to the threat of inflation are striving to parcel out the job of price control among a number of unrelated agencies. Representative Disney wants to turn the job of regulating oil prices over to Secretary Ickes. Representative Calvin Johnson urges that control of coal prices be placed in the same hands. The Republican Food Study Committee is talking vociferously again of entrusting the determination of food prices to the food administrator. If these measures are adopted, OPA will have been completely scuttled. And we shall have lost our checkrein on the cost of living.

Price control is simply not divisible. The price of coal is intimately related to the price of wheat. Indeed, no major item in the cost of living can become more expensive without affecting all the other items in the index. Ours is a complex economy, not only because of the immense variety of factors it contains but also because these factors are inextricably interdependent. To divorce them from one another is inevitably to throw them out of balance. Under such a system, responsibility for increases in the cost of living could be fixed nowhere.

The men charged with encouraging production are, moreover, peculiarly unsuited to the task of price control. Secretary Ickes provides a good example of their indifference to price increases. His method of inducing a greater production of oil was to seek a rise of 35 cents a barrel in the ceiling price of that commodity. Similarly he has had no hesitation in demanding a higher price for coal. This, of course, is precisely why the Congressmen from the States producing coal and oil are eager to thrust price control into his care. They are apparently more interested in getting higher prices for some of their constituents than in holding the defense line against inflation. The line can be held effectively only by a united command responsible for every sector of it and determined to hold its entire length against all pressures.

Word From Moscow

The Soviet Union always has been an exemplar of a nation with a policy and a fearlessness in the expression of it. Another clear outline of Soviet policy is contained in last Friday's issue of Isvestzia. The paper takes sharply to task certain British journals which, on the basis of the accomplishments at Moscow, said that the Soviet Union has become wedded to the development of federations in Europe. The paper retorts that the British are in error. "The premature and possibly artificial hitching of small countries to theoretically planned groups," says the official newspaper of the Kremlin, "would be pregnant with dangers both for the countries themselves and for the future peaceful development of Europe." At first the statement was thought to be a flat rejection of federations in Europe. But a reading of the entire editorial, which appears in Saturday's Daily Worker, doesn't bear that interpretation. Isvestzia feels only that federation on the heels of the war would be premature. Certainly federations could not be negotiated by governments-in-exile which "won't be able to insure to the full extent the expression of the real will of their people." There would be the same handicap standing in the way of action by any immediate postwar governments in the small countries. Only after a stabilization process "can the discussion of the question of federations assume a fruitful character."

So the evolution of the small nations into federations is not ruled out. It would be surprising if it were. To arrest the growth of nations into federations in this dwindling world would be as if a child were to be kept in a Procrustean bed of childhood. Growth is the law of life, of nations as well as of individuals. But there is prudence in letting federation take form from the grassroots during the cooling off period of the post-Hitler era. Why, however, should Isvestzia make such a point of an elementary conclusion? Evidently the latent fear has not yet been expunged in Moscow of a cordon sanitaire imposed partly around the Soviet Union from outside. Indeed, Isvestzia says "the Soviet point of view resolutely rejects all attempts to revive a policy of cordon sanitaire against the U.S.S.R. under any guise whatever." There has been ground for this latter day Russian suspicion in our own flirtation with Otto of Hapsburg and in Mr. Churchill's assurances, now repudiated, in favor of King George of Greece. Let the people decide. There is no reason to see any Machiavellianism in the abrupt rebuke which the Kremlin newspaper has administered to the British commentators.

SNOW IN THE VILLAGE

The snow has come to my village,
And its fall is good on the brown earth,
And the barren furrows fill with silent life,
And the wolf driven from its lair
Hunts the shadow in the night.
The snow has come to my village,
And the animals sing in their sheltering warmth,
And the hay is sweet with a musky summer,
And the winter sleeps in the empty loneliness.
The snow has come to my village,
And the fire dies in the hungry embers,
And the dog dreams of a forgotten chase,
And a boy hears tomorrow's snows
And sleeps.
The snow has come to my village.

Poll Tax

A Communication

THE POST in its editorial of November 20 has charged that the supporters of HR 7, the bill to abolish the poll tax, are using the arguments of demagogues. It seems to prefer exercises in constitutional logic.

The Post claims to be against the poll tax. Yet it takes the position of favoring an approach which satisfies every vestige of feudalism in American politics. A constitutional amendment, requiring the approval of the Legislatures of at least 36 States, would serve only to delay the abolition of the poll tax. It would take only the eight poll-tax States and five additional States to block the passage of a constitutional amendment.

What is the "sloppy practice" in passing an act whose constitutionality may then be tested in the courts? Overwhelming precedent supports this method of procedure, grounded as it is in our system of checks and balances.

Political Life

The Post makes little of the gagging of 10 million citizens in eight poll-tax States, implying that all 10 million would not vote anyway. It ignores the vast stultifying influence on the common man's participation in political life exerted by the poll-tax laws. More important, it flaunts the accepted principles of the Atlantic Charter.

Let's face the facts. In 1942 the average vote cast in a poll-tax congressional district was 3 per cent of the population, in the average of nonpoll-tax district 25 per cent of the population or more than eight times as many citizens voted

This means not only that Congressmen and Senators in the poll-tax States are elected by a trivial minority of their constituents, but it also has far-reaching effects in cheapening the value of the vote in nonpoll-tax States. Thus, more votes were cast in 1942 in the election of one Illinois Representative than were cast in the election of all 50 poll-tax Congressmen.

The poll tax is a national issue because poll-tax Congressmen are almost totally independent of the people of their States and are elected and reelected to office. Seventeen poll-tax Congressmen have been in Congress 20 years or more, and since seniority determines control of congressional committees, these Congressmen have a disproportionate and unwarranted influence on legislation affecting the Nation.

The Post minimizes the significance of the amount of money required to meet the poll tax, pointing out that "only in the four cases" where it is cumulative is the poll tax burdensome. But it takes two weeks or 11 working days for the average Mississippian to earn enough to pay his own and his wife's poll tax, if they have been unable to pay the previous year. There is no denying that the poll tax discriminates against the Negroes more than against the whites, since the overwhelming fact is that the Negro population is almost uniformly the lowest income group in the Southern States.

Sound Jurists

To take refuge in the contention that HR 7 is unconstitutional is to view the Constitution entirely apart from its historic role. All sound jurists recognize that the Constitution is fundamentally an instrument to protect liberty, not to abridge it. Only the narrowest view of the Constitution can sanction a cash price as a "qualification" for voting.

But the issue, after all, is not one of constitutional legalisms. The down to earth reality is that America is today tolerating a policy that makes a mockery of our war aims. Supporters of the fight to abolish the poll tax need not resort to the "demagogy" of pointing out that the families of men who are laying down their lives for the four freedoms are nevertheless barred at home from electing their representatives; for the principles for which men from every State are fighting are made hollow by the continued existence of the poll tax.

If we favor abolishing the poll tax, let us do so with the directness of action that befits these critical days. To delay is to drain our reservoir of good will among the oppressed people of the world and to strengthen our enemies within. To pass HR 7 at once is to show the world that we really mean what we're fighting for.

Legal Religion

A legal religion has been the bane of Christianity and a constant perplexity to the State. Those who believe that the kingdom of God can be established on earth by involuntary means and methods and gradually ushered into the world by social, economic and moral reforms which are sustained by the police power of the State, are advocating a policy that is diametrically opposed to the ideals of Jesus Christ whom they are seeking to honor. History teaches us that a legal religion promulgated under the united auspices of church and state kills the spirituality of the church and frustrates the peaceful functions of the state. Such an unholy alliance will hinder rather than promote the cause of peace.

Wheels Of Destiny

By Barnet Nover

A Meeting Of The "Big Three"

ASIDE from the principals and their closest advisers, no one can speak with any certainty regarding the agenda of that Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference which, according to persistent and undenied rumors, is soon about to convene. Like the place of meeting and the time, the agenda is a carefully guarded secret.

Because of its very nature, however, such a meeting will have to deal, directly or indirectly, with all paramount issues of concern to Great Britain, the United States and Russia, which means, in effect, of concern to all of the United Nations. For the three men, between them, literally hold the destiny of the world in their hands.

So, inevitably, their meeting will be both a council of war and a conference on the peace.

AS A COUNCIL of war the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference will have a relatively easy time of it.

The one point upon which the three powers are in most complete agreement is that the war must be fought until total victory has been achieved and that everything should be done that can be done to hasten that outcome. And today far better than in the past Great Britain, the United States and Russia are in a position to coordinate their efforts on that score.

The differences regarding strategy that once clouded the relations between Russia and her Western partners have been dissolved by time and the march of events. The suspicions that these differences once gave rise to were finally liquidated at Moscow.

IT IS TRUE that despite the fact that Russian strategy, on the one hand, and Anglo-American strategy, on the other, were worked out in isolation, these strategies have nonetheless dovetailed in remarkable degree.

Allied operations in the Mediterranean and in the air over Germany were of real help to the Russians in their winter offensive of 1942 and their summer and autumn offensives this year. The Red Army's westward advance made the Anglo-American task in Africa, Sicily, Italy and Western Europe easier.

A complete dovetailing of Anglo-American-Russian strategies at this time would undoubtedly speed the inevitable German collapse. For the sake of the many millions of subjugated peoples who are approaching the end of their physical and psychic reserves it is of vital importance that the final concerted assault of the Reich be not delayed a moment longer than is absolutely unavoidable.

BUT IF WAR will not wait, peace will not wait, either.

One of the great mistakes made in the last war was the failure of the Allied and Associated Powers to reach agreement beforehand regarding the terms of peace.

True, there were Woodrow Wilson's Fourteen Points with their promise of a decent and reasonable peace and of a world order from which the specter of war would forever be banished. But it was not until the armistice negotiations with Germany that the United States made any formal effort to get the Allies to agree to the Fourteen Points as the basis of peace.

Indeed, we were so little prepared for peace when the war ended that two valuable months had to be wasted before the peace conference could even be assembled. And by that time Wilson and his colleagues were confronted by a host of accomplished facts.

AT MOSCOW an agreement was reached by Great Britain, the United States and Russia regarding certain specific issues, such as the Italian problem and the Austrian problem, and by these three powers plus China regarding postwar international cooperation.

In this respect Moscow served as a preliminary peace conference. But certain problems were brought up at Moscow regarding which no action was taken—the fate of Germany, for instance, questions regarding frontiers, details of the postwar setup.

These problems cannot be postponed indefinitely. The wheels of destiny are moving too rapidly for that. Anglo Russian-American nonagreement on certain issues of common concern is a vacuum that must be filled. If it is not filled by political agreement, it may and probably will be filled by military action, by the advancing armies.

BECAUSE a meeting of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin will be a tremendously dramatic event, too much may be expected of it.

The best we can hope for is that as a result of such a conference we and the British and the Russians will have climbed another rung or two up the ladder of mutual understanding and cooperation.

Even the "Big Three," representing though they do the most formidable aggregation of power the world has ever seen, cannot solve all problems by a fiat. Much will still remain to be done when the labors of the three men are over and they have come back to their respective capitals.

But if the sequel to Moscow represents an advance on Moscow it shall have proved immensely worth while, a long step forward on the road to victory and peace.

Poll Tax

I want to commend your editorial in regard to HR 7 in The Post of Saturday, November 20.

We should not close our eyes to the significance of the undoubted feeling throughout the South from Texas to Virginia that the Southern people are being politically harassed as a means of gratifying groups of voters in the metropolitan areas—not only the Negroes but others. This feeling should not be fed by such legislative controversies as that involved in the anti-poll tax movement.

We are a big country, more than 130 million people, and if we are to have a union which is rooted not in legalism but in sympathy, we will have to reconcile ourselves to letting the people of the various States and sections work out their own problems in their own way. Any other policy will be disastrous, not only to the interests of the particular groups who are responsible for this agitation, but to the country as a whole, and it is by no means too soon to begin to order our conduct accordingly.

DEETS PICKETT.
Washington, Nov. 21.

This subscriber, being wholly in accord with your attitude on the poll tax, would like to suggest a comparison whose cold figures might cool the heated brows of some outraged partisans for the "10 million disfranchised Americans." What is the amount of this disputed tax in the various States? What is the average amount of union dues assessed in these States? How many of the disfranchised, i.e., those unable to pay the poll tax, are now paying union dues? CAF-4.
Washington, Nov. 20.

You probably are feeling pretty well sunk after reading the letters of two irate writers in your paper, those of John P. Davis of Washington and Elizabeth W. Steptoe of Charlottesville, both of whom are in a frenzy because you do not seem to approve of the annual attempt by certain politicians to meddle in sundry rights which the Constitution grants to the States, by which I refer to the poll tax. Behind this attempt we have, of course, an Administration which seeks to destroy all States rights. The qualifications for voting are a matter which properly belongs to the voters of each State to settle in a manner which suits the needs of that State, and the high moral indignation evinced by some members of Congress in this matter could be expended to greater purpose if they would consider, let us say, the sale of the country to John Lewis for $500,000.

I am most thankful that some States are still interested in trying to prevent their most ignorant groups from marking a ballot. Does anyone think that those States which have no poll tax elect a better grade of Senator or Representative than those who have such a tax? What we need to do, if we want a higher grade of men in Congress, is to cut down the number of voters we already have, and not expand them. Common sense would demand a property qualification for all voters. Let no man vote who cannot show that he has sufficient brains to own something—say $100, say $10, or any other amount. By and large, taking the country as a whole, with all the opportunities open to him, a man whose industry and brains have not availed to make him own something, is not very likely to vote with any degree of intelligence. Anyone can, of course, pick out exceptions, in the way of hard luck, etc., but, on the whole, if there is an incentive and the right to vote depends upon some sort of ownership, those who want to vote and are in some measure capable of thinking, will be able to vote. Of course, such a qualification as I suggest will bring wrath and tears to the demagogic eyes of politicians; his heart will bleed extensively when he can no longer appeal to and sway blocks of the most ignorant by his hillbilly campaigns and his waving of Old Glory, but it just might keep that class of politician out of office to the betterment of our Government. Washington Opera House

Only recently, while attending a highly creative and intriguing ballet production, did I face the stark realization that we need greater facilities for, not only these productions but for great opera and other noteworthy organizations that might easily be secured for our benefit. But conditions must be favorable.

Constitution Hall is a fine building, but the stage presents problems of space, scenery and flexibility. There is a dire need for a greater seating capacity. I saw almost 200 vacant chairs on either side, close to the improvised stage. Proper vision in those chairs was impossible. Many people even in the adjoining sections strained their necks in attempting to witness some of the major actions in the production.

Shall we permit people to shake their fingers at us and tell about the other major national capitals having opera houses, while we have none?

Leaders, why not a Washington opera house?

Eastern Europe

Hungary And Rumania

WHILE CZECHOSLOVAKIAN comment on the signing of an agreement with Russia stated that it was open to adherence of other states, it was accompanied by a strong hint that Hungary and Rumania would not be particularly welcome additions to the signatories, because of the consistent aid which they have given to Germany's war effort.

That aid has now been considerably reduced for a number of reasons, one of which is that Hungary and Rumania are too busily engaged in carrying on their feud with each other to send forces out of the country into a foreign struggle from which they would like to withdraw before the inevitable defeat, if they can find any means of doing so.

The quarrel between the two nations continues to be manifested chiefly in mutual charges of minority oppression. Rumanian Premier Ion Antonescu, in a recent interview, charged that the 1,500,000 Rumanians in the northern Transylvania region which Hitler transferred to Hungary are being persecuted, and in particular that Rumanian youths are being used to replace oxen for plowing. Hungarian Premier Nikolas von Kallay retorted with the charge that Rumanian oppression of Hungarians in southern Transyivania, which Rumania was allowed to keep, proves clearly that Rumania is an uncivilized state.

"Spirit of 1918"

Meanwhile, Hungary seems to be on the verge of blowing up under the Horthy-Kallay regime. In certain Budapest cafes frequented by anti-Horthy elements, the provision of arms to Yugoslav guerillas is openly discussed. The "spirit of 1918," which in that year overthrew the Hungarian government in favor of the democratic regime of Count Michael Karolyn, is once more in ferment.

Unfortunately, the Allied "spirit of 1918" in Hungary was the opposite of the Hungarian. The victorious democracies, paradoxically, failed to trust the Hungarian democrats, and to harness for their own ends the tremendous enthusiasm which marked the October revolution of 1918. The population, weary of the oppressive rule which had led it to military defeat, overthrew its autocratic rulers and shouted for a pro-democratic pro-Allied regime. By backing the leader of the new movement, Count Karolyi, the Allies could have won the full cooperation of Hungary for the establishment of a democratic Europe, and the Hungarians themselves would have altered their internal structure in such a way as to make it unlikely that the country would find itself ranged again on the side of the antidemocratic forces against the democracies.

But the situation was in the hands of French Marshal Franchet d'Esperey, commander of the Allied Eastern armies. Marshals, even in democratic armies, are not usually remarkable for their liberalism. Certainly, Franchet d'Esperey was not.

"Revolutionary" Supporter

When Count Karolyi called on him at the head of a Hungarian delegation, Franchet d'Esperey treated him with the greatest coldness. He made it clear that he looked upon him disapprovingly as a "revolutionary," instead of as a respectable supporter of an established order.

The repulse of Karolyi by Franchet d'Esperey had the result which usually follows the attempt to check a popular movement which is considered too radical—that of driving it into greater radicalism. Hungarians had expected that with the overthrow by themselves of the forces against which the Allies had been fighting, they would be permitted, through Karolyi, to enter into cooperation with the democratic countries, as a new-born democracy themselves. The refusal of the Allies to support Karolyi weakened his prestige and embittered the Hungarians; and the result was that Bela Kun came in, and presented the French marshal who had feared a liberal Left tendency with an extreme Left Communist government.

Once again the usual result followed. The pendulum had been allowed to swing too far to one side, and the reaction swung it back too far to the other. To get rid of Bela Kun, the Allied military leaders gave full support to the Fascistic Horthy group which arose in southern Hungary, and he was driven out. The Red Terror was replaced by the White Terror.

The end result of these developments which had begun with the error of rejecting the democratic solution was that a Fascist government under Admiral Horthy became established firmly in Hungary. It was the first of its kind, the germ of the disease which was later to infect first Italy, then Germany, and ultimately the whole world.

This time, the Allies may handle the situation differently, for in the Declaration of Austria announced at Moscow, that country was promised consideration if she helped to bring about her own liberation. The same principle may one day be applied to Hungary as well. Although the Czechs show themselves cold to accepting an alliance with Hungary and Rumania while the latter are still cooperating with Germany, it is safe to predict that a reversal which would effect a complete change of regime in these two countries would alter Czechoslovakia's attitude toward them.

Today And Tomorrow

The A, B, C Of Subsidies

HAVING READ the debate on subsidies, it seems to me that it may not be unuseful in clarifying the real issue to treat the matter as an elementary problem in economic science. The word "subsidy" is one of those words which mean so many different things and arouse so many emotions that they prevent us from thinking clearly and relevantly; the statistics and the procedure of the program are so complicated that it is for all practical purposes as impossible for the layman to master them as it would be for him to go aboard a modern battleship and know how to operate it.

LIPPMANN

Yet it is essential that we understand the essential principles sufficiently lest we now make an irreparable and dangerous mistake.

THE ELEMENTARY fact which is generally forgotten in the debate is that it costs some producers more to produce than it costs others. This is the paramount fact which we have to fix in our minds in order to understand the real issue in Congress. Unless we do fix this fact in our minds we shall never understand the subsidy issue.

To make the arithmetic as simple as possible, let us suppose that there are in the community three men who can produce a particular gadget. Smith can produce it and sell it for one dollar, and still make a profit. Brown can produce it and sell it for two dollars, and make a profit. Jones can produce it for three dollars, and make a profit. If the community wants all that Smith, Brown, and Jones can produce, what will be the price of the gadget? It will be Jones' price—that is three dollars. If the community does not need Jones' production, and can get along with what one-dollar Smith and two-dollar Brown can make, what will be the price? It will be Brown's price—that is two dollars, and Jones at three dollars will not get any business.

NOW THIS being wartime when the community wants all that can be produced, Jones' production is needed. That means that the price will be three dollars for Smith and Brown as well as for Jones. Yet if each of them got what he really needed, Smith would get one dollar, Brown two dollars, and Jones three dollars. The total cost of the whole supply of gadgets would be one plus two plus three dollars: or six dollars altogether. But in fact since Jones' three-dollar price would, unless the Government interfered, become the price for everybody, the total cost of the whole supply will be three plus three plus three dollars — or nine dollars altogether. In order to get Jones to produce all the prices have to rise to his high level.

Now this is where the subsidy comes in. Suppose you say: two dollars is the accepted price for this gadget—at two dollars we can get Smith's and Brown's product and they will be making a fair profit; now then how can we get Jones' three-dollar product, which we want, without paying Smith and Brown three dollars, which is more than they need? We get it by paying Jones two dollars, and in addition a subsidy payment of one dollar.

This works out as follows: the community pays Smith two dollars and Brown two dollars and Jones two dollars—a total of six dollars—and the community as taxpayer also pays Jones a subsidy of one dollar. Thus the whole supply costs seven dollars, whereas if the price were allowed to rise to Jones' level, the whole supply would cost nine dollars.

This is the principle of the particular type of subsidy now under discussion, and the example demonstrates how by paying one dollar in subsidy the community makes a net saving of two dollars which it would otherwise have to spend.

IF THIS is plain, then we can see clearly what, among those who understand it, is the real issue in Congress. By the payment of the subsidy to Jones, the consuming public gets the gadgets at the lowest feasible cost. But Smith and Brown, who can sell profitably at two dollars, do not get as big a profit as if the price rose to three dollars. Smith is denied an extra profit of two dollars and Brown is denied an extra profit of one dollar. As a purely commercial matter, and ignoring all other public considerations, the use of the subsidy not only denies them the extra profit but compels them as taxpayers to pay their share of the cost of the subsidy. Instead of making the extra three dollars for themselves, they have as taxpayers to contribute something to Jones's one-dollay subsidy.

So, as a commercial matter, they fight the subsidy and want the price ceiling lifted.

THIS IS the crux of the whole controversy, and once it is understood, the necessity of using subsidies to stabilize prices in wartime is self-evident. There is no other way of getting Jones' high cost production without raising all other prices to his high cost level. There are different ways of applying subsidies to achieve this end, and it is by no means certain that the Administration has selected the best way. But to prohibit such subsidies entirely is to make a rise of prices inevitable if Jones is to be kept producing.

THE DEBATE has shown that resentment against the rise of industrial wages is a powerful emotional force in the opposition to these particular subsidies to stabilize the cost of living. But resentment, however justified, is never a sound basis for legislation. The fact is that while the blow against subsidies is aimed at organized labor, it will really fall upon the unorganized and most helpless members of the community. For organized labor, just because it is organized, will parry the blow by threatening to strike for higher wages to meet the increased cost of living. And Congress, which would not enact universal service, has no other effective means by which it can legislate miners or any other organized group of workers back to work.

But the rise of the cost of living, which cannot be prevented without subsidies, will strike all Government employes on fixed salaries, including Congressmen, all State and municipal employes, all soldiers' dependents on fixed allowances, all veterans and retired officials on pensions, all elderly people living on the income from their savings, all owners of bonds and insurance policies, all the school teachers, policemen, firemen, and virtually all the white collared workers. For they cannot do what organized labor can do: threaten to strike and push up their wages at once.

FOR THESE reasons Congress will have to reconsider the matter.

Russians Must Come as Ally, Poles Warn

By the Associated Press

Polish sources that cannot be otherwise identified declared yesterday that the Russian army must enter Poland as an ally, and not as a conqueror, or else face desperate resistance by the Poles themselves.

Determination to fight back unless the Soviets reestablish diplomatic relations with the London Polish government in exile was voiced in responsible quarters here as Red troops plunger closer to the old Polish frontier, established in 1921.

Despite a recent statement by Constantin Oumansky, Soviet Ambassador to Mexico City, indicating that Russia still recognizes the western boundary drawn with the Germans in 1939, the Poles maintain that only the prewar frontier is valid.

The Polish position as stated by an authoritative source who requested anonymity pending clarification of the stand to be taken by the Allied high command is:

1. If military necessity requires Soviet occupation of Polish territory, there must be an understanding between the two governments based on the resumption of normal diplomatic relations and on the principle of sovereign equality. (The Rusian severed their relations with the exiled Polish government early this year after the latter had requested an International Red Cross investigation of reports that the Russians had killed thousands of Polish officers near Smolensk.)

2. The position taken by the Russians when they occupy Poland will be considered a test case of the four-power Moscow declaration. It was pointed out that when the Red troops reach Poland, it will be the first time in this war that territory of one member of the United Nations is occupied by another.

3. The Soviet Union should guarantee administration of liberated territories by the London government in exile.

4. If such an agreement is not reached, the Poles anticipate an attempt to Sovietize Poland through the Union of Polish Patriots, headed by Wanda Wasilewska in Moscow, or deportation to Russia of underground leaders.

A suggestion on the conduct of the occupation previously sent by the Poles to the Anglo-American-Russian conference at Moscow was that after relations were reestablished, the Allies should set up a council on central Europe similar to the council on Italy.

The Poles asked that American and British officers accompany Soviet troops to symbolize the Allied nature of the occupation, it was learned. There has not yet been any indication of how these requests were received by the confrees.

Hurts Keep 50,000 From Work Daily

More than 50,000 manufacturing workers are absent from their jobs every day because of industrial injuries, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins reported yesterday.

"Industrial injuries disabled approximately 69,000 manufactuing workers during August with a resulting loss of 1,300,000 man-days of production," she said. "This loss, which does not include any allowance for the continuing economic effect of the many deaths and permanent physical impairments, is equivalent to full time employment during August for 53,000 workers."

In 125 years the Senate has sat as a court of impeachmen' 12 times, and has removed four men from Federal offices.

Wartime Washington

Sample Of Bureaucracy

NO OBSERVER of the Washington scene can fail to see that Congress is a very disgruntled body these days. Bureaucracy is making Congress see red. Consequently it is inclined to lash out at the "bureaucrats" without much concern for what the effect on national policy may be. The present revolt against subsidies has won a great deal of support because Congressmen see in it a means of disciplining the "bureaucrats."

PUSEY

In the midst of war this attitude is a danger of the utmost seriousness. For the war cannot be fought successfull without effective administration of many homefront policies by strong executive agencies, and those agencies can be neither strong nor effective if they don't have the confidence and support of Congress. It is a task of no little importnace, therefore, to ferret out the cause of this lack of teamwork.

The easiest approach is to belabor Congress for its failure to cooperate. But Congress does not regard itself as a mere supplier of funds or approver of policies that are first laid down and then carried out by administrative agencies. It still thinks of itself as the Nation's chief policy-making body. It is still jealous of its right to lay down the law for executive agencies to follow. So, when the law which it has laid down is flouted, circumvented or just disregarded, it feels the lack of cooperation is primarily a fault of the administrators.

IF ANYONE supposes that Congress has no reason to distrust the "bureaucrats," let him dip into the report on the OPA released last week by the House Committee to Investigate Executive Agencies. The committee found that the OPA "has assumed unauthorized powers to legislate by regulation and has, by misrepresentation of acts of Congress, set up a Nation-wide system of judicial tribunals through which this executive agency judges the actions of American citizens relative to its own regulations and orders and imposes drastic and unconstitutional penalties upon those citizens, depriving them in certain instances of vital rights and liberties without due process of law."

This conclusion, unfortunately, is backed up by facts. Congress prescribed three methods of enforcing price ceilings. The OPA could ask for court injunctions against violators, it could invoke criminal penalties, or it could seek revocation of dealers' licenses under court order. Congress eliminated from the price-control bill suggested by the Administration the section permitting revocation of licenses without court action. But the OPA invented a way of exercising this power which Congress had denied to it. Under the vague authority of the Second War Powers Act, it set up a system of hearing commissioners who force compliance with numerous price ceilings by depriving visitors of rationed commodities.

Undoubtedly this is the easiest way to check the growth of black markets, as Price Administrator Bowles has pointed out. But it is not the way that was prescribed by the law-making body. And Congress had a worthy motive in denying this power to the OPA. It feared that the revocation of licenses by administrative action would lead to encroachments upon civil rights.

We have only to glance at the cases of May Agnes Smith and Maude M. Layer to see that this fear was well founded. An OPA hearing commissioner in Philadelphia suspended the rights of these two women to acquire rationed commodities for eight and six months, respectively. In other words, an OPA "court" set up without approval of Congress laid claim to authority to sentence citizens to hunger if not starvation. To be sure, execution of this order was suspended. The women were put on probation with a warning that any further infraction of the rationing rules would bring this severe penalty upon their heads.

OF COURSE, Congress has given the OPA no specific powers of this sort. The methods it laid down for enforcement of rationing orders are court injunctions and fines and imprisonment for willful violators. Congress appears to have left the door open to withdrawal of rationed commodities as a penalty. But the fact that it prescribed other methods of enforcement certainly implies that it did not intend to authorize OPA to impose hunger upon violators of ration rules.

The same method of withdrawing rationed commodities has been used to put many firms out of business. I don't think anyone will deny that these penalties—hunger and loss of business—are very severe. Yet they are applied with no other safeguard than the discretion of OPA officials, and since this system was invented entirely by executive action, the aggrieved citizen is left to devise his own method, if any, of getting his case before a court.

This flagrant disregard for the will of Congress does not reflect upon the present management of OPA. Chester Bowles, the new administrator, has given assurance that he will bring the OPA within the spirit as well as the letter of the law before its reorganization is complete. But this slick method of defeating the will of Congress does lie close to the heart of the feud that is now brewing on Capitol Hill. Congress is acquiring, if it has not already acquired, a deep-seated distrust of expedient-loving administrators loosely stigmatized as "bureaucrats." And every fresh indication that our bureaucracy considers itself above the law or privileged to twist the law to its own convenience has about the same effect as waving a red flag before a bull.

86 Servicemen Start Medical Course Here

Eighty-six Army and Navy men began medical studies yesterday at George Washington University under the new three-year instead of four-year course. The curtailed study period is part of the program to hasten qualified physicians to the armed forces where a shortage of 3000 now exists.

They were welcomed in special ceremonies by Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon geenral of the United States Army. He laid particular emphasis on the urgent need for doctors and pointed out the demand is greater today than ever before in the 120 years of the school.

Trustees of the institution witnessed the ceremony. They included Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., Col. Henry T. Erwin, U. S. Army Gilbert Grosvevnor, president of the National Geographic Society, Dr. Luther Reichelderfer, Walter Tuckerman and Capt. Chester Wells, USNR.

Among the guests of honor were Maj. Gen. Shelley U. Marietta, commander of the Army Medical Center; Rear Admiral Charles W. Buckner, USN, commander of the Navy Medical Center, and Maj. Gen. George F. Lull, USA, deputy surgeon general.

Drive Opened To Stimulate V-Mail's Use

Postmaster General Frank C. Walker and Maj. Gen. James A. Ulio, adjutant general of the U. S. Army, urged the use of V-mail in writing to men in the armed forces at a ceremony yesterday opening a two-week campaign, promoting this type of mail, at the USO Club, Eighth st. and Market Space nw

The campaign is sponsored by the USO at the request of the Army Postal Service to impress on civilians the contributions toward high morale of the rapid V-mail.

"The lack of knowledge and understanding on the part of the mailing public has complicated in many instances the complex wartime problems of the Post Office Department and the Army Postal Service," said Mr. Walker as he indorsed the program designed to acquaint the public with V-mail methods.

Major General Ulio explained the efficiency of V-mail and the process by which filmed letters are guaranteed safe delivery by air to remote fighting zones.

"This is not only a great factor toward the morale of our fighters, but it saves 98 per cent cargo space for war supplies and materials," he said. "Eighteen hundred microfilmed V-mail letters take up little more space than an ordinary pack of cigarettes and they have priority in handling over all other types of personal mail."

Joseph Schildkraut, actor now playing at the National Theater, also was a guest at the opening event and autographed several hundred pages of V-mail stationery. These will be distributed to first-comers at the USO Clubs where the V-mail forms are provided free to the public. Sidney F. Taliaferro, chairman of the USO Council of Washington, introduced the speakers.

KNACK OF
getting into Production
ONLY 29 DAYS after receiving the contract, airborne tractor bulldozers were being driven off the A. M. & M. assembly lines. Once again, A. M. & M. facilities and "KNOW HOW" won a tough production battle. This time it was to meet the urgent needs of the U. S. Corps of Engineers. ¶ Manufacturing and engineering competence starts with A. M. & M.'s research staff chemists, physicists, metallurgists—and is augmented by well-equipped testing laboratories. It culminates in the "KNOW HOW" of craftsmen long experienced in precision machining and assembly. ¶ From huge multi-ton industrial equipment down to small intricate mechanisms—A. M. & M. has the facilities and manpower to manufacture them efficiently and on schedule. Today, war plants and the armed services have "first call." After Victory, the experience gained in war work will be used to establish new high standards of quality and efficiency in machines and equipment for American industry.

What's a Honeymoon in Wartime?

Songbird-Bride Finds Stage Strict Taskmaster Regardless of Nuptials; News Notes and Gossip of Theater

C'EST LA GUERRE. Or so it seemed to come out yesterday when the drama desks lunched with Mr. and Mrs. Roger Brill, at the Statler . . . Mrs. Brill, of course, is the glamorous—I detest that word—young soprano of musical comedy and operetta, last heard in Washington with Ed Wynn in "Big Time," at the National, and before that on Sigmund Romberg's' concert program in Constitution Hall . . . Even for so gifted a prima donna, the wartime demand for entertainment of the better grade cannot pause to make allowances for any such triviality as a honeymoon . . . Miss Nash and the personable Mr. Brill were married Saturday night . . . Sunday was open house in their Bladensburg apartment for relatives and friends . . . Yesterday the luncheon . . . Today they hope to squeeze out a moment or two alone, but tomorrow Miss Nash is off to New York, preliminary to her engagement on the stage at the Earle Theater, beginning Thanksgiving Day—which is by way of being day after tomorrow . . . That stint completed, an indefinite engagement in the Cotillion Room at the Pierre, in New York, awaits the bride . . . After that, who knows? . . . In the meantime Mr. Brill is making plans to weekend in Gotham, when Miss Nash is not weekending down here, and wondering what "show business" is all about . . . His only unshakable conviction, it seemed to one sitting next him at the luncheon table, is that war is hell . . . Don't gather from yesterday's pronouncements that "Jeannie," at the Little, is the only picture in town that is cracking up records and pitching them into the ashcan . . . Comes a wire from Manager Hardie Meakin of RKO-Keith's that Samuel Goldwyn's "The North Star" broke the Sunday attendance record on Fifteenth Street, both in receipts and number of patrons . . . The money aspect of the red-letter day is especially notable since the house played to more than 3000 members of the armed services, admitted, as per custom, at half-price . . . Mention of Samuel Goldwyn always seems to lead to another one . . . Now he has borrowed Pete Smith from M-G-M to do the comedy narration for "Up in Arms," the Technicolor business with music that will introduce Danny Kaye to the screen . . . First time Pete has ever been loaned by his studio since he became a topflight short-subject producer and commentator there 18 years ago . . . He'll deliver a novel type of narration contrived by Don Hartman, associate producer of the picture.

MARIE NASH,

We Get Support

We are grateful for a letter from a high-ranking Army officer, returned from 15 months of foreign service, in part, as follows: "I read your article in The Washington Post of October 10 with much interest . . . I thoroughly agree with you . . . As you say, the soldier does not want to be played down to . . . I hope some change will result from your article—you are on the right track . . . A well-known actor should be placed in charge (of touring overseas entertainment units) and he should have a few experienced Army officers to help him—the officers to work under the actor in charge, not the reverse" . . . That's the way we still feel about it and we're obliged for such corroboration from a high Army source . . . Although her parents are Leopold Stokowski and Olga Samaroff, Sonya Stokowski, who appears in "The Patriots," coming to the National next Monday night, with Walter Hampden starred, has taken part in only one musical affair . . . As a tiny tot, she appeared in a children's gold rattle contest . . . Doesn't remember if she won it or not! . . . If the Warner Brothers aren't careful, they'll be running abreast of Columbia as borrowers of stellar talent from other studios . . . With the biggest roster of stars and featured players in their history, they still have gone outside the Burbank boundaries a surprising number of times . . . For Cary Grant in "Arsenic and Old Lace" and "Destination Tokyo;" Ingrid Bergman in "Casablanca" and "Saratoga Trunk;" Robert Cummings for "Princess O'Rourke," now at the Earle; Lucile Watson, George Coulouris and Paul Lukas for "Watch on the Rhine"—Lukas and Miss Watson holding over for "Uncertain Glory" and Coulouris for "Outward Bound" . . . Then there are Eddie Cantor, Dinah Shore and Edward Everett Horton in "Thank Your Lucky Stars;" Paul Whiteman, Oscar Levant and Al Jolson for "Rhapsody in Blue;" Miriam Hopkins, who rejoined Bette Davis for "Old Acquaintance," opening Thursday at the Earle; Michele Morgan for "Passage to Marseille," with Philip Dorn trekking over from M-G-M for the same item . . . And that isn't all . . . In "Adventures of Mark Twain," you'll be seeing Fredric March and C. Aubrey Smith; Barbara Stanwyck in "My Reputation;" Reginald Gardiner in "One More Tomorrow," formerly titled "Animal Kingdom," and Jack Benny back for his second whirl on the Warner lot in "The Horn Blows at Midnight" . . . His other one was "George Washington Slept Here" . . . Let's see now, who are the regular Warner stars?

HEDDA HOPPER

Gable Immersed in War

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 22.—The picture Clark Gable took in England and over Germany, and which he's cutting (we hope into a feature length), is all in color. Walter Lang says Clark is so immersed in war and everything pertaining to it that he's wondering if we'll ever get him to show the same interest again in acting. . . . Leland Hayward is well enough to travel to New York for Margaret Sullavan's opening and a couple of weeks there with her. . . . Now that Marjorie Reynolds is "Up in Mabel's Rooms," Warners want her for the life of Marilyn Miller. . . . Eleanor Boardman was tested for the second Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. I'm hoping she gets it. She's about the only girl I know who could juggled those stuffed birds on her head which Mrs. Wilson favored all through the peace treaty days. With her, it was one bird after another. . . . When Senator Lodge saw Claude Rains made up as his grandfather for the Wilson picture and heard some of his speeches done with dignity and sympathy, he left for the East a mighty happy man.

CLARK GABLE

And Maybe Not!

Now that Dudley Nichols and Lamarr Trotti are deep in the script of "One World," the question is, whom will Zanuck get to play Willkie? Maybe he could persuade Wendell to do it himself . . . Rennie McEvoy, J. P.'s son, who replaced Eddie Bracken in "Dr. Wassell," was handed a personal contract by C. B. De Mille. Rennie has permission to do his serials and writing on the side. Eddie was taken out because he was set to star in another picture.

Now You Tell One

If Mervyn Leroy is leaving Metro, neither he nor the studio knows anything about it. And why should he—when "Madame Curie," which he directed, is one of the great pictures of this or any other year? . . . Michael Barnitz, the baby in "Butch Minds the Baby," who hasn't had a job since, will make his comeback in "Are These Our Children?" He's now three . . . Johnny Green's former wife, Betty Furness, and Bunny Waters were pals before Bunny ever met Johnny. I'm wondering if Johnny's and Bunny's marriage will give Al Jolson a real sickness . . . RKO rushing Ginger Rogers' "Tender December 22 so as to get under the wire for an Academy Award, it hopes, Jane Murfin signed to write Ginger's next, "Situation Out of Hand." . . . Charles Coburn signed with Irene Dunne for "The Road to Yesterday." (Not the old Margaret Anglin play.) Irene takes over a mayor's job in a small town when her husband passes away. Coburn plays her father-in-law. Into this community they hope will come Brian Aherne as leadnig man. Coburn, however, does "Woodrow Wilson"" before he settles down with Irene, which will be nice settling.

G'by, Ernie

Can you imagine my surprise when telephone operator said "Washington calling"? And Producer Lester Cowan came on the phone and said, "Hedda, Ernie Pyle wants to say hello before he shoves off." Ernie came on and said, "I want to thank you for suggesting Fred MacMurray play me on the screen. He's tall, dark and handsome, and you know what I look like!" "I know, but he has the same homey quality. How does it feel to be the Will Rogers of this war?" Ernie replied, "Will was luckier than I am. He had more time with his wife. This is my third trip over and I expect to be gone a year and a half."

LEONARD LYONS

Times Square Tattle

New York, Nov. 22.

Orson Welles took his wife, Rita Hayworth, to the Hollywood preview of the new 20th Century-Fox film, "Jane Eyre." The studio gave top billing in this picture to Joan Fontaine. . . . After the preview, the studio officials noticed the thousands of people following Mr. and Mrs. Welles. "Maybe we should give Orson top billing," one official suggested to Harry Brand, the studio's press agent. "Look at the crowds following him." . . . "That doesn't prove anything," Brand replied. "Because once even I had crowds like that following me. That was at one of our previews 10 years ago—when I carried Shirley Temple in my arms."

RITA HAYWORTH

The Motion Pictures Distributing Corp. is negotiating with Robert G. Sproul, head of the University of California at Los Angeles, to take Will Hays' place, while Hays would be offered the promotion to director emeritus. . . . Henri Bernstein, the French playright who has fought a dozen duels, is writing his memoirs: "From Another World." . . . Ray Schindler, the private detective employed by the De Marignys, is back in New York with photos of Sir Harry Oakes' house showing blow-torch marks on the walls in other rooms—indicating that the murderer had been there a long time.

Greer Garson and her husband, Ensign Richard New, now are visiting New York. Last Tuesday night Miss Garson appeared at the Night of Stars rally at Madison Square Garden. "We've just arrived in New York, and I'd like you to meet my husband," she told the audience. Then she presented Ensign New. "I have a five-day leave, as a belated honeymoon," he stated. "This is the beginning of the honeymoon—and I certainly didn't expect to be spending it before 22,000 people at Madison Square Garden."

George Tucker, the war correspondent who was injured when his plane cracked into one in which Elliott Roosevelt was a passenger, is off to the wars again. Tucker, who returned here a few weeks ago, stayed only long enough for a skull operation. . . . Chaim Gross, the noted sculptor, has become a Manhattan policeman. . . . Sid Luckman, the football star, is being booked for vaudeville engagements before he enters the Maritime Service. . . . George Biddle, the artist, was offered a commission as a lieutenant colonel. The surgeon general decided against him because of Biddle's physical condition. Biddle therefore went with the troops as a civilian artist. He's been through the invasions of Africa, Sicily and Italy, always in the front lines. He's been bombed, shelled, shot at—for months—and, nevertheless, has gained 5 pounds.

Donald M. Nelson is the sole survivor of all those who were appointed by the President to the National Defense Advisory Council. Every other member of that original board, which was headed by Bill Knudsen, became a casualty. Nelson emerged as chairman, and although many shots have been fired at his target, it's still up there in the chairmanship of the War Production Board. . . . Once, when the rumors of his replacement became louder, Nelson said: "I've drawn a circle around this post and invited all comers. May the best man win. And so far I'm the best man."

Two eminent, wealthy New Yorkers, who are related to each other, live in the same house. Each of them has a huge, independent income. And because of the degree in relationship, each considers himself the logical heir of the other. . . "When they come downstairs in the morning for breakfast," said a mutual friend, "and each says to the other, 'How are you this morning?'—they REALLY mean it."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Argentine Envoy's 'Reward'

ARGENTINA'S FORMER AMBASSADOR Espil is being rewarded for his long years of service in Washington by being stripped of his pension, ousted from the diplomatic service and "investigated" by the military Fascists now running his country. They contended he was too pro-American.

Espil, called the "modern Juserand of Washington," had served more than 30 years in the Argentine diplomatic service—20 of them here at various times. He has an American wife, the former Courtney Letts of Chicago. Although pro-American, he was also a fighter for his country's economic and political rights—before Pearl Harbor. After Pearl Harbor, however, he could not help but sympathize with the U. S. A., and frowned on his country's isolation.

So, just a few months before he would have been retired on pension, his government ousted him. Never paid much of a salary and with no independent means, Espil will be virtually penniless.

Capital Chaff

CHIEF REASON why the Duke and Duchess of Windsor stayed out of Nassau during the Marigny trial was because they knew they would be deluged with requests for interviews by U. S. newsmen and sob-sisters . . . Forthright Congressman Estes Kefauver, the young Cordell Hull of Tennessee, has introduced one of the most important resolutions of the current session. If would require Cabinet members to face an hour or two of grilling from Congress once or twice a week in order that Congress may know what the executive arm of the Government is doing . . . During the Bill Bullitt mayoralty campaign in Philadelphia, Republican attacks on his sexy book, "It Isn't Done," got so bad that Congressman Jim McGranery went to Cardinal Dougherty to inquire about a rumor that the Catholic Church would denounce the book. The Cardinal good-naturedly replied: "Tell Mr. Bullitt to laugh it off" . . . When Secretary Hull writes his own speeches, he does an A-1 job. But when he lets his ghost writer, Leo Paslovsky, operate, he doesn't.

Baruch's Personal Inflation

ELDER STATESMAN Bernard M. Baruch delivers an unadvertised lecture on inflation every morning to fellow passengers of a "pool" taxicab which he takes to his office in the Carlton Hotel.

The fare per passenger is 30 cents, but "Bernie" always slips the driver a dollar bill. The other morning, one of his taxicab friends challenged this $1 tip.

"You have spent 20 minutes lecturing to us about inflation, Mr. Baruch," he said. "Yet you have just paid this driver $1 for a 30-cent ride. How do you explain that?"

Baruch grinned. The taxicab driver, however, saw no humor in the situation. He tossed one of his dirtiest looks at Baruch's friend.

Merry-Go-Round

Leon Henderson is now making $75,000—sever times as much as when he was czar of OPA. . . . British censorship in Cairo tried to stop the story, but pro-democratic Greek soldiers stationed in Syria expelled 190 Greek officers because those officers were propagandizing in favor of unpopular, unwanted King George of Greece. . . . Mexico's special Ambassador Francisco del Rio has succeeded in getting some corn from the United States to relieve desperate shortages below the Rio Grande. . . . The German radio is telling Latin America that United States food production has fallen down, and that North America is draining food from its Good Neighbors. . . . The Army sends butter to the tropics in the form of "Carter's spread," which is 86 per cent butter, plus hydrogenated cotton seed oil and glycerine (a stabilizer). It will not melt under 120 degrees. . . . Dashing Bob Reynolds of North Carolina has sprouted a "feather duster" on his upper lip. He twirls it while meditating on Senate debate or observing the ladies in the galleries. . . A reporter reviewing the historic fight over the President's Supreme Court reform bill recently asked witty former Senator Ashurst of Arizona how he had stood on the bill. . . . Replied Ashurst, who was chairman of the Judiciary Committee at that time, "Son, if you ever find out how I stood on that bill, let me know."

THE U. S. PUBLIC HEALTH Service is having a tough time persuading the Senate to appropriate $1,000,000 for the relocation of doctors to areas where medical services are desperately short. Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, chairman of a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee considering the bill, left no doubts about his position during a recent closed-door hearing.

When two-fisted young Senator Claude Pepper of Florida was attempting to explain how the million dollars was to be used in placing 600 physicians and dentists in areas where there was an extreme shortage, Senator Rufus Holman of Oregon broke in:

"Will the Senator tell me if the matter of socialized medicine enters into this at all?"

Pepper replied that there were apt to be epidemics in certain sections unless the Federal Government stepped in. He quoted letters and telegrams from Dr. James Paullin of Atlanta, Ga., president of the American Medical Association, Surgeon General Norman T. Kirk of the Army, and Dr. Frank Lahey of the War Manpower Commission's procurement and assignment service, indorsing the proposed appropriation.

Oregon's Holman seemed to be satisfied with the explanation, but Tennessee's McKellar was far from convinced.

"This is socialized medicine," he exclaimed wrothily, "and I won't approve it. Why have you waited until this late stage to try to put over something like this?"

"We're not trying to put anything over," shot back Pepper. "The House Appropriations Committee approved the idea of doctor relocation six months ago, and everybody, including the American Medical Association, seems to be agreed that it is necessary if we are to prevent some of the disease epidemics that occurred during the last war."

"Well, I'm going to give it serious consideration before I approve it," responded McKellar.

Senator Overton of Louisiana supported McKellar.

Alabaman Dies Of Heart Attack, Latter in Crash

The House of Representatives adjourned yesterday out of respect to two of its leading members, Henry Bascom Steagall, 70 (Democrat) of Alabama, chairman of the House Banking Committee, who died unexpectedly yesterday at George Washington University Hospital, and J. William Ditter, 55 (Republican) of Pennsylvania, who was killed in a crash of a Navy plane Sunday night near Columbia, Pa.

The two deaths raised to six the number of members of the Seventy-eighth House who have died in less than a year, and brought forth from Dr. George W. Calver, congressional physician, a warning to other members to "slow down and give more attention to their physical condition." They left the political line-up in the House at 219 Democrats, 207 Republicans, four minority party members, and five vacancies as it meets today to vote to ban consumer price subsidies.

In Midst of Fight

Representative Steagall, usually a stalwart supporter of the Administration, died in the midst of his battle to defeat its subsidy program. Thursday, before making a speech on the floor of the House attacking the bill, he had complained of feeling ill and suffered a heart attack Friday after appearing in Congress that morning. Associates yesterday who paid tribute to his long service in Congress declared that the speech he had made and the "emotional" stress under which he labored as he split away from Democratic leadership was a factor in bringing on his death.

Instrumental in shaping many of the country's wartime economic controls, Representative Steagall had helped draft the first and second price control acts, and legislation that created the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the United States Housing Authority, and the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat) of Texas, leading supporter of the subsidy program, yesterday declared his death to be a great loss to the country, and James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director, asserted that "he was a devoted public servant, a splendid legislator and a loyal friend."

Funeral Rites Today

Funeral services will be held today at 10:30 a. m. at Gawler's and on Thursday at 11 a. m. in Ozark Ala., where he made his home. A congressional escort will accompany the body from here to Alabama.

Representative Steagall was born at Clopton in Dale County, Ala., May 19, 1873. After two years in the Southwest Alabama Agriculture School, Abbeville, Ala., he attended the University of Alabama and was graduated in law. He engaged in private practice for a time and was named Dale County solicitor. After service in the State Legislature he became Third District prosecuting attorney and served in that office for seven years before being nominated for the Sixty-fourth Congress in 1914. The congressional district that he represented for almost 30 years has had only two other representatives since the Civil War.

A widower, Steagall, whose Washington residence was the Wardman Park Hotel, is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Julian K. Holman, 4533 Lowell st. nw., Mrs. Hubert Law of Ozark, Ala., and Mrs. George Bucheister, Marlboro, Md.

Plane Burned

Representative Ditter, a member of the House appropriations subcommittee handling Navy funds, was en route from the Squantum, Mass., Naval Air Base to the Navy base at Willow Grove, Pa., at the time the Navy plane in which he was riding crashed and burned.

A resident of Ambler, Pa., Representative Ditter graduated from the Temple University Law School. He was elected to the 73d Congress in March, 1933, and was active in the Republican Party, serving as chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee. He is survived by his wife, a daughter and a son, the latter a naval ensign. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Methodist Church at Ambler.

James Price, Ex-Governor of Va., Dies

Richmond, Va., Nov. 22 (AP).—James H. Price, former Governor of Virginia and imperial recorder of the Shrine, died at his home here at 11:10 o'clock tonight.

He was 61 years of age.

E. W. Jacocks, assistant imperial recorder of the shrine, said Mr. Price's death was immediately attributable to a cerebral hemorrhage. He had suffered a first attack about 4:45 o'clock this afternoon and died nearly five hours later at his home.

He was Governor of Virginia in 1938-42 having previously served two terms as lieutenant-governor. A Richmond attorney with wide Masonic affiliations throughout Virginia, he was elected to the Virginia House of Delegates from Richmond in 1916 and served in that House until his election as lieutenant-governor in 1929.

A past grand master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Virginia and a former potentate of Acca Temple, he had served several terms as imperial recorder for the Shrine in North America.

Mrs. Price was at his bedside when he died, friends said. They were married in 1918. She is the former Miss Lillian Martin.

Also at home was the former governor's daughter, Miss Lillian Moir Price. A son, Lieut. (Senior Grade) James H. Price, jr., USN, is in service somewhere in the Southwest Pacific.

Price was born in West Virginia in 1882, but moved to Staunton when a boy. After graduation from Washington and Lee in 1909, he practiced law in Richmond until his election to the Assembly.

Congressional Medal Awarded To Ploesti Hero

A U. S. Liberator Bomber Station in England, Nov. 22 (AP).—Col. Leon W. Johnson, 39, of Moline, Kans., who helped lead the roof-top raid on Rumania's Ploesti oil refineries on August 1, was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor today.

Colonel Johnson, now a combat wing commander, formerly headed the "Flying Eightball" Liberator group that has blasted Axis targets all over the European continent, including Germany, France, Norway, the Low Countries, Italy, Austria, and Rumania.

"Colonel Johnson so led his formation as to destroy totally the important refining plants and installations that were the object of his mission," his citation said, declaring his conduct constitutes "such a deed of valor and distinguished service as has, during our Nation's history, formed the finest traditions of our armed forces."

Services Need More Women, Col. Hobby, WACS Head, Says

Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, WAC director, became the first woman to appear before the Washington Board of Trade as a principal speaker last night when she pleaded in an address at the Willard Hotel for more women to get in essential warwork or the armed forces.

"The true test by which any man or woman can decide if his or her work is essential enough is to ask one question, she said:

"Is there a man or woman in one of the Axis countries doing what I'm doing?—Is there a number to match me in Berlin or Tokyo?

"Many women today," Colonel Hobby said, "are trying to find some way to convince themselves that the job they're doing is as important as an essential war job would be."

Morgan Beatty, NBC commentator, in an address following Colonel Hobby's, said the basis for the Moscow Conference was mutual distrust, but added that the conference was a success "because everybody put their cards on the table and admitted they were all a little suspicious of each other." Beatty recently returned from London where he broadcast nightly programs to this country.

Landlord Finds Father of 2 Boys Asphyxiated

Francis Wilson Lacy, 32, of 710 15th st. ne., was found in an unconscious condition in the kitchen of his apartment last night and subsequently pronounced dead, with the gas jets of the stove open.

He was discovered by Eric Edmonston, 1226 H st. ne., his landlord, who had come to the house to collect the rent.

Lacy was a route manager for the Atlantic News Co., 321 K st. ne. Underneath his body were found the pictures of two boys, Joseph Lacy, 9, and James, 6. Police said Lacy had been separated from his wife for some time.

The body was taken to the Morgue where it was held for the disposition of the coroner. The man was pronounced dead by a physician from Casualty Hospital.

Agency Workers Honored

Employes of the Federal Home Loan Bank Administration yesterday were awarded an Honor Roll certificate and Minute Man Flag of the Interdepartmental War Savings Bond committee in recognition of their passing the payroll savings goal of 90 per cent contributors.

A FRIEND you'd like to see more of

The speed with which Mount Vernon moves from the dealers' shelves is proof enough of how many friends this mild and mellow rye has made. Those friends, though, do create a problem. They're calling for more and more Mount Vernon at a time when all that is available comes from stocks laid by before the war.* That's bound to mean it's sometimes hard to find it on your dealer's shelves. We're as sorry about this as you are. But if you'll keep on asking for Mount Vernon, you'll get it—for the dealer who is sold out today may have some in tomorrow. That's the best way to see more of the Bond of Friendship.

Irish Lose Favor With Experts Despite Victory

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

At the shrill note of the first whistle that sent them plunging into action against the Bears the other day, the Redskins weren't entirely sure they could beat the Chicago team. In fact they had their rising doubts, and excusable ones, and because they admit it themselves there's no harm in saying so.

POVICH

It was the first time all season they didn't have Sammy Baugh in there, and the Redskin players will tell you that's enough to induce a funny feeling. No Baugh to take charge in the huddles, call the right plays, rig up the pass defense, kick them out of trouble and start their attack moving when they got the ball. And in this, of all games.

They lined up with George Cafego at quarterback, but they knew he was no Baugh. They weren't even sure how the guy would react. They couldn't expect too much. The fellow had only been with the club eight days. Everybody on the squad knew the signals better than Cafego did, and he was supposed to call the plays. Nice guy, but he never had been a ball of fire in the league. The Redskins got him from the Dodgers for the $100 waiver price.

So, here it was, the game with the Bears, and Baugh on the sidelines with a football knee that made his every step painful. Baugh was Mr. Redskin himself. At least the Redskins were never supposed to win without Baugh.

And then the Redskins learned about Cafego. This guy was all right, too. They quickly discovered he was no green-pea. He accepted the Baugh role readily, giving no hint he was The Man on The Spot. In the huddles he was boss. The plays he called were his. There was even a kind of contempt for the Bears the way he called those shots at the big Chicago line.

"We didn't know much about Cafego until the ball game started," relates Bob Masterson, the Redskin captain. "But we found out we were in pretty good hands. Sure, he had trouble with the signals but he always came up with a play. If he liked our ideas in the huddles, okay, if not he'd shake us off and say 'let me run this thing. We're gonna go with No. 51'."

Cafergo took the Redskins down to the Bears' 20 without throwing a pass to set the stage for Baugh's entrance and the Statue of Liberty touchdown play. At one point the drive seemed to stall. In the next huddle, the Redskins suggested to their new quarterback that he call for a reverse with an end-around play.

"No," said Cafego, "not that. We'll work this thing out. The hell with that double reverse business. Too much handling of the ball in this spot. Somebody might drop it and we'd be kissing off our chances to go places. We're gonna move Farkas through there."

"Right there I knew we were in smart hands," said Masterson.

There was nothing weak about Cafego's imitation of Baugh. He gave the Redskins smart direction, punted even to the taste of Baugh's admirers and proved himself a ball hawk when he recovered McEnulty's fumble that halted a Bear drive. When he hit Alex Piesecky in the end zone with that third-quarter touchdown pass, a rifle peg, Cafego looked like Baugh himself.

The Bears are aching for another shot at the Redskins and they'll get that chance in the title play-off game at Chicago on December 19. To state that they're spoiling for another session with the Redskins is understating it. The Bears' mood was expressed rather incisively by one of the Chicago athletes limping out of the stadium Sunday afternoon. "There's a big day coming for us next month and I don't mean Christmas," he said.

It was no tea party on the field Sunday, incidentally. The Bears are not as clever as they used to be, but they're still as rough. Bob Masterson was separately challenged by Magnani, Famiglietti, Wilson and Nolting in the first five minutes of play. The Redskins' captain, no gentle soul himself, found Famiglietti's elbow in his face on the second play and replied in kind, whereupon three Bears told him "if that's the way you want it, okay with us."

There's no reason why the Bears should beat the Redskins on December 19, or any other day if it's a battle between the same two clubs that were on the field Sunday. The Redskins rammed that ball down the Bears' throats, stopped their running game, messed up their passing attack and made the hefty Chicagoans look silly on all three touchdown plays.

And by this time, Washingtonians ought to be weary of the experts who for years have been comparing Luckman and Baugh. Luckman has had his bad days in Washington, but he's a good passer. Baugh, however, is a great passer. That seems to be the difference. That's all, brother.

Navy Shines Defense Brass For Army

Annapolis, Nov. 22 (AP).—Spectacular, dazzling plays were absent from the practice field today as the Navy football squad concentrated on the fundamentals of the game and polished up its offensive and defensive plays for the annual battle with Army Saturday.

Capt. John E. Whelchel, the Tars' head coach, ordered the Middies through a stiff session of kicking, passing and running for their offensive work.

Then the Jayvees set up Army's T-formation for the benefit of the varsity, with the backs as well as the linesmen subjected to the problems of how to stop the "T."

In Good Condition Now

After a week of scrimmages and strenuous practice, without meeting a scheduled opponent, the Middies appeared to be in good physical, as well as mental, condition.

Colds still plagued some of the Sailors, but indications were that the entire squad would be in top shape for the big game.

An observer, after watching the Midshipmen go through their paces in practice, reaches the conclusion that Captain Whelchel is not planning any fancy doings against Army.

Rather, the Soldiers would seem to be in for an afternoon of hard, straight football—to be delivered by left end and team captain, Al Channell & Company, and sparked by the yard-gaining combination of Hal Hamberg and Hillis Hume.

And There Are Others

But Hamberg, the passing genius, and Hume, who loves nothing better than romping with the ball through the opposition's line and secondary, are only two of Whelchel's star performers in the backfield.

And while the backs know when to use the fake spinners and reverses and other deceptive plays, Whelchel says the Middies will use straight football in the main—and if the boys are in good shape Saturday they will know what to deliver and when.

Whelchel, Navy's head, announced the following line-up as the likely starting eleven Saturday:

Pos.	Player and home town.	Wt.
LE	Al Channell Philadelphia	180
LT	Donald Whitmire, Decature, Ala.	215
LG	George Brown, San Diego, Calif.	193
C	Jack Martin, Toledo, Ohio	205
RG	Ben Chase, San Diego, Calif.	198
RT	Edward Sprinkle, Tuscola, Tex.	188
RE	Roe Johnston, Davenport, Iowa	187
QB	Stuart Nelson, Salem, Oreg.	175
LH	Hillis Hume, Alliance, Ohio	178
RH	Ben Martin, Prospect Pk., Pa.	187
FB	Harold Hamberg, Lonoke, Ark.	180

Only One Casualty As Army Prepares

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 22 (AP).—Al McCorkle, regular left guard on the U. S. Military Academy football team, was the only casualty in Saturday's 59-to-0 conquest of Brown, but will be ready to oppose Navy in the annual service team clash this weekend. He suffered a head injury.

Glenn Davis, plebe fullback, likely will start against the Midshipmen following the exhibition he gave against Brown, although he had been kept from practice the week before by low grades.

Lieut. Col. Earl Blaik, head coach, sent the Cadets through a driving scrimmage and followed with a long pass defense workout in today's drill.

G. U. Prep Midgets Learn to Pass a la Baugh

Harris & Ewing.

Sammy Baugh, despite his ailing leg, kept his date to teach the Georgetown Prep 104-pounders the way to throw a pass. For an hour he was in the backfield of this squad, coached by Father Arthur, headmaster. The wide-eyed players are, left to right (kneeling), Keane, Altemus, Shearman, Dougherty, Hughes (standing), Hicks, Lebherz, Carter, Mister Baugh, Crisp, Reagh, Wesely.

Bears' Owner Laying Plans For Title Play

Chicago, Nov. 22 (AP).—Ralph Brizzolara, whose Chicago Bears hope to be hosts to the Washington Redskins in pro football's "World Series" December 19, was the only one of five invited club chieftains to confer with Commissioner Elmer Layden today, but the two of them managed to thrash out plans for the National Football League's title game.

After a 2½-hour conference they announced the ticket scale would be $4.40 for box seats and $3.30 for reserved grandstand seats, with 5000 bleacher tickets at $1.65 to go on sale the day of the contest. The pass list will be suspended. The Bears will begin taking orders for reserved seats tomorrow.

Team Heads Contacted

Layden said he had contacted the heads of all teams still in the running for the Eastern and Western titles but that since the league offices actually are in charge of the championship affair, all matters were able to be worked out despite the absence of other club owners.

Invited but not present were Owner George Marshall of the Washington Redskins, who have clinched a tie in the Eastern Division, and representatives of the Phil-Pitt Eagles, New York Giants, and Green Bay Packers, all still retaining mathematical chances of overtaking the apparent finalists.

Brizzolara, acting boss of the Bears during the Navy service of owner George Halas, emerged from the conference in a whimsical mood.

"You can say," he said, "that I came under duress inasmuch as the Bears have not yet won the Western Championship and must beat or tie the Cardinals Sunday to do it."

Says 'Skins Removed Hides

Then, with a rueful grin, he added.

"Moreover I came here slightly embarrassed after having our hides removed yesterday by the Washington Redskins." The Redskins scored a 21 to 7 upset victory over the Bears which prevented the Chicagoans from clinching the western title over Green Bay.

In event the Bears should be spilled by the Cards Sunday in their final game and the Packers tied, the December 12 date is open for a western playoff, inasmuch as the Redskins have a belated league game that day with the New York Giants.

Carnera Reported Captured by Nazis

London (Tuesday), Nov. 23 (INS).—The London Daily Express reported in a dispatch from the Italo-Swiss frontier today that Primo Carnera, former world's heavyweight champion, was captured by the Germans in northern Italy and may be executed.

CARNERA

The towering boxer, wrestler and movie actor, who won his heavyweight title in the United States in 1933 only to lose it a year later, was taken prisoner during a clash between Italian partisan troops and German forces.

The 6-foot 6-inch prizefighter who weighed 260 pounds, was reported suffering a slight wound of the left leg received in fighting near Cremona. Rejected by the Italian Army for flat feet, Carnera joined the Partisan troops last September.

Carnera won his heavywhight title from Jack Sharkey in June, 1933, in a bout in New York. Max Baer took the crown from him the following summer.

Iowa Naval, Colorado, Duke Gain

By Harold Claassen

New York, Nov. 22 (AP).—Notre Dame defeated Iowa Pre-flight Saturday in what Coach Frank Leahy called the greatest game of his coaching career, but the Irish lost caste with the football experts who voted in the weekly Associated Press poll to determine the country's ranking elevens.

Unanimous first-place choice two weeks ago and with only three of the voters ranking them below that gilded spot last week, the Irish this week lost five first place tallies and were listed as far back as third by one sports writer.

Ninety-seven of the 102 tickets, however, agreed that the present Notre Dame team, chugging along with a winning streak of nine games this season, was the best. One voter marked his ballot for the Iowa Seahawks, two of them regarded Duke as the premier outfit and two others gave the distinction to Colorado College, unbeaten Rocky Mountain king.

Seahawks Second

The Seahawks, second a week ago, retained that post despite their voting aggregate. Notre Dame piled up 1014 votes and the Seahawks 821 in the compilation, which awards 10 points for each first-place vote, nine for second, etc.

Purdue, which struggled to a 7-to-0 verdict over Indiana, skidded from third to fourth and Michigan moved from fourth to third. As the Midwest retained its stranglehold on the first half of the table. The two Big Ten clubs tied for their loop title this season.

Duke is fifth, with Navy and Army, opponents this Saturday, in the annual service clash, following in that order. Next comes Northwestern, March Field and Del Monte Preflight, the latter replacing Texas.

Great Lakes 21st

Of Notre Dame's nine victims, five are listed among the top 10 teams, which Georgia Tech, polished off by a 55-to-13 score on October 2, is fourteenth. Great Lakes, final Notre Dame foe of the campaign, is the twenty-first team.

Dartmouth, beaten only by a single point in an early game with Pennsylvania, jumped from twentieth to thirteenth to create the greatest furore among the second grouping.

The leading teams, with 10 points for each first place vote, nine for second, etc., (first place votes in parenthesis):

TOP TEN

Notre Dame (97)	1011
Iowa Pre-Flight (1)	821
Michigan	611
Purdue	510
Duke (2)	340
Navy	245
Army	210
Northwestern	175
March Field	106
Del Monte Pre-Flight	111

SECOND TEN—Washington, 88; Texas, 79; Dartmouth, 64; Georgia Tech, 36; Bainbridge (Md.) Naval, 30; Texas A. & M., 28; Colorado College, 27; Randolph Field, 26; Penn, 26; Tulsa, 23.

ALSO RANS—Great Lakes, 22; San Diego Naval Training Station, 21; College of Pacific, 14; Southwestern Louisiana Institute, 13; North Carolina, 9; Colorado University, 6; Southwestern of Texas, 3; Southern California, 2; Minnesota, 2; Sampson (N. Y.) Naval, 1; DePauw, 1; New Mexico, 1.

Dick Todd Out For Seahawks In Final Game

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 22 (AP).—The Iowa Seahawks, who will be without the services of Halfbacks Dick Todd and Frank Maznicki when they meet Minnesota in the season's finale Saturday, rested today.

Coach Don Faurot gave the 19 men who played against Notre Dame a brief vacation but sent the reserves through light drills. Todd suffered a broken jaw Saturday and Maznicki injured a knee two weeks ago.

Bray 'Most Valuable' Illinois Footballer

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 22 (AP).—Eddie Bray, 17-year-old freshman from Utica, Ill., today was chosen "most valuable player" on the Illinois football team.

The 142-pound halfback carried the ball 80 times in six games this season for a net gain of 576 yards—an average of 7.2 yards per attempt, which is the best ball-carrying record in the Western Conference.

Against Northwestern Saturday, Bray ran back a kick-off 90 yards to score Illinois only touchdown.

Graham All-Time Western Loop Passer

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 22 (AP).—Otto Graham, who has concluded three years of football competition at Northwestern with an all-time Western Conference passing record, today was selected by his teammates as the most valuable player on the 1943 Wildcat eleven.

In a total of 25 games, Graham completed 157 passes in 321 attempts for 2162 yards. This year in eight games he completed 32 out of 63 for 491 yards and four touchdowns. He also carried the ball 87 times and gained 355 net yards, averaged 38 yards on punts and place-kicked seven extra points in nine tries.

Vander Meer Stands Examination Today

Midland Park, N. J., Nov. 22 (AP).—Johnny Vander Meer, star pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, will undergo a special Selective Service physical examination tomorrow.

Classified as 4-F in August, Vander Meer said tonight he would report tomorrow at Rutherford, N. J., for the special examination to determine the seriousness of his colitis condition. He is married and the father of a baby daughter born last December.

Redskin-Bear Notes

Redskins Worked on 'Statue' For Lions—Gave It to Bears

The Chicago Bears might have been on the lookout for a Statue of Liberty play Sunday had the Redskins-Detroit Lions game of the preceding week been a close one.

Coach Dutch Bergman put the play in the books for Detroit but when the 'Skins took an early 21-0 lead he wisely withheld the play from Chicago Bear scouts.

Thus it was a surprise to the Bears and everybody else in the first period when, third down and six to go on the 20-yard line, Sammy Baugh and Wilbur Moore executed the time-worn puzzler to perfection, with the help of Ray Hare's potent block and the downfield blocking of Clyde Shugart and Steve Slivinski.

Sammy Baugh had a date with the dentist yesterday and today, depending upon the persuasion of Dr. Robert Moran, he is scheduled to have his injured knee X-rayed. . . . Charley Malone, who wore No. 19 for the Redskins for years as one of the league's great ends, will take his preliminary Army physical examination Friday.

The Lou Rymkus fans are complaining. They say the Redskins' rookie tackle did not receive a just share of the credit for his part in the great work of the 'Skins line against the Bears, and we think they are right. . . . According to Post Photographer Charlie Del Vecchio, who was covering the sidelines, when Bob Masterson and Harry Clark crashed into each other in the first period, Clark got up and gave Masterson a wink, as if to say, "There's more where that came from."

Sid Luckman had four passes intercepted Sunday, compared to seven in the first eight games of the season. . . . If the Phil-Pitts are wondering how the Redskins could afford to trade off Roy Zimmerman, the 'Skins can certainly ask if all the Eagle ends are as good as Alex Piasecky, who was sold for a song at the beginning of the season. And does Dan Topping need $100 more than the Brooklyn Dodgers (won 2, lost 7) need George Cafego? . . . Redskin Back Frank Seno lacked just one step of getting away on three long runs this season, the third occasion being his 51-yard dash when Clark caught him on the 14-yard line. . . . The Redskins will start work today for the invasion of the Phil-Pitts on Sunday. WHITTLESEY.

Ross Awarded Silver Star For Bravery

Barney Ross, the pint-sized Chicago lad, who punched his way to world boxing titles, then punched out a name for himself as a Marine hero on Guadalcanal, was honored yesterday with the Silver Star and a Presidential citation.

ROSS

Sergeant Ross, now stationed at the New York Navy Yard, was acclaimed a year ago when he protected three wounded comrades until rescue patrols arrived.

This "great personal courage and sincere devotion to his comrades were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States naval service," the citation said.

For that feat, Ross also won the Edward J. Neil Memorial Trophy of the Boxing Writers Association of New York as "the outstanding boxer of 1942."

Barney, noww 34, held the lightweight boxing championship from 1933 to 1935, and the welterweight crown from 1936 to 1938. He enlisted in the Marines in April, 1942.

Alsab to Train In Blue Grass Land

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 22 (AP).—Alsab, the 3-year-old thoroughbred champion of 1942, arrived here today to start training for winter racing. Mrs. Al Sabath's great money winner of 1942 has been in the East for several months but a training injury late last year kept him idle most of this year.

John Zoeller, manager of the Alsab farm here, said Alsab and other Sabath horses would be kept in training at Keeneland but that it had not been determined yet whether they would be shipped to New Orleans or Florida for the winter season.

The Baer Brothers Draw Full House At Bolling Field

A capacity crowd filled Bolling Field gymnasium last night to see an exhibition boxing match between Max and Buddy Baer. Instead of the bout they heard a lecture by Max. The exhibition was called off because Buddy has a bad knee.

So Max substituted an inspirational talk.

The battling brothers, however, did act as referees in three matches each for the six bouts in which Bolling Field men, Merrick Boys' Club and National Training School boxers participated.

The summaries:

126-POUND CLASS—Burr, Bolling Field, defeated Staples, Merrick Boys Club.

135-POUND CLASS—Balderson, National Training School, defeated Raiser, Bolling Field.

140-POUND CLASS — Barry, National Training School, defeated Castelon, Bolling Field.

160-POUND CLASS — Evans, Bolling Field, and Sullivan, Merrick Boys Club, drew.

All bouts were three 2-minute rounds.

Texas' China High Sextet Hates to Lose—And Doesn't

China, Tex., Nov. 22 (AP).—When the China High School girls basketball team plays there's always a packed house. Reasons:

1. They don't lose games.
2. It's just as if you were seeing a beauty contest.

Down here in the heart of the Texas rice-growing country, the China gals of the maples are off on another winning spurt. They have taken 46 games and lost only one since last fall.

But it's nothing new from C. C. Alexander, superintendent of the school and coach of the team. He built up a record at Kildare high school before coming to China. Over there the team felt one loss a season was terrible. For several years they moved along without dropping a decision.

Alexander took over a squad that had won one game the previous season when he started coaching here in the fall of 1942. The girls swept through for 41 victories against one defeat.

This season they have won five straight.

The lone defeat was at the hands of Vidor High School but China later beat Vidor three times and a few weeks ago took another decision 31-6.

There are 100 students in the school with 27 out for basketball. "It is one of the most beautiful and colorful teams I have ever had," commented Alexander. "They keep the spectators on the edge of their seats because they never know what the girls will do next."

The oldest of the China beauties is 16 and most of the squad is made up of freshmen and sophomores.

Service Rejects Giants' Jurges

New York, Nov. 22 (AP).—The New York Giants learned today that Shortstop Bill Jurges, recently given a 1-A classification has been rejected for military service. Jurges said his rejection was due to an old ankle injury received when he played for the Reading, Pa., International League Club in 1929-1930.

Phils' Pinky May Enlists in Navy

Philadelphia, Nov. 22 (AP).—Merrill (Pinky) May, 32, Phillies' third baseman for the last six years, has enlisted in the Navy and is training at Great Lakes, the Phillies announced today. Navy, who batted .284 last season, was the club's second best hitter, trailing Babe Dahlgren by only four percentage points.

Md. Touch Grid Teams Hold Night Distinction

Butler University Won't Have Cage Team This Year

Indianapolis, Nov. 22 (AP).—Butler University, whose basketball teams had played in Madison Square Garden and long had fought on even terms with numerous Big Ten teams and other high-ranking quintets, announced tonight it would not have a basketball team this winter.

Warren H. Isom, head of the faculty athletic committee, said a lack of facilities for either practice or home games made the action necessary. The Butler fieldhouse, seating 15,000 persons, now is being used by a military training unit.

For more than 20 years Butler teams were coached by Paul D. (Tony) Hinkle, now a lieutenant in the Navy and the football and basketball coach at Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

Great Lakes' Juzwik Injured

Great Lakes, Ill., Nov. 22 (AP).—Halfback Ray Jones and Steve Juzwik joined the list of football injured today as the Great Lakes Bluejackets opened preparations for Saturday's game with undefeated Notre Dame at the United States Naval Training Station.

Although neither was able to workout on the squad today, Lieut. Tony Hinkle said the two backs were figuring in his plans for Saturday. Jones, No. 1 relief man for Steve Lach, also injured, was forced to the sidelines on the first play of the game against Marquette last week.

Hinkle and his Scouts outlined Notre Dame's offense in today's practice session and will start heavy defensive drills tomorrow.

Touchdowners Hear Slater Today

Lieut.-Col. Bill Slater of the United States Army, one of the leading sportscasters, addresses the weekly luncheon of the Touchdown Club this afternoon at 12:30 o'clock.

Residue Beats Milk Route in Marlboro Race

By Walter Haight

Marlboro, Md., Nov. 22.—Well handled by Jockey Carson Kirk, who took the mount when Jockey Patsy Grant became ill just before the race, R. J. Hall's Residue won by a head in a thrilling photo finish in today's fifth event, best offering on the Monday card. Residue led M. Belasco's recently claimed Milk Route to the wire, with H. Lataner's Balloter third in the field of seven going a mile and a sixteenth.

Residue defeated a somewhat cheaper field here in his previous appearance and returned a $14.80 mutuel today while stepping the route in 1:58 2-5. Crisp weather prevailed and some 4000 customers took part in the afternoon's action.

Kirk did not hurry Residue. He saved ground with the veteran while Cumshaw and Milk Route battled along for the lead. In the final quarter Cumshaw weakened and Residue, taken out for racing room, set out after the leader. In the final drive Residue had too much punch for his rival.

The daily double paid $28 to 259 holders of tickets on the 7 and 8 of Well Allright and Strumming.

NOTES—Jockey Patsy Grant was fined $50 for rough riding in last Saturday's seventh race . . . Grant, however, should have plenty of money for fines . . . He has had the best season of his career and at the Wheeling meeting he set a record, riding 51 winners in 28 days . . . C. Jackson, listed as the rider of Maybe Miss in the third event, is old Charlie Jackson, probably America's oldest active jockey . . . He told me yesterday that he rode Wandrel Grizzle to victory over this track 32 years ago . . . The likable old Negro won't tell his age, but he rode his first winner in 1903 . . . Gil Haus of Baltimore has been named patrol judge for the Charles Town meeting . . . Doc Nevens, who identifies horses on Maryland tracks, will have a similar post at the West Virginia track, and Dick Mills, who worked out Alsab at Pimlico, will be the outrider. Trainer L. Laurin, leading winning conditioner at the Pascoag, R. I., meeting, has reached Charles Town with five horses . . . Fifteen favorites won here in the first 32 races . . . Looks as if somebody did all right on a horse named Well-Allright . . . Jockey Raymond (Skeets) Holland was suspended for the remainder of the meeting for striking Jockey Ken Robertson after the finish of the first event.

Md. Gridders Get Stiff Drill For VMI Game

Dr. Clarence W. Spears, head coach of the University of Maryland football team, sent the Old Liners through another stiff offensive drill on the T formation yesterday.

Maryland meets VMI Thursday at Roanoke, Va., in a Thanksgiving Day battle, hoping to salvage the final game of the season after losing its last two games to University of Virginia and the Bainbridge Naval Training Station. Last year, VMI defeated Maryland, 27-0.

VMI Feels 'Lucky' For Maryland Game

Lexington, Va., Nov. 22 (AP).—Virginia Military Institute 17-year-old Cadet football team feels that Roanoke will again be "lucky" territory for them when they meet the Terrapins of the University of Maryland there on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.

Coach Allison (Pooley) Hubert's young charges, for substantiation of this belief, will quickly refer to the early season upset of the Clemson Tigers on the same field. In that game, a 12-to-7 victory, the Cadets entered as decidedly the underdogs to their heavier opponents.

The Cadets again will be outweighed by Maryland's husky crew, in some cases as much as 35 or 40 pounds a man, but Hubert's "half-pints" are rugged and willing, and they are determined not to be the first VMI team to be defeated by Maryland since 1937.

Terps' Boxing Coach Finds Fist Shortage

Fausto Rubini, new University of Maryland boxing coach, began to find out yesterday what Maryland football pilots were up against when he started recruiting boxers to fill the gaps left by the loss of all of last year's lettermen.

Like the football coaches, Rubini has only 17-year-olds and deferred men to draw from to form a team facing a schedule which now includes five tentative matches.

He started a beginners' class in boxing for all weight divisions in preparation for the all-university boxing tournament December 17, 18 and 21. The winners and runners-up in the tournament will make up the Maryland varsity.

Fifty-five boys answered the first call for volunteers to learn the techniques of the ring from the former Wisconsin welterweight champion. The group does not include a few battlers expected from the football team and several others who have not yet reported.

The tentative schedule includes a meeting with the University of Wisconsin at Madison, where Rubini went to school; another with Army at College Park; University of Virginia at College Park and a home-and-home arrangement with Catholic University.

Belloise knocked out Johnny Brown of New York in the second round of his last Philadelphia appearance.

Fairfax Rebels Win

The Fairfax Rebels scored a 20-7 victory over Jefferson High School of Falls Church yesterday. It was an easy victory for Fairfax, with the Jeffs scoring their only touchdown on a last-minute 40-yard pass from Tommy Knott to Wayne Fowler.

Virginia Line Drilled Hard For Tarheels

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 22 (AP).—Virginia's forward wall got the nod in a two-hour practice session here today as the Cavaliers worked out the attack they will use against the University of North Carolina Tarheels in Norfolk next Saturday.

Head Coach Frank Murray and his staff are seeking a balanced attack of running and passing plays to be used in this final game of the season, and know that line play must be improved if the rushing offensive is to succeed.

In early season games Virginia gained more ground rushing than passing. Maryland was the first opponent to see the Cavaliers take to the air for more gains than on the conventional ground route.

Duke Saw Plenty of Passes

Against Duke the Cavaliers outpassed any team the Blue Devils have met this season, with 154 yards gained through aerials. But the rushing yardage showed a net loss of two yards that day at Durham, and Murray is convinced that somethign must be done to step up the squad's grounds punch.

The loss of the number one and two guards on the right side of the line—Horace Pearce and Charlie Chitwood—has influenced the bogging down of the inside attack. Bruce Wood is still carrying the burden at left guard, but Phil Minor has been suffering bruises and has not played his best game recently.

Two Linemen Shifted

Against Duke Stanworth Brinkley was shifted from center, and John Gianakos from tackle. With but high school experience they needed and are getting valuable training. They should play their best game of the year against the Tarheels.

The center spot is well cared for by 204-pound John Macdonald and 144-pound Jimmy Miragliotta, with Kenneth Bevan as reserve. Captain Bob Seiler and Howard Lansman hold down the right tackle berths, while Ward Speer and Rufus Roberts are the only other tackles on the Cavalier squad.

Flange Captures Rockingham Race

Salem, N. H., Nov. 22 (AP).—Trailing the field at the half-way mark, H. M. Boshamer's Flange moved up fast in the mud today to win the Acworth Allowance Purse at Rockingham Park.

The winner overtook Merry-Ho Stable's Plaidloch in the final furlong, covering the mile and a sixteenth in 1:51 3-5, Plaidloch held on for second, with J. Freedman's Cabanisi finished third.

Flange paid $5.20, $2.80 and $2.40. Plaidloch returned $7.60 and $3.40 and Cabanisi $3.80.

The daily double paid $37 as I. Buckley's Happy Prince took the first race and Buck Patch won the second.

Frankie Wills And Robinson Fight Monday

Ernest (Cat) Robinson, a red-hot fighting favorite from Jamaica, Long Island, last night had signed for an eight-round boxing bout with Frankie Wills, popular local middleweight, at Uline Arena Monday night.

Robinson recently knocked out Vinnie Vines after Vines had boxed the respected Izzy Jannazzo to a draw.

Wills also turned in a noteworthy performance recently when he substituted for Fritzie Zivic in Akron and won impressively over "Red" Doty.

Duke's Gantt Tops South's Boot Scorers

Richmond, Va., Nov. 2 (AP).—Bob Gantt, Duke's elongated kicking specialist, has booted his way to top place among the Southern Conference scorers with a total of 47 points in nine games.

Winding up his collegiate football career when Duke defeated North Carolina, 27-6, Saturday to claim the 1943 conference championship, Gantt increased his amazing kicking record to 41 conversions after touchdowns in 46 attempts. He scored his first touchdown of the season in the North Carolina game and this, added to his 41 placements, gave him a 47 total as compared with 42 scored by Wake Forest's Fred Grant.

Grant will get an opportunty to better Gantt's mark Thursday when Wake Forest meets South Carolina's V-12 squad in a Thanksgiving Day scrap at Charlotte.

Tied for third place among the scorers are Courtney Lawler, Richmond back, and Nick Sacrinity, Wake Forest's soph flash, with 56 each.

Rail Jurisdictional Rulings Are Upheld by Supreme Court

By Edward H. Higgs
Associated Press Staff Writer

The Supreme Court ruled yesterday that under Federal law the settlement of jurisdictional disputes between railroad unions is pj to the National (Railway) Mediation Board or the unions themselves, not the courts.

In three cases involving the issue, the court declared in opinions by Justice Douglas that while Congress had provided specifically for judicial review in certain types of railroad disputes, it had not given the solution of jurisdictional controversies to the courts.

The vote was 7 to 2 in two cases, with Justices Roberts and Reed dissenting, and, 4 to 3, in the third case, with Justices Reed, Roberts and Jackson dissenting and Justices Black and Rutledge not participating.

Court's Interpretation

"The conclusion is irresistible that Congress carved out of the field of conciliation, mediation and arbitration only the select list of problems which it was ready to place in the adjudicatory channel," the court said. "All else it left to those voluntary processes whose use Congress had long encouraged. The concept of mediation is the antithesis of justiciability."

The court held that Congress had provided for court reviews first, in cases involving interpretation or application of a grievance concerning pay rates, rules and working conditions and secondly, in instances where an award of an arbitration board or the board's proceedings do not conform to the Railway Labor Act.

"When Congress provided for judicial review of two types of orders or awards and in the same act omitted any provision as respects a third type, it drew a plain line of distinction," the opinion said. "And the inference is strong from the history of the act that the distinction was not inadvertent."

Conclusion Drawn

Unless it is plain that Congress intended to afford judicial remedies, the court said that it must be assumed that Congress "fashioned a remedy available only in other tribunals."

"There may be as a result many areas in this field where neither the administrative or judicial function can be utilized," the opinion added. "But that is only to be expected where Congress still places such great reliance on the voluntary process of conciliation, mediation and arbitration.

The court did not rule on the merits of the three controversies. But its decision that courts did not have the right of review left in effect the National Mediation Board's certification of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen as the bargaining representative of all yardmen employed by the New York Central Railroad Co., and mediation agreements between the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad and the Southern Pacific Co.

Other Actions Taken

In other actions, the court:

They were convicted in 1941 in Minneapolis and given prison terms ranging from a year and a day to 16 months.

Ruled that an invididual who was placed on probation in lieu of a penitentiary sentence may not be given a longer sentence if he violates his parole. The dicesion involved Frank Roberts, who was sentenced to two years' imprisonment. He later was charged with violating his probation and was sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Agreed to review a decision that Oklahoma officials had no right to seize alcoholic beverages transported from outside the State and consigned to the Fort Sill military reservation, located within Oklahoma.

Refused to review a decision that an employer may be compelled to produce records sought by the wage-hour administrator, without first holding a hearing to determine whether the company is subject to the wage-hour act.

Agreed to review a decision that the wage-hour act does not apply to employes engaged in the preparation, handling and delivery of provisions to ships bound for interstate or foreign journeys.

Agreed to review a decision setting aside an Interstate Commerce Commission order which required railroads to impose a switching service charge against the A. E. Stanley Manufacturing Co. of Decatur, Ill.

Refused to review a decision sustaining the action of the Federal Power Commission in valuing the Niagara Falls Power Co. on the basis of its "actual ligitimate original cost" instead of its "fair value."

Denied to review to Morris U. Schappes, former teacher at the college of the City of New York, of his conviction on a charge of perjury growing out of his testimony before the Rapp-Condert legislative investigation of communist activites in the school.

New Gas Rates Take Effect; Rehearing Plea Is Denied

New gas rates went into effect in Washington yesterday when the Public Utilities Commission denied a petition for reconsideration of its order to the Washington Gas Light Co. The order reduced the company's gross revenues more than $132,000 and its rate of return to 5.75 per cent from 6.5 per cent.

The gas company indicated yesterday would appeal to the courts, probably today or tomorrow.

Whether this appeal will stay the effectiveness of the new rates depends, however, on the wording of the petition, it was learned.

If the company alleges that substantial and irreparable property loss would be ocasioned by operation of the order pending the appeal, the court would set a time for a hearing on three days notice to the commission at which time execution of the order would be stayed.

However, if such an allegation is not made, the new rates, under which the average householder will pay about five cents less monthly on his gas bill, will continue in effect during the court action.

THINKING OF HOME...

Here, beneath these alien stars, in this foreign place,
Thinking of home, I see my mother's face.

Clear as in a picture I recall
Just how, a year ago, I leaned against the kitchen wall,
Talking, while she basted the turkey brown . . .

And even now, so real I almost answer "coming,"
I hear her quick heels clicking down the hall,
And the sound of her voice calling us all to dinner.

Thinking of home,
I hear my father singing beside me in the village choir,
His deep bass ringing, like the slow-swinging tolling
Of a solemn bell.

Where my father was, there was no lack of anything.
Always, about our house, an autumn plenty, a harvest peace
As though, despite each winter's ice and snow,
The increase gathered in our barns and bins
Would never cease.

Thinking of home,
I remember how, Thanksgiving eve,
When we put out the fire and went to bed,
Frost and rain conspired to work all night;
And in the morning greeted our sleepy eyes
With the glitter and surprise
Of a world comprised of sun and ice.

Thinking of home, I think of her,
The warmth of her lips on mine;
And I remember, in that November, we walked together
Down endless avenues of light!

Thinking of home, of America,
These things are home to me . . .

The right of a man to a job, and his right to be his own boss.
The right of a man to think, and his right to speak his thoughts.
The right of a man to worship, and his right to love and hope.
The right of a man to a future, and his right to a just reward.

Home . . .
To us out here, these things are home.
We want to find them there, unchanged,
When we come back.

Old-Line Bureaus Hail Byrd Promotion Blast

The Byrd Committee's blast at the rapid promotion policy in the newer agencies was received with supreme satisfaction yesterday by old-line bureau chiefs who have had to hold down the salaries of their employes and then have seen their staffs raided as a result. But the grade promotions made in the old-line agencies varied greatly, from a low of 7 per cent at the Postoffice Department to 29 per cent at the State Department for the first six months of this year. Incidentally, just a few years ago the State Department had about the most tight-fisted promotion policy in Government. Yet it could justify giving 29 per cent of its employes grade raises within six months because of its terrific expansion.

KLUTTZ

During the same period Commerce Department gave 5576 of its 22,547 employes grade promotions, a percentage of 25; Treasury was close behind with 23 per cent, and following in order were: Labor, 22 per cent; Justice, 21 per cent; Agriculture, 16 per cent, and Interior, 10 per cent. War and Navy figures haven't been given to the committee. But anyway, that gives you a good idea of your chances to get a grade promotion. It shows, too, that more employes get grade promotions than are given in-grade promotions, and the moral of the study is: relax the Ramspeck-Mead in-grade promotion act to permit more small increases and it won't be necessary to hold employes in their jobs by giving them the more costly grade raises. But the committee put its finger on a sore spot when it reported that "some employes are jumped four and more grades over a two-year period. Others, as well qualified, must wait many years for a single grade promotion."

Harold M. Salmon, FDIC personnel officer, is resigning to be chief of personnel for a large Chicago drug chain. . . . Maj. Gen. Philip Fleming, Federal Works administrator, is relieved to know that his son, Carson, a second lieutenant in the Air Corps who was shot down over Germany, is a prisoner of war at 2954 Stalag Luft No. 3. . . . One of the nicest things that can happen to a retired employe took place yesterday in the Commerce Department. Edward W. Libbey, the department's chief clerk for 25 years, was called into the office of Secretary Jones and given a testimonial that was signed by every top Commerce official. Libbey also received a purse.

This happened at the Pentagon: A lieutenant received a personal letter which was addressed to major-so-and-so. And his secretary looked at the bar on his shoulder and said: "Lieutenant, I didn't know you were a major."

"Well, you see," the lieutenant explained, "I was an instructor at the Virginia Military Institute and that automatically made me a major in the Virginia militia unorganized and I was known to my friends at VMI as major." The girl nodded understandingly.

Some time later the lieutenant overheard his secretary explain to a visitor: "See that lieutenant over there; he ain't no lieutenant, he's a major in the Confederate army disorganized."

The Pentagon will give its employes a treat on Thanksgiving turkey with all the trimmin' for 35 cents . . . Arlington Farms, the Girl Town, will hold a big game party Thanksgiving night. The cafeteria there also will serve turkey . . . Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt visited the Government girls in the West Potomac Par' dorms Friday night at the invitation of the girls who signed a round-robin invitation. Her visit wasn't a front-office sponsored event . . . The Agriculture Department has drafted a bill designed to stop speculation in farm lands. The bill would levy a stiff capital gains tax on the resale of farm property. It's now unders study at the White House before being sent to Congress.

It takes a BUREAUCRAT five pages to say no. That's one of the definitions of bureaucrat we've received in our contest. Send yours in now. Printable definitions will be used later in the week . . . Eric Marks is a unique Federal official. He was deputy chief of WPB's general salvage branch and several days ago he asked that he be demoted to chief of the service section where he believed he could be more useful. Dick Talbott, his boss, reluctantly accepted his resignation. But two days later Talbott dropped dead and now Marks is acting chief . . . The salvage division, incidentally, will be moved from the new gas building to the temporary building across from Social Security . . . Justice will set up a new personnel division very soon. . . . Interior Recreation Association will stage its annual buffalo dance Saturday night at Wardman Park. On the program committee are Irene Bogart, Jack Wilkinson, Mildred Hosford, Kenfield Bailey, Edward Kelly and Lois Adams.

Autos Strike 2, Woman Breaks Leg in Traffic

An 88-year-old woman suffered a broken leg, hit-and-run drivers injured two persons and a woman was seriously hurt when she fell from a moving automobile in Washington traffic yesterday.

Mrs. Fannie Kate Welch, 88, of 603 F st. ne. was admitted to Casualty Hospital with a broken right leg as the result of a crash at 5th and M sts. ne.

She was said to have been hurt when a car driven by Mrs. Florence Meetze, 50, of 4001 4th st. nw., was in collision with a car driven by Daniel Ross, Negro, 29, of 54 M st. nw. Mrs. Welch was a passenger in the car driven by Mrs. Meetze.

In the car with Ross was his wife, Pauline H. Ross, 29, also of 54 M st. nw., who was treated at Freedman's Hospital for a cut over the right eye and head injuries.

Henry Schmidt, 56, who lives at the Soldiers' Home, was taken to Garfield Hospital with a compound fractured leg and head injuries suffered when he was struck at 9th and S sts. nw. by a truck. He was later transferred to the Soldiers' Home Hospital, where he was reported to be in serious condition. Police said the operator of the truck fled from the scene on foot after the accident.

Eunice Taylor, 25, of Newton Village, Md., was admitted to the Eugene Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, Md., with injuries to the body inflicted when she was struck by a truck while walking on River rd. opposite the Evergreen Cemetery.

Mrs. Lucille Wesson, 26, of 1017 17th st. ne., was admitted to Emergency Hospital with a concussion and possible skull fracture suffered when she fell from an auto at Bladensburg rd. and Eastern ave. ne. She was riding with her husband, Herbert T. Wesson, a Coast Guardsman, in a car operated by Petty Officer Hill, U. S. Coast Guard, Portsmouth, Va. Her husband also fell from the car at the same time, but apparently was not injured and later continued on his way to Portsmouth with Petty Officer Hill.

Dr. Christopher Murphy, deputy coroner, yesterday reported as accidental the deaths of Dr. Bullock, 32, 408 T st. nw., and Virginia L. Muse, 32, of 1619 13th st. nw., both Negroes. Both were killed Sunday when the car in which they were riding plowed into a dirt bank at Sheriff rd. and Minnesota ave. ne.

Illegal Grid Ticket Sales Cost Man $50

One person received a $50 fine and two others suspended sentences yesterday for ticket scalping Sunday at the Redskins-Chicago Bears game at Griffith Stadium.

A case against a fourth person was continued until November 30, and two juveniles are still awaiting trial.

Judge Thomas Dewey Quinn imposed the fine on Clarence M. Winchester, 33, Negro of 407 T st. nw., who pleaded innocent to a charge of selling tickets in a public space. Winchester claimed he had a block of tickets for his friends, but was trapped when he stated falsely that the tickets were for a row of seats. It was shown they were dispersed.

James M. Long, 21, Negro, of 212 S st. nw., and James T. Trice, Negro, 22, of 25 R st. nw., received a suspended sentence each of $25 fine or 30 days in jail. It was testified that these men were selling only a few tickets and therefore could not be considered "professional scalpers."

They were charged with violating an Internal Revenue regulation prohibiting selling tickets without payment of tax and selling tickets at a price higher than that marked.

A similar charge against Kelly Miller, 47, Negro, of New York City, was continued until November 30 at the request of the U. S. Attorney's office.

The two juveniles, 15 and 16-year-old Negroes, will appear in Juvenile Court.

House Group Files D. C. Health Report, Sees Its Chores Done

A report which received Nation-wide commendation when it was made five months ago by the D'Alesandro public health subcommittee, was approved but immediately pigeonholed yesterday by the House District Committee on the theory that "the matters under our jurisdiction already have been remedied."

The investigation, which included probes of insanitary housing, juvenile delinquency, tuberculosis and social diseases, resulted in the setting up of a venereal disease clinic, medical examinations and blood tests for all prostitutes taken in raids, and cooperation between Health and Police Departments and military authorities in suppression of prostitution.

Other items cited in the report, Representative D'Alesandro said after the meeting, are matters for the Appropriations Committee.

"The District Committee can recommend appropriations but, of course, has no authority to make them," the Maryland Congressman said. "I have sent copies of the subcommittee report not only to the members of the House Appropriations Committee, but also to the rest of the House and Senate. The granting of funds for the remainder of the recommendations now rests in their hands."

D'Alesandro referred to these items, taken from the report:

1. Need for a full-time sanitary engineer as assistant to the health officer in the Health Department;

2. Increased staff of Health Department inspectors, which should be provided with uniforms because "the evidence before this subcommittee shows that the public has more respect and greater confidence in uniformed representatives;"

3. Appropriation of funds so that a public agency can start an immediate program of replacement of insanitary dwellings;

4. Increase of the Health Department budget so that the amount spent for health will approximate the amount suggested by the American Public Health Association, namely $2 to $2.50 per capita.

5. Additional funds granted to the Health Department for an enlarged force to make better progress in rodent control.

In another action yesterday, the District Committee voted to report out favorably the long-discussed District-Virginia boundary bill, which would make the line of demarkation at the present high-water mark of the Potomac.

The bill was urged by the Department of Justice to relieve the doubts about court jurisdiction in cases that have increased in number since the erection of the Pentagon and the National Airport. It also was supported by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Two other bills, one waiving renewal of servicemen's driving licenses for the duration and the other authorizing construction of steam heating pipes for the Mayflower Hotel, also were reported favorably.

Chairman Randolph and Representative Hebert, who last year introdueed a bill granting the Commissioners increased powers over routine operation of local administration, agreed that an entire District Committee meeting should be turned over to discussion of the measure. Randolph announced that such a meeting will be scheduled in the near future.

WLB Panel To Weigh Bus Case Today

Faced with a union ultimatum to settle the wage dispute on the Arnold-operated bus service from Washington to Arlington by next Tuesday, a three-man fact-finding panel named by the National War Labor Board will meet today at 10 a. m. to consider the case.

The panel, which cannot take action but only recommend it, consists of Dr. Paul Douglass, president of American University, as chairman and public member; John Twohy, presdient of the Mixed Concrete Corp., Norfolk, Va., as management representative, and E. J. Shea, president of the Virginia State Federation of Labor.

Open to the public, the hearings will be held in Room 7129 in the Labor Department Building.

The dispute between the employes, represented by the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes (AFL), and the company, which centers around a union demand for a wage increase of 14 cents an hour, led to a work stoppage last Friday.

Union leaders, at that time, declined to admit that the drivers were striking, calling the incident a "continued union meeting." They also said that another such meeting would be called in 10 days if no decision should be reached in the meantime.

Company officials said last night that buses were running on schedule.

Labor Turnover in District Remains Problem for WMC

Labor turnover is still the major problem faced by the Washington War Manpower Commission, Fred Z. Hetzel, area director, said yesterday. He added that recent advices from trade associations have indicated a decline in the turnover rate.

Pointing out that the Washington labor force is reduced by some 2500 men monthly by the draft, Hetzel said that "certain loopholes in the WMC stabilization plan add an unknown number" of workers lost to the local labor market.

Good Cooperation Noted

"If an employe leaves his job and the employer has no indication of his new work," the WMC chief declared, "there is little we can do, except depend on the other employer not to hire anybody without a statement of availability."

Hetzel said that cooperation by all parties is very satisfactory and that he hopes that figures comparing the turnover rate before and after enactment of the new plan on October 13, which are expected around the first of next month, will show a "definite trend of decreased labor shift."

To meet added manpower needs and fill jobs, which have been vacated by the draft or other reasons, the WMC will step up its recruiting program.

Paper Work Reduced

WMC officials said that the United States Employment Service offices are augmenting their recruiting force and "streamlining" procedures, cutting down paper work to a minimum. Men applying at the USES for jobs on file, for instance, will be referred direct to employers without having to register.

Henry E. Treide, regional WMC director, has indicated the scope of the recruiting effort when he said that almost 200,000 workers will have to be found in WMC Region IV within the next few months if all needs are to be met.

Court Rules Key Left in Auto Makes Owner Liable for Wreck

The United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that the owner of a car who leaves the key in the ignition is responsible if the car is stolen and an accident results.

The court reversed a District Court decision absolving James O. Hartman, of 409 Allison st. nw., from damages caused when his truck was stolen and struck Willie Ross, Negro, of 412 Massachusetts ave. nw. Ross was represented by Attorneys Charles H. Houston and Joseph C. Waddy.

The trial court dismissed the suit on the basis of a 1916 decision holding that despite the presence of an ordinance prohibiting leaving keys in the switch with the ignition unlocked, the leaving of the car in this condition did not make the owner responsible because another person intervened to cause the accident.

In his opinion, Justice Henry W. Edgerton wrote:

"Violation of an ordinance intended to promote safety is negligence. If by creating the hazard which the ordinance was intended to avoid it brings about the harm which the ordinance was intended to prevent, it is the legal cause of the harm.

"There are practical as well as theoretical reasons for not excusing him (the owner). The rule we are adopting tends to make the streets safer by discouraging the hazardous conduct which the ordinance forbids. It puts the burden of the risk, as far as may be, upon those who create it."

D. C. Dealers File Liquor Ration Plan

By Linton Burkett

Whisky rationing, limiting sales to one bottle to the customer for Washingtonians, came one step nearer yesterday when the District of Columbia Retail Liquor Dealers Association submitted rationing and other regulatory plans to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board for approval.

The plan was adopted at a meeting of the executive board of the association yesterday, Harry Weschler, president of the association said. It was then submitted immediately to the control board, which had no comment to make last night.

In addition to limiting sales to one bottle to the customer, the dealers would require a purchaser to display his OPA ration book, which must have been issued in the District, before the sale would be made.

Should a resident wish to make a larger purchase than one unit, i. e. a pint or quart, it would be necessary for him to obtain a special permit from the ABC Board. Should a nonresident, who would not have a D. C. ration book, wish to make a purchase, he would have to obtain a permit from the ABC Board.

Weschler said the plan envisoned the naming of a committee of three from the retail dealers and a similar committee from the wholesalers who would sit with the ABC Board weekly or twice a month, to keep all concerned familiar with supply and demand in the trade. This committee would be charged with the duty of assuring an equitable supply of whisky from wholesaler to retailer and from retailer to consumer.

Another provision was that proper regulations be drawn which would require each wholesaler to post daily receipts with the ABC board, together with prices and information as to the quality of the whisky on hand.

This plan, similar to the one in effect in New Jersey, would stabilize prices and supplies, the dealers said. It already has the support of Commissioner Guy Mason, Weschler declared.

Senate Probe Under Way

By the Associated Press

Chairman Van Nuys (Democrat) of Indiana of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said last night that a subcommittee investigation into the current liquor shortage is now "in full sway."

While public hearings will not start for another week or 10 days, he said, "one paid investigator and a dozen volunteers are at work."

The volunteers, Van Nuys added, are key men in Government departments who are "exploring records that will aid in laying the foundation for later public testimony."

First Tire Case Heard

Marshall Lee Banks, 24, Negro, pleaded guilty in Municipal Court yesterday to acquiring a tire without a purchase certificate and possessing a tire uninspected in violation of OPA regulations.

The case, the first locally to reach the courts, already had begun when Banks changed his plea from innocent to guilty. He will be sentenced December 6.

Police Slay Jewel Thief After Chase

REAR OF 7TH ST. STORE showing window from which Charles Divers, Negro sneak thief, climbed fleeing police and the line of his fall after being fatally shot

A jewelry store thief met his death yesterday in the style of a movie thriller after a mad scramble through windows and along a second-story ledge with police in pursuit, plenty of gun fire, and finally a 35-foot fall

The thief, identified by FBI fingerprint records as Charles Divers, Negro, of Roanoke, Va., about 20 years old, entered Eli Rubin's Jewelry Store at 718 7th st. nw. around 5 a. m. through a second story window, and made his way to the ground floor where unknowingly he touched off a burglar alarm.

Two scout cars from the first Precinct and commercial burglar alarm men responded to "cover" the place from the front and the rear. One of the policemen, Pvt. R. G. McGuffin, entered the store and there surprised the youth who was searching for loot with newspaper torches to light the way, Capt. Robert Pierce of the First Precinct said.

The thief ran upstairs and got through a front window on the second floor with Private McGuffin behind him. Then, according to McGuffin, he scampered along a ledge until he came to Marvin's department store, where he entered through a window and made his way to the rear.

McGuffin stuck with him, and fired a shot in the darkness, but the thief kept on going and climbed through a rear window of the store to find Policemen V. L. Antonelli and G. E. Anderson waiting for him in the alley. Two more shots were fired at him as he attempted to make his way to the roof of the building, and he toppled to the street.

Some on Parole

Army Gets 5 Weekly From D. C. Prisons

An average of five men a week have been taken into the Army out of District penal institutions during the last year, local Selective Service Headquarters revealed yesterday.

Col. Edward S. Shattuck, general counsel of the Selective Service System, urged in New York Sunday that all 5000 of the 90,000 men in U. S. prisons fit for service be inducted, but those being inducted here are men convicted of less-serious crimes and are usually first offenders.

Some Paroled

Many are drafted at the termination of their sentences, but some are paroled and taken into the Army before their sentence has expired. There are no figures to show the number paroled to the Army before the expiration of sentences.

The paroles are granted with the understanding that they will be terminated if the man is honorably discharged from the Army.

The selection of prisoners who want to volunteer is left up to the Army, not the Selective Service System, and only those the Army feels are acceptable on mental and moral grounds are allowed to volunteer.

Delinquent List Delayed

Meanwhile, the local headquarters said that completion of a list of the District's draft delinquents was being delayed because a number of local boards, already overburdened with routine matters, had not yet supplied a list of their respective cases.

And although the deadline for draft delinquents to "square up" with their local boards expired October 1, many of the delinquency cases have still not been turned over to law enforcement agencies.

2 Mistrials Echo McNabb Decision

By Joseph Paull

Repercussion of the controversial McNabb decision of the United States Supreme Court appeared to be increasing yesterday when a mistrial was declared in a second-degree murder case in District Court, a mistrial called in a Municipal Court assault case, and a man arraigned while he was, according to police, in a drunken state.

Justice David A. Pine stopped the murder trial of James J. Daniels, 29, Negro, accused of stabbing a Negro woman. A purported confession was about to be introduced in the trial when it was learned Daniels had not been araigned promptly. Justice Pine then called a conference at the bench and with agreement of counsel, called the mistrial.

To Be Tried Again

The case will be tried again after the McNabb issue is worked out, the U. S. Attorneys office said. The McNabb ruling holds that those accused of crime must be arraigned promptly and without delay." Any evidence obtained while the accused is in custody of law authorities and before such prompt arraignment is complied with is inadmissible in a trial.

Judge Nathan Margold in Municipal Court declared a mistrial in the case against Marion Johnson, 33, Negro, accused of knifing his wife. Before a purported confession was admitted in evidence, testimony was that it was obtained on Sunday, November 14. The accused was arrested the preceding Saturday night. No magistrate is available on office hours until Monday. After the confession was admitted, however, a policeman testified the confession was obtained on Monday and the defendant not arraigned until Tuesday morning.

This case may also be retried after the McNabb decision is reviewed.

No Delays in Biers Case

Carldon Biers, 45, of 4709 North Capitol st., was arrested at 11:50 a. m. yesterday and because of the McNabb decision was arraigned at 2:50 p. m. on charges of being drunk and having numbers slips in his possession. According to police, he was still under the influence of alcohol when he appeared in court.

Biers pleaded guilty on advice of his attorney and was sentenced to pay a $200 fine or spend 180 days in jail.

The Justice Department has announced it will seek a reversal or clarification of the McNabb decision in the Supreme Court. Tomorrow, the resolution of Representative Hobbs (Democrat) of Alabama to negate the effects of the McNabb ruling on evidence will be argued.

Schoolboy Grid Victim Loses Fight for Life

Smiling and hopeful almost to the last Tommy Dunigan, 15, lost his 14-day fight with death in Providence Hospital at 12:10 p. m. yesterday. A broken neck and severed spinal cord from injuries suffered in football practice at Gonzaga High School, 27 I st. nw., Tuesday, November 9, were too much for even his courage and fortitude and he lapsed into a coma Sunday night and never regained consciousness.

Prayers for Tommy's recovery or happy death were offered in every Catholic church in Washington and in many from as far away as Texas. His tremendous will to live and fortitude made an irresistible appeal. First to respond were his schoolmates who attend mass daily in St. Aloysius Church, North Capitol and I sts., and where a mass for the repose of his soul will be said at 9:30 a. m. today. All the boys of the school will attend.

Funeral mass will be said at 10 a. m. Thursday in Blessed Sacrament Church, Chevy Chase Circle, and many of the children in Blessed Sacrament School, where Tommy was graduated two years ago, will attend.

The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Dunigan, sr., reside at 4616 DeRussey Parkway, Chevy Chase.

Tommy was the youngest of four children and two brothers and a sister, besides his parents, survive. They are Walter, jr., and Joseph in the armed forces and Patricia.

The boy suffered a broken neck and severed spinal cord during practice in a game which he loved. Last night the Rev. Cornelius Herlihey, S. J., member of the Gonzaga faculty, praised the boy's competitive spirit and sportsmanship and said he was the best prospect on the junior squad. He was nearly 6 feet tall and weighed 150 pounds.

SEC Utility Dispersal Order Set Aside by Court of Appeals

The United States Court of Appeals set aside yesterday an order of the Securities and Exchange Commission which divested the Engineers Public Service Co., one of the largest electric and gas power holding companies with assets of 375 million dollars, of all except one of its subsidiaries.

The court also interpreted for the first time certain provisions of the Securities and Exchange Act in an opinion of importance to the financial world.

The opinion said the SEC must require holding companies and subsidiaries to limit operations to a single integrated public utility system necessary or economical to their operation, and at the same time be in the public interest. It said there were certain limitations placed on the SEC, namely that it could not disperse the interests of a holding company when (1) all of the system is located in one State or adjoining States and foreign countries, (2) if dispersement will impair advantages of localized management and control, and (3) if public interest is served.

The holding company in this case held that the Securities and Exchange Act intended that the controlling bodies of the utility systems could be dispersed in several States, but that the subsidiaries of each of the controlling bodies had to be in the same or adjoining States to that of the controlling bodies. In this, the SEC was sustained.

But the court overruled the SEC finding that all the subsidiaries had to be functionally related. That is, in this case a bus company and an ice company were under the control of an electric company in Virginia. The court held that these companies were properly within the control of the electric company, since the public interest was served by the combination.

The court found that by dispersal of several of the subsidiaries the company would stand to lose over $90,000 annually, or result in a decrease of 29 per cent in dividends. The court found, however, that this fact did not show the over-all picture, and in reality other savings would result from the dispersal of interests. In this there was a minority opinion to the contrary.

The court ruled that when the SEC orders a holding company's interests be dispersed, the holding company has the right to determine which one of the interests it shall retain. The SEC ruled it had that power.

On the question of the constitutionality of the Securities and Exchange Act, the court ruled that the SEC could not determine constitutionality of the act, but that this determination rested with the courts.

BARNABY By Crockett Johnson

Do you really believe in ghosts, Mr. O'Malley?
Well, not all ghosts . . . Depends on the ghost.
I knew a ghost once . . . Nice, honest, sincere fellow. Talented, too. Very talented. Last time I saw him was at the postrami counter in Lindy's old place on Broadway. He had just opened in Hamlet. Rave reviews . . .
Those were the days when producers . . . were striving for realism in the theater. . . . And somebody hit on the terrific idea of doing the Dane with a real spectre!
What's he talking about, Barnaby?
So an actors agency got in touch with my friend Gus and, after a bit of trouble with Equity, he was cast—
Here we are at the old house, Mr. O'Malley.

POST DISCOVERIES—

Christmas Gifts for Men

Is it always a puzzle each Christmas trying to decide what would be the perfect gift for one of the "stronger sex?" Well, it's a fact that men like the practical—when it's cold you don't find them wearing toeless shoes and sheer hose. If it's for them it has to be warm and comfortable and useful. Don't worry about giving him something that's unusual—chances are he'll consider it excess baggage and secretly think you extravagant.

Come Christmas however, and "he" will be as excited as his dignity permits. Especially if he finds any of these gifts in his packages. They're all well within your budget too

Our biggest find comes in the smallest package. We thought they were out for the duration, but we found windproof cigarette lighters made of sterling silver. It's simple to use and the inside wick can be replaced when it is used up. It's an ideal gift for a service man too. Around $5.

Socks have acquired a reputation for being a commonplace gift. They're not! We know where you can get a handsome pair of 100 per cent imported wool. They have that wonderful feel of fine wool, they're long, and they come in the colors men like—black, green, gray and brown. The price? Around $1!

A sweater is a gift that's appreciated by everyone from Joe College to Granddad. We selected this sleeveless one because it's warm, it's made in an attractive cable stitch and it's 100 per cent wool. Comes in maroon, tan, green, blue, khaki and navy. $2.95

If you don't know his size, then something like toiletries is always a safe buy. We found a handsome set that contains three large masculine looking jars—powder, after-shave lotion, and hair oil. They come in wonderful scents, such as Irish Moss and a Russian leather fragrance. The jars alone make excellent decorative pieces, especially those in black with two gold horses for a cap. Around $6.

Perhaps it's unusual to see such a sprightly figure (as that here pictured) when the alarm goes off—but there's a reason for it His pajamas are just the kind he likes—ski-type with crew neck and knitted cuffs for wrist and ankles. They're comfortable and they're warm without being bulky He'll love them in either blue, tan or green. Around $3.

The glove and scarf comes in a handsome set. Both are made of the softest Shetland wool (100 per cent) and come in an assortment of popular colors Around $5.

A wool scarf is always a welcome gift, especially if it's a plaid or striped subdued, blended colors. They're long, wide, have a soft fringe at the bottom, and are a find for around $2.

Note the happy expression of the man in the sports shirt. The shirt is made of a fine quality pin wale corduroy and has all the careful detail work that makes it last forever and ever. It has long sleeves and a rayon lining through the yoke. It comes in tan, rust, brown, and one wonderful color that will cheer up even the weariest day, bright red! Around $5.

If he's 6 foot tall or over, he's lucky. For we've found hard-to-get flannel pajamas that are made especially for tall men. The material is a heavy flannel, coat style, and sanforized so it won't shrink. Around $4.

Call NAtional 4200, Extension 324, between 9 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. and we'll tell you where to find these.

War Bond Fiesta to Be Tomorrow

By Genevieve Reynolds

To help pay for an air armada, which will be dedicated to the Latin-American countries, the Club de Las Americas will fling a gala Thanksgiving War Bond Stamp Fiesta tomorrow night, 9 o'clock, at the Shoreham Hotel.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

More than 1500 people, including members of the Latin-American Diplomatic Corps, local Pan-American clubs as well as many Capital notables, are planning to attend the event. The Army Air Force Band will furnish the music for dancing. Latin-American artists will contribute special numbers of their native music. Those participating will include Malorah Christman, marimbist; Horatio Ellison, accordionist; Miss Phoebe Pathan, solo dancer. The George Washington Mixed Chorus, directed by Dr. Robert Howe Harmon, accompanied by Miss Grace Ruble, will also be heard.

Among those who will serve on the reception committee are Miss Christina Michels, daughter of the Chilean Ambassador; Miss Alicia Cornejo, sister-in-law of the Counselor of the Peruvian Embassy; Miss Ofelia Davila, of the Mexican Embassy; Miss Blanche Vargas, daughter of the Charge d'Affaires of the Colombian Embassy, and Miss Silvia Lopez-Lorrain, daughter of the Chilean Military Attache.

Advance war-bond sales, totaling $281,235, already have been subscribed by members of the Club de Las Americas and other groups in the city contributing to the cause. Of this amount Mrs. Marie Kiatta and her committee, composed of Miss Sadie Hier and Mrs. Rose Teheran, contributed $11,400, which was raised by members of St. George Assyrian Orthodox Church Club. Dr. Francisco Banda, president of the Club de Las Americas, stated that he expects the $300,000 mark in the war-bond sales to be surpassed at the fiesta.

Newspaper Women's Club

One of the gayest gatherings over the weekend was the party given by the American Newspaper Women's Club at its headquarters, 1604 Twentieth st. nw. Purpose was to honor Clifford K. Berryman's forty-first birthday anniversary of his famous teddy bear. The famous cub first appeared November 21, 1902, when the late President Theodore Roosevelt was returning from a hunting trip in the South—minus the bear. An overzealous guide tied a small cub to a rope and called out to the famous Rough Rider President to get his gun, saying, "Here's a bear." Naturally, the President didn't shoot the cub, declaring that he would be the laughing stock of Washington. It was this incident that gave birth to Berryman's famous cartoon, showing President Roosevelt with the teddy bear.

Sunday's party attracted Representative Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House; Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina and Mrs. Smith and Representative Sol Bloom. Other guests were Evening Star colleagues of Mr. Berryman, who was honor guest. You may recall that the bear first made its appearance on The Washington Post when Ira Bennett was editor. Bennett, who came with Mrs. Bennett, inscribed in the club's guest book, "I was on The Washington Post when Cliff originated the teddy bear." Another Post writer of that day, Mrs. Samuel L. Burton, formerly Kitty Thompson Berry, was there, as was Mrs. Kate Scott Brooks, whose newspaper career was launched on The Post as music editor.

Mrs. Berryman was unable to attend, due to illness, but sent a large basket of chrysanthemums. The Cuban Military Attache and Senora de Munilla sent a cluster of mauve chrysanthemums in an attractive vase, and later came in person to greet Berryman. Mrs. Evelyn Boyer made cookies in the shape of bears.

Others attending the fete included Berryman's daughter, Miss Florence Berryman; the Superintendent of the National Zoological Park, Dr. William Mann, and Mrs. Mann; Rudolph Max Kauffmann; Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin, Civil Service Commissioner, and scads of others.

National and foreign agencies of the District will loan articles, made from materials given by Alliance members, and Mrs. Burr will show scores of items, usually discarded which form valuable contributions to institutions and hospitals. Mrs. Newton Corcis Wing, chairman of conservation for the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, will discuss the latest call for war salvage.

The guest speaker, the Greek writer, Mme. E. Seney Theodorian, will tell of oppressed Greece. Tea will follow the meeting.

Week-end Memories Swirl Around a Dinner for Noted Author; a Ship-Launching and a 'Birthday Party'

A NOVEL ALMOST stole the spotlight from a distinguished dinner company, including the author, over the past weekend in Washington. The book was that very best-seller, "So Little Time," which, if you haven't read by now, you certainly should . . . because you can probably find yourself and most of your friends somewhere in it.

John P. Marquand, its author, who has been widely acclaimed "the modern Thackery" and "America's greatest novelist," has the rare gift of translating his superior human insight into all his books, and this latest one is particularly rich in that respect. For example, virtually every wife perusing its pages feels she has much in common with the "Madge" of the book, the wife who keeps saying to her husband, "You never tell me anything."

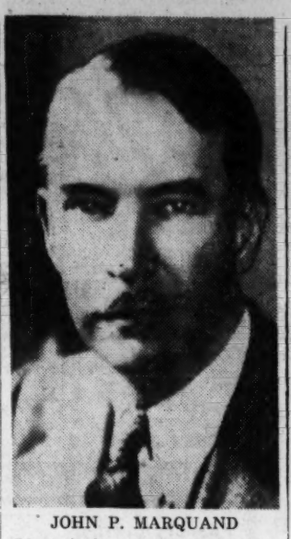
To get back to the dinner. It was arranged for Mr. and Mrs. Marquand, who came down from their Massachusetts home a few days ago and returned on Sunday, by former Massachusetts Representative and Mrs. Joseph Casey in their Spring Valley home. Also among the guests were two other attractive out-of-towners, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Patrick, down from New York to spend the weekend with the Caseys.

Seemed that everybody there had read "So Little Time"—or at least a detailed review of it, and Mr. Marquand spent most of the evening explaining that the book is in no sense autobiographical . . . and none of the characters is drawn full-bodied from life. "Composites, all," he said by way of disposing of them . . . and changing the subject, if possible. But he succeeded in doing that only for brief periods of time—such as when he and Senator Barkley talked quietly and briefly about a highly interesting war job Mr. Marquand has been doing, and Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and Lieut. Collier Young asked him if he was planning a far-flung trip soon—the second, by the way—in connection with the work.

OVER THE COFFEE, meanwhile, Mrs. Marquand was telling Mrs. Lister Hill, Mrs. Wickard, Mrs. Barkley, Mrs. Meyer, and Mrs. Charles Howard Dudley, mother of the hostess, some of her misgivings about her husband's latst novel. "I wondered if I was Madge," she said. "And then, from my husband's daughter by his first marriage, I learned that his first wife also wondered the same thing."

Mrs. Newton Sharpe said she planned to take several copies of "So Little Time" back to England with her "because it is such an excellent and precise portrayal of America."

Justice Thurman Arnold and Mr. Marquand managed to get away from the book long enough to discuss the war for a few minutes . . . but they were soon back to literary talk. Others who had a chance to chat with the author before the delightful evening was over were Mr. and Mrs. James Crowley, Eugene Meyer,



JOHN P. MARQUAND

Lieut. Andrew Dudley and Lieut. Robert Dudley, brothers of the hostess, and Lieut. George Abell.

Mr. Marquand, by the way, denied the widely circulated report that he was coming to Washington frequently these days to gather background material for a novel. As he sees it, writing a novel against a Capital setting is a task much too difficult to attempt in wartime. Besides, as I hinted before, he is now concerned with a highly important Government mission. Exactly what it is, he doesn't say—for publication. But since everything seems to be grist to his literary mill, another novel may come out of that, too.

"JUST PRETEND that number is a Jap," said F. A. Hodge, manager of the Bethlehem-Sparrows Point Shipyard, pointing to a digit on the proud prow of the S. S. Aucilla Saturday. "Just pretend it's a Jap," he repeated . . . "and swing that bottle of champagne as if it's the only thing you've got to knock him out."

It was a once-in-a-lifetime thrill, something to which I had long looked forward—my big chance to smash a traditional beverage bottle with the very first blow.

"Are the bottles pretty thin these days?" I had asked Mr. Hodge hopefully, knowing full well that a maritime superstition has it the bottle must crash on the first swing or the ship is hoodooed from then on out.

"No thinner than they used to be," he said, warningly. "You'll have to give it all you've got."

Cameras were clicking all around. Fifty members of the Chesapeake Association of the Associated Press were joining House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Senator George Radcliffe, Mrs. Lister Hill, who was my matron of honor, and other members of my party in the flag-draped stand.

HER BANNERS unfurled above newly painted coat, the 16,000-ton tanker S. S. Aucilla was proudly poised, ready to slip down the ways at any moment. Looking up at her, I was sure I had never seen a more magnificent vessel in all my life. An aide nearby was talking over a telephone, getting the signal for the split second on which I was either to deliver a crashing blow . . . or fail. I took the bottle in both hands and swung it across my shoulder as if it had been a baseball bat. "Fifteen seconds to go." . . . "10 seconds." . . . "5." . . . Hit it!" I remembered that number was a deadly Jap. I closed by eyes, gritted my teeth (and I have pictures to prove it; frightful ones), and let fly with all my might. The bottle cracked into a thousand pieces, the champagne foamed . . . and the Aucilla was on her way down to the water.

Later there was a luncheon at the Belvedere Hotel with Speaker Rayburn giving an informal talk I shall never forget, and Senator Radcliffe following with a few choice remarks. There was music and dancing, and the presentation to me of a lovely sapphire and diamond lapel pin, and finally goodby all around, as my party started back to Washington. What a day!

"IF DADDY HAS JUST one more birthday party . . . before his actual birthday gets here—they'll have to carry me out feet first," quipped lively Mrs. Douglas MacArthur 2d, at the candle-and-cake fete given in honor of her father, Senator Alben Barkley.

The former Laura Lee ("Wahwee") MacArthur gave a "birthday luncheon" for the Senator a few weeks ago, and had a hand in planning another birthday fete for him tomorrow—which actually is his natal day. And along with other members of the Barkley clan she was on hand for that gala 6-to-8 party Sunday afternoon when the popular Senator took his sixty-sixth birthday bow in the home of Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury.

Given jointly by Mrs. Stotesbury and her son, James H. R. Cromwell, the party gathered in celebrities by the dozens, and wrote a glittering chapter in Washington's social history on more than one account. Seeing gracious Mrs. Stotesbury, regal in softly draped black satin accented with pearls, standing at the door to receive her guests was treat enough for scores of notables who know and recognize her as one of the few remaining great ladies and great hostesses of our time.

Centering the large drawing room was the four-tiered birthday cake, which was cut with appropriate fanfare—and speeches—toward the end of the party. "It's one of the greatest tributes I've had in all my 39 years," said the Senator.

"It's one of the greatest pleasures I have had in all my life . . . and I am in my eightieth year, you see," said Mrs. Stotesbury.

"I certainly don't see," the Senator came back, "but I do hope you live long enough to look it . . . someday."

Jan Masaryk Is Honored At Reception

Congratulations were the order of the evening at the Embassy of Czechoslovakia last night when the Ambassador and Mme. Hurban entertained in honor of their foreign minister, Jan Masaryk following his lecture before the United Nations Forum.

The reception was a small one, attended by no more than a 100 guests. In attendance were the sponsors of the United Nations Forum and a few old friends of M. Masaryk who was the first diplomatic representative of his country in Washington.

Guests began arriving at the embassy around 10:30, directly after the close of the meeting at Constitution Hall. The honor guest remained for the night at the embassy and this morning returned to Atlantic City, where he is a delegate to the Conference on Relief and Rehabilitation of the United Nations. M. Masaryk, who serves his country as vice premiere as well as Foreign Minister, will return to London at the conclusion of the Atlantic City conference.

Prior to last night's lecture, M. Masaryk and the three other speakers on the program were guests at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Pinchot. The speakers included Dr. Tsiang Ting-fu, former Chinese Ambassador to the Soviet Union; the Minister of Economic Affairs of the Netherlands, M. P. A. Kerstens and the former President of Chile, Carlos Davila, who also is a former Chilean Ambassador to Washington.

New Members Are Added to Dance Committee

Three new members have been elected to the committee sponsoring the officers' midweek dances—Cristina Michel, Nancy Mayo and Marcia O'Brien.

They and other members of the committee are deep in plans for the Thanksgiving dance to be held Friday evening next, November 26, at Sulgrave Club, the hours 9 to 12 as usual. Following Thanksgiving Day as it does, there is to be a special celebration including several surprise entertainment features.

Young officers of the United States and United Nations armed forces are invited to atend these popular dances, but reservations must be made in advance by calling Hobart 6318, the committee limiting guests so that the dance floor will not be too crowded for enjoyment.

WAVES, WRENS to Be Feted At Tea Given by Lady Dill

First Officer Mary Alden of Oxford to Be Guest of Honor at Friday's Event

By Peggy Preston

"Washington has suddenly become such a big city that newcomers often fail to meet, despite the work they have in common."

Lady Dill, lovely, blonde wife of Field Marshal Sir John Dill has a talent for arranging effective, congenial gatherings that serve to counteract the situation she so aptly describes.

One of her many activities since coming to the Capital has been the informal entertaining of British women in uniform, and her Friday afternoon teas have been pleasant interludes in the lives of many a busy WREN or WAF. In the drawing room of her spacious Georgetown house they meet and mingle socially, perhaps for the first time on foreign soil. There on more than one occasion old friends have found each other, discovering, to their surprise, that the fortunes of war have stationed them in the same city.

This Friday Lady Dill is planning another such affair. But on this occasion she will bring together both American and British servicewomen, with the accent on the Navy.

First Officer Alden Heads WRENS Here

The "after 5" tea will honor a newcomer to Washington, First Officer Mary Alden of the WRENS. First Officer Alden has been in uniform for three and a half years and this autumn came here from London to assume command of the WREN contingent in this country. She succeeded First Officer Edith Biddle who returned to England after an extensive tour of duty here.

With First Officer Alden will come a group of officers from WREN headquarters. Invited to meet the first lady of the WRENS is Capt. Mildred H. McAfee of the WAVES and 30 members of her staff.

In addition will be wives of American and British officials whom Lady Dill believes all newcomers should have the privilege of meeting. Among them will be Mrs. Henry Wallace. Also in the gathering, which will number over 150, will be wives of ranking naval officers on the British and American staffs.

Sons Left England For U. S. in 1940

Few of the guests will have previously met the honor guest, direct-spoken, attractive, First Officer Mary Alden. Although she arrived in town the middle of September, she did not take over her present post until a few weeks ago, and since then her duties have kept her well tied to her desk.

The wife of a British doctor now serving in the army, First Officer Alden left her home at Oxford to enter the WRENS shortly after war broke out.

She has a special reason for her delight in being given her Washington assignment: "I've two boys who have been in America since 1940. The good luck of being sent where I could see them at least once in a while was more than I had dreamed of," she explains. The boys, now aged 11 and 13, have been making their home with friends in Maine, and have grown so since their mother last set eyes on them that by her own admission she hardly knew them.

A graduate of Oxford, Mary Alden's only other position in professional life was that of examiner at the university. "Like most other British women, I gave little thought to careers before the war. Homemaking was my job," she smiles.

Officers' Holiday Dance at Burlington

A new departure in dances at the Officers' Service Club of the United Nations in the Burlington Hotel will be the club's Thanksgiving dance which will take place tonight. The dance will be for men and women of ficers only and all of the dancing hostesses will be women officers.

Men officers may bring their own dates provided they are women officers. The hours of dancing are from 9 o'clock until midnight in the club lounge at the Burlington.

Mrs. R. C. Jacobs, jr., will be senior hostess in charge of the dance. A few of the club's regular civilian hostesses will be on hand to help her and to see that men or women officers who come alone are introduced to partners.

The Officers' Service Club has chosen tonight for its Thanksgiving dance in order not to interfere with other dances planned for Thanksgiving night.

The midweek dance for officers will be held at the Sulgrave Club Friday evening, November 26, from 9 o'clock until midnight.

Watch These Three Danger Zones of Your Skin!

① EYE CRINKLES
Let my 4-Purpose Face Cream help you guard against signs of age—at this Danger Zone!

② NOSE PORES
Let my 4-Purpose Face Cream help you guard against big pores—at this Danger Zone!

③ BLACKHEADS
Let my 4-Purpose Face Cream help you guard against blackheads—at this Danger Zone!

THERE are three little areas of skin that you must watch with special care. For they are "danger zones" where blackheads may appear—where pores tend to become coarse—where little lines often etch themselves into the skin.

What are these "danger zones"? Well, there is zone No. 1: the corners of your eyes, where tired lines and laugh crinkles form so easily. There is zone No. 2: the curve next to your nose, where pores may get coarse-looking. And there is zone 3: the tiny valleys of your chin where dust and grease accumulate and sometimes harden into blackheads.

You don't need a lot of different creams and lotions to guard these "danger zones." For now there's one cream that takes care of four important needs of your skin! My 4-Purpose Face Cream is complete in itself—asks no help of other creams or lotions. Not only does it guard the 3 "danger zones"—but it keeps your skin looking its cleanest, freshest and loveliest at all times!

Here's what Lady Esther 4-Purpose Face Cream does: (1) It thoroughly but gently cleans your skin. (2) It softens your skin and relieves flaky dryness. (3) It helps nature refine the pores, helps make your skin look more delicate. (4) It leaves a perfect base for powder.

Living Proof—In Your Own Mirror!

Why choose a face cream because it's expensive, or because of a clever package? Judge it only by what it does for your skin!

That's why I say—try Lady Esther 4-Purpose Face Cream! Get the smallest size jar if you like—but try it! When you see how radiantly clean and fresh your skin looks after the very first application—when you see how much smoother and more youthful it appears—it's time enough to get the largest and most economical size. But for proof that this is the most beautifying cream you have ever used, get the small-size jar today!

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man, 45, Believes He Wants Divorce From Fine Devoted Wife in Order to Marry Another Woman He Has Loved Deeply for 14 Years; Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a man 45 years of age. I have been married 19 years,—years of business vicissitudes; but on the whole, not unsuccessful. I have two children, a daughter 18, in college, and a son 15, in preparatory school. My wife is an intelligent, attractive woman 42 years of age, and although certain phases of our relationship have never been satisfactory, she has been an excellent homemaker throughout our marriage. She has been very active in church and community affairs; but never has neglected her husband and children, whom she loves very much.

About 14 years ago, I met and fell in love with another woman; and a deep and abiding love and close association have continued throughout the years. I have loved this woman as I never loved my wife; and have wanted to secure a divorce, so that we might be to each other all that would be possible if we were married. However, because she was divorced many years ago, she has refused to let me do anything that would inflict on my wife the hurt she herself had experienced. Thus, while sincere in my wish to secure a divorce, I always acceded to her view,—because I, too, was loath to hurt my family; particularly during the early childhood of my children

About a year ago, I resigned an excellent position (paying a five-figure income) in a neighboring city, to accept a commission in the Army; solely that I might make a direct contribution to our war effort. Since then, I have been located in Washington. The woman I love remained in the neighboring city and married recently,—admittedly to remove herself from my life. Since then, she has separated from the man she married. And only recently, my wife joined me here; and, also, has taken a salaried position.

Feels He Has Met Family Obligations

I am still eager to secure a divorce and marry the woman I love. I feel that I have now reached the point where I have a right to the rest of my life; that I have discharged my responsibilities in adequate measure, having brought the original family through to the present state. I say,—This is what I feel; fully recognizing the moral issues at stake; and the genuine hurt I shall inflict on my wife. I believe that if our positions were reversed, I would want to release my wife in order that she might secure full happiness. I honestly believe, too, that if she knew the circumstances, she would not wish me to continue in my present acutely unhappy status.

Would you advise that I continue to carry on under present conditions? Or is there any merit at all in the selfish course I have indicated I would like to pursue?

J. J.

Would Woman Marry Him if She Could?

DEAR J. J.: Intuition tells me that were you to secure a divorce at this late date, and succeed in persuading the other woman to marry you, you would find that,—instead of realizing that Dream of Wedded Bliss that has long been a beckoning mirage outside your actual married experience,—you had simply substituted one set of imperfect conditions and romantic disillusionments for another. I daresay the most stabilizing factor in your abiding relationship with the other woman is the very fact that you were not legally bound to each other, and hence free of the onerous necessity to cope, ungloved and in double harness, with the indivisible and tedious responsibilities of supporting a family,—an assignment that usually is lethal to immature romantic (i. e., fabulous and imaginary) expectations of poetical rapport between husband and wife.

I THINK this condition of unmarriedness has constituted the same powerful appeal and afforded the same fundamental satisfaction and reassurance to the woman's subconscious mind that it has to yours; and that it had this effect because each of you had, in different ways, got your fingers burned in marriage; and perhaps also because the "reality" of marriage is too much of an adult business for either of you to transact successfully,—in the sense of investing in it the measure of self and resourcefulness required to make it a spiritually prosperous partnership. I am of the opinion that if we could turn an X-ray on the woman's innermost honest attitude in the matter,—an attitude as veiled from her mind's eye as your own,—we would see that she does not want to be married to you; much as she has valued your close devotional attentions and psychological support through these 14 years.

Desire Is Spawned By Wrong Idee Fixe

I BELIEVE that she, in rejecting the idea of divorce, and you, in conscientiously complying with her view, have been for the most part unconsciously accommodating your own kindred, unsuspected true desires in the matter,—rather than giving selfless and lofty consideration to the needs and rights of your wife and children. Her impulsive, short-lived recent marriage to another man was the gesture of a shallow, self-engrossed woman who doesn't know what she wants, fundamentally, but who is always in retreat from total commitments. She readily admits she walked the plank into the other man's arms to get out of your life. And your latterday, one-sided, gathering fixation on the idea of getting a divorce to marry her,—an idea doubtless communicated to her,—probably precipitated that panicky sidestep. She may think she was acting to remove temptation from your path; but I infer she was driven by self-serving compulsion.

SO, MY THEORY is: Your mounting discontent with your fine devoted wife, and distracted thought of discarding her, are largely the result of a wrong idee fixe that has dominated your mental landscape for many years,—since shortly after glamour faded from the marriage. That original wrong idea brought forth, after its kind, the offside liaison, to bloom like a nightshade in an atmosphere of unreality and illicit association; and like the parent-thought, it is a snare and a delusion. Put it to the test of prosaic married living in the light of every day, and I wager it would soon seem to you a "stale, flat and unprofitable" substitution. I believe bonafide contentment for you will be found,—indeed, can only be found,—through a revolutionary change of viewpoint toward your existing marriage, and toward the opportunities it affords you to become a positively good person. As for how to engineer the change,—To get yourself started, read "Power Through Constructive Thinking," written by Emmet Fox.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Thanksgiving Can Still Be The Traditional Feast

The 1943 Thanksgiving larder has been shorn. But in comparison with our Allies it is richly blessed.

Governor Bradford's proclamation in 1621, "so that we might, after a more special manner, rejoice together," gave rise to the first Thanksgiving feast. Ever since it has been a day of feast—turkey, rich giblet gravy, light-as-feather mashed potatoes, silvery onions in cream sauce, brown flecked pumpkin pie, cranberry sauce.

Our markets have been see-saw for some months. Potatoes, no potatoes. Oranges, no oranges. But there's still plenty of food with which to give thanks. There's an ample supply to make the annual gesture and show our gratitude for all the good things to eat from earth, sea and air.

Barnyard Romeos Missing

The barnyard Romeos—the Thanksgiving turkeys—will be missing on many tables. It can be readily understood why, when we know that the Quartermaster Corps has made plans to give every fighting man the traditional Thanksgiving dinner, from the South Pacific to Iceland, from the shores of Tripoli to many European points, or any place that the servicemen have followed the flag.

But the Quartermaster's demand for turkeys is not the only reason for the shortage. Production has been cut by a late spring; insufficient man labor; turkeys are too heavy for women to handle; a cold storm early this month which swept through Minnesota, the Dakotas, across Iowa into Nebraska and even as far south as Missouri. The turkeys huddled together and many thousands of them smothered. You know turkeys are very dumb creatures. And the turkeys grown in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific States will be sold close to home on account of transportation and ceiling prices.

There have been rumblings of a black market in turkeys. It is to be hoped that all the persons who signed pledges to outlaw anything other than food at ceiling prices, will stick to their guns and pay not a copper more than the ceiling price for their turkeys. And all food shoppers, not only the ones who signed pledges, should see that no support is given the black market.

The cost of turkeys according to OPA ceiling prices, is from 49 cents to 54 cents, varying with the type of stores—class, one, two, three, four. The way the bird is dressed enters into the price, as well as whether it is light, medium or heavy weight.

If you and your family think you can't bow your heads and give thanks without a turkey then get your bird and roast it to a turn. There are a few turkey tricks. You should select a turkey with smooth, shiny feet and skin that is clear with a pinkish glow underneath. Fine young birds have plump breasts and pliable breast bones. Ask your dealer to leave the neck skin on when the neck is removed, then pull it back over the lightly packed stuffing and skewer it or fasten it with toothpicks to the back of the bird. Close the body cavity with toothpicks and string, laced over the toothpicks boot-fashion. Use tweezers for a quick removal of pin feathers. Then prepare the bird in orderly fashion. Following are general directions for roasting turkeys and chickens.

Roasting Directions

Weigh stuffed, trussed bird so that total cooking time may be approximated. Lay breast side down on rack in an open baking pan. Brush skin thoroughly with melted unsalted fat, then cover it with a cloth dipped in the melted fat to help retain the juiciness of the meat. Roast in moderate oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit half of the cooking time. Turn breast side up and baste the cloth over the bird with more fat. The cloth may be removed toward the end of the last half of the cooking if the bird is not browned nicely. If a softened rather crisp skin is preferred, the roasting pan may be covered toward the end of the cooking. The bird is done when the leg joint moves easily. If a meat thermometer is used to determine doneness, insert it in the thick part of the thigh muscle so that it does not touch the bone. When it reaches 185 degrees Fahrenheit the bird is well done.

ROASTING TIME TABLE

Geese, same as turkeys; ducks same as for chickens.

A pork loin roast at 5 points per pound, costing around 30 to 32 cents per pound will be a good choice for dinner. This roast can be stuffed. The stuffing will extend the meat. And the man of the house should be happy because he won't have such a carving job. A splendid menu can be built around a pork loin roast. Here's a suggested menu:

Pork Loin Roast · Stuffing
Sweet Potatoes · Creamed Celery
Cranberry Sauce · Olives
Cold Slaw · Hot Rolls

CELERY DRESSING

For Turkey—Cut stale bread into small cubes, to make 3 quarts. Place in a warm oven to partially toast. Add 2 tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 3 cups chopped celery, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. Add ¾ cup melted margarine or butter, 3 to 4 eggs, then hot water gradually to moisten the dressing. Stuff lightly into fowl. If fowl is stuffed with too much dressing the skin will burst.

For Chicken—Cut stale bread into small cubes to make 4 cups and then place in warm oven to partially toast. Add 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1 cup chopped celery and 1 teaspoon chopped parsley. Add ¼ cup melted margarine or butter, 1 egg, then add hot water gradually to moisten the dressing. Stuff lightly into the fowl.

Let Us Be Truly Thankful

Let us be thankful this year in the celebration of Thanksgiving Day, be mindful of the hardships of the Boys who are fighting to protect this great country of ours. Let us think of the hardships in other countries, some of which on Thanksgiving Day will not have the actual necessities of life. Therefore let us realize how fortunate we are in America. Though some of the food items may be short, we still have an abundance of good wholesome food. Let us buy and serve it conservatively. Do not waste a single morsel. "Lick the platter clean" and be thankful that we are fortunate Americans. Remember that the reason turkeys, as well as many other food items, are scarce this Thanksgiving, is because we are trying to give the best of everything to our boys "over there" and to those in the various camps of the Armed Forces who still remain in this country.

Thanksgiving TURKEYS
Turkeys are scarce. All of our stores will have some turkeys. They will be the best the market affords. Fancy, young, tender birds, and the pick of the market.

Wheat and Rye Continue Rise To New Peaks

Chicago, Nov. 22 (AP).—The upward trend in grains which got under way early last week when the market first heard that immediate subsidies were to be granted flour millers was still very much in evidence today. Both wheat and rye moved to new seasonal peaks with the latter grain advancing almost 3 cents in the December contract.

The market was higher at the start, backed down on profit taking after the first hour, and then came up quickly when rye assumed market leadership under aggressive commission house buying. Oats and barley gained fractionally. Final prices were at or slightly under the best of the day.

At the close wheat was ⅜@⅞ higher, December 1.63⅛@1.63; rye was up 1¾@2¾, December 1.17⅞ @1.18; oats were ahead ⅛@⅞, December 78⅝, and barley gained ¼@½, December 1.20½.

There was no over-the-weekend announcement on hard wheat ceilings and a House vote on the proposal to abolish the Administration's food subsidy program was postponed by the sudden death of two important members. The vote, scheduled for later this week, is expected to indicate whether the no-subsidy legislation can be passed over a presidential veto.

FEA Agency Handling All Buying Abroad

By Walter Wood

The United States Commercial Co., under control of Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley, is now Uncle Sam's big bank for foreign purchasing, a spokesman for the FEA disclosed yesterday.

USCC, the operations of which were small and of a secret nature in the past, will finance the buying abroad of food, metal and numerous miscellaneous supplies, it was said.

FEA's announcement means, among other things, that the lite of the Commodity Credit Corporation of the Department of Agriculture, on which the House will vote today, will have no effect on the foreign food purchasing program.

Jesse Jones' Control Ends

The rise of USCC to its place of importance in the Government's economic set-up also means, it was said, that Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, no longer has control of public purchase import operations.

Henry W. Riley, deputy FEA administrator, revealed that most of the important foreign contracts of Jones' RFC subsidiaries, the Defense Supplies Corporation and Metal Reserve Co., already are transferred or are in the process of being transferred to FEA.

"Several of the large South American metals programs have been transferred in their entirety," said Riley.

The foreign operations of Commodity Credit also have been taken over by the FEA, Riley said.

Defense Supplies and Metals Reserve are two of four RFC subsidiaries ordered merged under FEA by President Roosevelt's order July 15.

The President's order directed the mass merger of many Federal agencies handling economic warfare under the Office of Economic Warfare, which was superseded by the FEA September 25.

Riley's statement is the first indicating that any real action has been taken to follow out the President's directive.

Money From RFC

Meanwhile, funds to carry out FEA programs come through USCC from RFC, but Crowley's requests are made through the office of War Mobilization Director Byrnes and they are not passed on by Jones, as in the past, Riley said.

This, it was said, has eliminated the situation which precipitated the sensational diatribe between Jones and Vice President Wallace last summer over programs of the old Board of Economic Warfare.

Changes in the staff of USCC have been made under Crowley's orders, Riley said.

The USCC was originally set up to finance and operate preclusive buying programs of the old BEW in neutral countries.

Two RFC subsidiaries which have not been coordinated under FEA are Rubber and Petroleum Reserve Corporations.

PLEASE SPARE THIS "TURKEY" FOR WAR NEEDS—DON'T USE LONG DISTANCE AROUND THANKSGIVING

The Army, the Navy and the Essential Industries of the Country (not to mention the Telephone Company) will be thankful if you will not make Long Distance calls around and on Thanksgiving.

Reason is, of course, the telephone network just can't handle the load—and it can't be enlarged because the necessary materials are going into the shooting—instead of the talking—side of war.

So, if you have Thanksgiving greetings to extend, please use some other method than Long Distance. The war needs, and must have, the wires.

Thank you for listening—and cooperating.
